How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

Should every one who has the interest of Plainfield close at heart buy goods from our merchants, the benefits all around can easily be seen. Thousands of dollars that would otherwise go out of the city will be kept circulating here and contribute a big share towards making a bigger and busier Plainfield.

A dollar spent at home will keep that dollar at home and all will share in the profits.

Although a similar body was once ousted by the courts, there is talk in Morris county of reviving the movement for a small Board of Freeholders. Dissatisfaction is said to exist with the large Board because of the expenditures for road repairs. Each of the rural members is said to want to foist a bad road in his district upon the county for repair. How to secure a "small board" that will be representative of the county at large is the question that the advocates of the system are trying to solve.

If somebody in Congress tries to get by with any misinformation on dyes and textile fabric colorings, says the writer of "Right Here in Jersey" in the Newark Sunday Call, it will have to be done while Congressman John H. Capstick, of the Fifth district, is out at lunch or somewhere else. The Union and Morris representative is an expert chemist and a specialist in commercial dyes.

When Major William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, isn't pulling a rifle trigger on some crack team of marksmen, reads another paragraph in the same column, he is apt to be pulling molars, for he is a dentist as well as a soldier. So in case of war he is apt to make the enemy bite the dust, just as no whe helps his country bite food.

Edmund Gerald Stalter, former city counsel of Paterson, has issued a statement that he would not attend any conference at which the question of his withdrawal from the State Senatorial campaign is to be discussed. He declared positively that he would not step out in favor of Thomas F. McCran, former speaker of the House of Assembly, and a spirited contest is promised at the Republican primaries.

Little political activity has been displayed as yet in Union township. The terms of Committeeman Daniel H. Beach, Collector David M. Potter and Assessor Frederick Stone expire, and all will seek re-election. All three are Republicans, and it is a certainty that they will have opposition either at the primaries or at the general election.

It is reported that petitions are being circulated in behalf of the nomination of George T. Carroll, an Elizabeth cafe proprietor and president of the State Liquor Dealers' Association, for freeholder on the Democratic ticket. Mr. Carroll was appointed by the Elizabeth Council to fill the vacancy in Elizabeth's representation in the Board of Freeholders following the death of Freeholder Logan Fay, more than a year ago, but was defeated for the place at the election last fall by William N. Marsh, Republican.

Madison Democrats have selected ex-Councilman Otto Ross as their candidate for Mayor, the slate being named last night by the city committee. The head of the ticket is vice-president of the Savannah Chemical Company. He served in the Madison Council from 1910 to 1913, and was president of the body for two years.

Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin, of Union Hill, believes that the anti-Wittpen men have a good chance of carrying Hudson county this fall. "Only a direct act of Providence can defeat the Wittpen ticket in Hoboken," he is reported as saying. "The Wittpen ticket will be the successful ticket from top to bottom and will represent the Democrats in the county of Hudson in the aspirations to the Gubernatorial nomination in 1916, the secretary states that "it is too early and there are too many frosts between now and next fall."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

THE SIGN OF THESE TIMES.

It is easy to read the signs of these Democratic times in this State. The Smith-Nugent faction has been feeding upon husks ever since it parted company with the Wilson contingent of the party. It has found these husks very dry picking. It has found them lacking in the kind of nourishment that keeps a Democratic patriot from becoming lean and skinny.

At last, having no other alternative, this faction has concluded to arise and go back to the Wilson camp.

Nugent says that every man with American blood will vote for Wilson in 1916. All of which shows how very fast a Newark politician can become Americanized in three years. And he will see that this statement catches the eyes of the President and his supporters, even though he is obliged to send it by special messenger.

And why this sudden harmony turn of the Smith-Nugent faction? Is it because of repentance—conversion scratched into their skins and working? Those who keep their eyes out for signs will know in good time. These Democratic worthies have and always have had an intense longing to serve their country. Opportunity has been denied them of late by circumstances over which they thought they had control, but found out their mistake. They intend to make their case of longing alter the circumstances.

Oh, yes! Democratic harmony is being spread on as thick as cold milk gravy in this State. The gravy will be troubled, however, when "Jim" Smith gets out into the open for the United States Senatorship.—Elizabeth Journal.

Governors of thirty-seven States of the Union are to assemble at Boston this week to discuss affairs of the nation at the eighth anual session of the Governors' Coference. New Jersey will be represented by Governor James F. Fielder and former Governor John Franklin Fort. Mr. Fort is president of the conference, having held that office since the inception of the Governors' Association in 1898, and as such he will preside at the assemblage this afternoon. The present Governor of the State and former Governor Fort, accompanied by the latter's daughter, Miss Margretta Fort, left for the Massachusetts capital yesterday morning.

The conference will meet in the Senate chamber of the Massachusetts capitol, beginning this morning, at 10:30, continuing until Friday. After adjournment of the morning session Wednesday the visiting members of the Governors' Conference will become the guests of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and will embark on a battleship provided by the National Government for a cruise through Boston Harbor, reviewing the Nrth Atlantic fleet off Boston Light, and then proceeding to Gloucester.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

A few dimes may "turn the tide" for you if you invest them in a "Situation Wanted" ad.

If your property is really "worthwhile," make that clear in your classified advertising—and you'll sell it.

If it is still valuable, you can sell it through a For Sale ad.

The lost article that is of enough consequence to worry about is of enough consequence to advertise.

Why do so many mothers take Wood Brook milk? Perhaps they have noticed the difference in the doctor's bills, if they are wise economists. But a mother's first thought is the children, and it does not take her long to discover that Wood Brook milk is health insurance for the children.

WAR NEWS

statement issued today says:

"There were some artillery duels during the night in the sectors to the north of Arras, between the Somme and the Oise, and in the Argonne. In the Vosges three violent combats were fought yesterday on the heights east of the Fecht to the north of Schratzmaennelo. Despite numerous counter attacks the enemy was unable to recapture the ground he had lost. At Barren Kopf we likewise maintained gains made on the night of August 22. The Germans made a fresh attack upon our trenches on the crest of Sondernach. They were repulsed."

Newport, R. I., Aug. 24—Senor Riano, Spanish ambassador to the United States, denied today the report that he had been asked to take over German interests if diplomatic relations between Germany and the United States are severed.

Berlin, Aug. 24 (by wireless).—The Admiralty announced today that a German submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Russian auxiliary warship at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

German troops are storming the defenses of Brestlitovsk. Today's official German statement announces the capture of Kopytow hill to the southeast of the great fortress on the Bug River. Other German forces continuing their pursuit of the Russians have reached the Biala Wysoka forts. In this region 4,500 prisoners and nine machine guns were captured.

NOT SUPPORTING ANY CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT

Washington, Aug. 24.—Official announcement was made today that the Administration, contrary to reports, is not espousing in secret the cause of any candidate for provisional president of Mexico. FEAR ANOTHER MINE STRIKE.

The John Wanamaker Store

Open Until 5.

Broadway at Ninth, New York.

And Now Come the "HALF-PRICE DAYS" to Close the AUGUST FURNITURE SALE

Beginning Wednesday, August 25

Half the regular Wanamaker standard prices on odd pieces, samples, discontinued patterns and single suites.

All grades of furniture, all woods, all standard period designs.

Furniture for every room—bedroom, dining-room, library, living room, hall.

Not meager and limited lots advertised as baits, as is often done by cut-price stores. But a large, varied collection, including hundreds of pieces and involving upwards of $100,000, to sell for $50,000.

This is our annual custom, with due notice to the public. The purpose is to prepare our furniture galleries for the receipt of new shipments to open the regular selling season early in September.

It Is the Time of Times to Buy Furniture—NOW

These "Half-Price Days" stop September 1.

On September 1, also, all August prices are raised to the regular figures—covering our entire remaining stock and all special purchases still unsold. The August Sale is for August only—it does not lap over into September.

But there is a still greater reason for buying furniture now. This reason is:

Not for years do we expect good furniture to be so cheap as it is today.

Even the regular prices will have to be advanced, because everything that goes into furniture—wood, hardware, labor—is advancing in cost. The only reason that furniture has been so low priced in this August Sale is because the furniture manufacturing business has been upset by general conditions, causing the manufacturers to sacrifice their stocks on hand at almost any figure they could get.

But the day of sacrificing is past. Surplus furniture stocks are largely disposed of. Manufacturers are making goods mainly to order. The demand for good furniture is coming back. The furniture business generally is improving, and all this will steady prices and put an end to the wonderful bargains which we have been able to offer this August.

New home-makers, brides-to-be, new comers to the metropolitan district, visitors from other cities—everybody with a home or a home-to-be-in-the-near-future—can furnish or re-furnish that home now, during these last five days of the August Sale, to better advantage than for months to come.

It has been a fine, happy, prosperous August Sale. People have come in greater numbers than ever before. The sales have been larger. Everybody has taken in good humor and in good spirit our little talks urging them to fix up their homes and not let them run down at the heels. The sale has helped general business conditions. It has helped the furniture industry. It has done its part in bringing back good times.

But it has helped most of all the people who found in it the good furniture which they needed for their homes and for which they paid unexpectedly low prices.

Only Five Days Remain

Only five days and the sale will be over.

Only five days and the half-price groups will be sold or restored to their regular price.

Only five days and our entire regular stock now reduced ten to fifty per cent. will go back to the standard normal Wanamaker prices.

Plan to come tomorrow. If not tomorrow, surely Thursday or Friday. If you cannot come this week you still have two days of grace—next Monday and Tuesday—but only two days. The August Sale ends with the last day of August—next Tuesday.

Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Galleries, New Building.

Jean Dubuc Pitching Great Ball For Detroit Tigers

JEAN DUBUC is pitching the best ball of his career for the Detroit Tigers this year. In fact, his work in the box has been excelled by few in the American league. Should the Tigers capture the pennant much credit must be given to Jean. At one time Dubuc was a member of the Cincinnati Reds, but was let out. He has splendid control and a fine collection of curves. Dubuc is also one of the hardest workers in Ban Johnson's circuit.

MULLIN SCORED THREE RUNS FOR HIS TEAM

Lil' Tommy Mullin beat the St. Anthonys, of Perth Amboy, Sunday, and put them out of the running for the City League pennant. Thomas slammed out three hits, one of them a double, and scored three of the four runs his team obtained. If he had not been as active as he was the final score would have been 3 to 1 in favor of the Saints. However, he, aided by "Johnnie" Fullerton, slammed "Dutch" Neider all over Perth Amboy.

Owing to the fact that Yenk, the regular Franklin catcher, failed to appear, the local boy donned the mask and handled five put-outs without an error. Not a man stole on him, either. Tommy Mullin is sure some player, and his friends would like to see him batting against "Cyclone Joe."

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE HOLDS SHORT SESSION

The City Amateur Baseball League held a short meeting in the office of the Plainfield Daily Press last night. There was little business of importance. The Netherwood A. C. dropped the name of Frank Hand and posted that of Eddie Stallings. There were no other changes in the list of players.

It was voted to give Ira R. Vail a chance to umpire one of the games on Saturday in place of Hyman Abrams, it being understood that this action did not mean the dropping of Abrams. Secretary Randolph read a letter from A. G. Spalding in which the latter offered to give a trophy or individual watch fobs to the winners of the league series. Next Monday dates for the postponed games will be fixed.

SPORT BRIEFS

R. J. "Pat" Callahan, pitcher of the Spokane, Northwestern League club, has been sold to the Cincinnati Nationals. He will report to Manager Herzog when the team reaches Boston.

Pitcher Phil Slattery, of the Central Association club, of Marshalltown, Iowa, has been sold to the Pittsburgh Nationals.

The National Commission will meet in New York today to act on the Rube Benton case.

Ad Wolgast, who is to meet Packey Hommey next Monday night at the opening of the Clermont A. C., of Brooklyn, has been hard at work at Boehm's training quarters, New Dorp, S. I.

Reports from St. Paul and Chicago say that Mike Gibbons and Packey McFarland have gone into real training for their ten-round bout which will be staged at the Ocean A. C., of Brighton Beach, on September 11.

Mike McTague defeated Walter McGirr in ten rounds at the Olympic A. C., of Harlem, last night.

Hughie Bradley, first baseman for the Brookfeds, was released by Manager Ganzel, but was immediately signed by the Newark Feds.

SURPRISE FOR FATHER.

Clarence L. Thorn, Percy McVoy, F. C. Langhorne, Charles H. Hall and Norman Thorn motored to Great Kills last week on their regular weekly fishing trip, and from there went to Sandy Hook with Captain Abe Hapenny in his launch, where they caught thirty-nine large weakfish. "Pop" Thorn had his twelve-year-old son along to give him a few pointers on the piscatorial art, but the boy had evidently had his eyetooth cut, as he put it all over the old man, who felt like the proverbial thirty cents, and, henceforth, Pop's illustrated volume on "How to Hook and Land a Fish" is closed and on the shelf in the library.

A. A. U. SANCTION.

The Johnson & Johnson Athletic Association, of New Braunswick, has made formal application to the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States for permission to conduct the national ten-mile run and seven-mile walk championships. If these two important championships are awarded to this organization, they will also take place at the Rutgers College field, Saturday, October 30.

SHOPMEN TO PLAY.

In conjunction with the Lincoln firemen's celebration the American Tile Workers and the Levgar Structural men will battle on the diamond. The affair is carded for this Saturday.

TEMPERATURE REPORT.

No Chance For Mile Meeting Between Jones and Taber.

FORMER HAS REALLY RETIRED

Ex-Cornell Speed Marvel, Now an Engineer, Has No Time to Train—How Football Was Cleaned Up—Feds May Make Another Raid.

Stories circulating in the grapevine telegraph circuit have it that John Paul Jones, holder of the present amateur record for the mile—excepting Norman Taber's exhibition—will meet his much talked of rival in the coast athletic meet. An athlete took the trouble to run down this rumor and pin it to earth.

He declared that Jones takes a practice run now and then for his health, but that this is as far as his athletic enthusiasm goes. Jones has been a very busy engineer since leaving Cornell university.

This retirement of Jones seems to leave the mile event at Taber's mercy, holding strictly to form as shown by figures. But Norman will know he has been to a real race before he trims Joie Ray of Chicago and Ivan Meyers of Depauw university. Ray turned his mile in 4 minutes 16 seconds and a fraction, while Meyers did it in 4 minutes 19 seconds and a sliver. That's good running any old time.

Taber won't have the pace to carry him at record speed as he did when the relays were set for him. With everybody starting from scratch there's not many sprints left in competitors after running seven furlongs.

Sports, like communities, pass through their frontier days. College football went through its period and in the refining process eliminated almost entirely the individual and team brutalities which twenty years ago were thought absolutely essential to the existence of the sport. But, after nine years of adaptation, practically all of the unnecessary roughness has been taken out of the sport, while manners and methods on the field have been revolutionized.

It has actually been found, in football, that the club which coaches its men to harry the individuals of opposing teams, to get on their nerves and to resort to roughness not contemplated in the rules, lost both time and efficiency as compared with a club that went about its business.

Today coaches tell their men to ignore all attempts of opposing players to provoke them to anger, and even advise players to take abuse, and even blows, without retaliation, because no team can play football and carry on a fight at the same time—to say nothing of possible disqualification.

Baseball is just passing through the refining process. Those who like to see baseball instead of pop bottle displays, rag chewing contests with umpires and fist fights between players hope that John K. Tener will join Ban Johnson in the cleanup process, and that James Gilmore will set his No. 12's down hard on all the Fed rough stuff.

Federal league players are worrying over the new threats that the Feds intend to make another raid on the major leagues. Many of the Fed players have the ten day release clause in their contracts. The gossips insist that if the proposed raids land a number of high salaried stars room will be made for them by releasing other Fed players, who will be compelled to accept lower salaries or remain idle. The Federal league promoters claim that their proposed raid, if successful, will force organized baseball clubs to increase their payrolls, thereby running the risk of going into bankruptcy.

Braves Are After Schulte.

Manager George Stallings, it is understood, is anxious to get another clean-up hitter, and is said to have a deal on whereby he will get a veteran fielder who is still a star hitter. This is said to be Frank Schulte of the Chicago Cubs, one of the hardest hitters in the game and who probably would show marked improvement if he were transferred to the Braves.

Keeping Up the Family Name.

Nothing like keeping all the money in the family. When the Davenport club sold Pitcher Barnes to the Boston Nationals, his job at Davenport was promptly seized by his younger brother, who had been pitching semi-pro ball around the small towns in Kansas.

Folk dances for older and younger girls will be the prettiest features of the afternoon, while a basketball game between the older boys will occupy a prominent place.

Basketball relay races for the girls between the halves of the court game will be staged, while ring games and relay races for smaller girls will also be run off. The parents of the children and their friends are invited to attend the exhibit. A similar exhibit of the work of the pupils will be held at the St. Mary playground on Liberty street. Miss Helen George is in charge of the Liberty street playground.

TALK TO BE CHEAPER.

It is only when the Telephone Company announces a reduction in rates, as was the case a few days ago, that we stop to think what an important part the 'phones play in the every-day life of almost every one, not in Plainfield alone, but everywhere else. When the Atlantic and Pacific were linked everyone stopped to comment on the matter, but few to think of the great amount of labor and thought that had been required to finish this wonderful work. The development of the telephone has been greater probably in this section of the country than anywhere else, but most of us forget this when we have a little trouble getting an answer from central, or do not have a connection made as rapidly as we think it should be done.

An occasional voluntary reduction in charges shows that the corporation at least realizes that it is a servant of the people, and that merely because it is a monopoly it cannot charge exorbitant rates.

The latest reduction announced means a possible total saving annually to subscribers of $100,000. The new minimum rate of $36 for 600 local messages makes it possible for subscribers who now have a two-party line service to get individual line service without added expense. Because of this advantage the two-line service will be withdrawn. For an additional $6 per year, subscribers who now have four-party service can obtain individual service.

It is not so long ago, as the Jersey Journal recalls, that we were prone to look upon the man who boasted of a direct wire to his home as somewhat of a plutocrat, and those of us who accepted, without umbrage, the classification of plebeian were content with a four-party wire whereby and whereon our family affairs very often became the property of our neighbors. Thanks to the wonderful development of the telephone, this is in a fair way of being changed. The cost of a direct wire is now so little more than the four-party line that it will, no doubt, be but a short time before the four-party wire goes the way of the two-party.

RESORTS HARD HIT.

Those Plainfielders who went on the outing of the Republican county committee on Saturday were probably more impressed by the apparent [illegible] of business at Coney Island by the insignificant political developments of the day. Comparatively speaking there were but few at the island in the afternoon, and the crowd was no where near so large as might be expected in the evening. Talking to people connected with the amusement enterprises it was possible to learn that business through the weeks already passed has been bad, and that only on Saturdays and Sundays were the crowds anywhere near normal. And it is not because of lack of attractions, for if anything, the island offers more this year than has been the case for many years past. The amusements are clean and well conducted, and performances are given as frequently as it is possible to get an audience.

Reports from resorts everywhere are the same. It cannot be denied that except in a few cases the recreation centres have been hard hit this year. The weather has been cool and rainy, so that the usual seashore migration has fallen off, and even the enforced presence in this country of those people who usually go to Europe has not helped matters. It is said that the hotels at Asbury Park are not doing nearly so much business as in past seasons, and the same is true of mountain and lake resorts. At Atlantic City the report has gone forth that business has been as good as was expected, but what those expectations were is not stated.

But what is one man's loss is another's profit. The people who didn't go to the resorts this summer have the money they would otherwise have spent. The money thus saved will go in other ways—largely in purchasing articles for fall use. So business generally will not necessarily suffer because money was not spent as usual in a certain line, and in the end all things will be balanced up for the good and glory of the entire human race.

WILL WIN EVENTUALLY.

It will take more than the failure of the State Federation of Labor to pass to resolution for suffrage to defeat that cause when it is voted on in October, for hundreds of labor men favor giving the women the vote, and they will not be influenced by such action by the central body. The vote, however, is somewhat of a surprise, for political equality has always been thought to be the consistent policy of organized labor ever since the question became an issue in the United States. For twenty-six years it has been one of the planks in the platform of the American Federation of Labor.

As has been said, the special interests have already enlisted the able bodied political machines. But the suffrage cause will not down and even if the politicians get away with the job this fall, the agitation will go on and the woman who works and pays taxes in New Jersey will at some early date be given at least an equal say with the man who idles and is a burden to the community.

We hate to rattle the skeleton, but the appearance under a big head yesterday in another local paper of a story about Reginald Rowland, which appeared in the Daily Press exactly three weeks before, cannot be passed without complimenting our contemporary upon its up-to-date system of news gathering.

If liquor has been sold illegally at the Netherwood Hotel, no one in Plainfield wants to see the house licensed under its present management. Of course the police may be wrong, but it is a remarkable fact that they usually have the "goods" when they make a complaint of illegal sale.

SCHUMANN-HEINK AS SPEEDER.

Santa Ana, Cal., Aug. 24.—The case of speeding brought against Mme. Schumann-Heinck and her sons is to be called here today. Whether the wrath of the famous contralto will have cooled since she was arrested on July 31 is a topic of gossip in Los Angeles. It was while she was speeding toward Los Angeles that her auto was held up, and the party was taken to court here. The singer declined to plead guilty, so Justice Cox set her trial for today.

Trenches

A trench is a ridge turned up-side-down.

Everybody has seen trenches of more or less trenchant pretentiousness.

The trench of most public interest is the battle trench, in which soldiers stay and fight. Later, when the war is over, the governments of Europe will be more interested in retrenching than they now are in trenching.

A trencher is either a man digging a trench, or a large meat platter.

HEALTH TALKS
by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Attainment Of Ripe Old Age

A MAN is as old as his arteries, runs a familiar axiom. His arteries are as old as his ductless glands. And his ductless glands are as old as his mode of living makes them.

Senility begins somewhere between the ages of thirty and seventy, depending on how fast you live. It is simply a question of temperament, habit, food, drink and exercise. Optimism, good nature, faith in a hereafter and obedience to the laws of nature are the essential ingredients of the prescription. Take the case of Noah, for instance; he got along quite comfortably for some six hundred years, notwithstanding heavy tribulation; then he took to drink and his days were soon numbered.

Feeling what we fear may be the first faint pangs of senility approaching, we have made an interested investigation of the disease and gathered in the form of ten commandments the consensus of authoritative opinion upon the vital question of prevention. Of course, these precepts are necessarily tinctured with our own personal views—for we have a conceited way of preferring our own opinion about some things to the opinion of authority.

Here is the decalogue:

1. Don't coddle; don't let the household temperature go above 68 degrees, and spend some time in the open air daily.

2. Eat little meat, but plenty of vegetables, cereals, fruits and nuts; drink much milk and water, but no alcoholic beverages.

3. Take a tepid bath each day. Show your body to the sun.

4. Wear light weight, knitted wool or silk and wool underwear nine months in the year. Wear whatever else you need, but no more than enough to keep you comfortable.

5. Sleep as much or little as you please, but sleep in a porch bedroom or a room with open windows 365 nights a year.

6. Walk at least a mile a day, chest out, chin drawn in, stomach held back, keep your mouth closed, breathe deeply and toe in.

7. Be a cheerful idiot throughout your waking hours.

8. Put your trust in God and despise no man's religion.

9. Marry early, and if necessary often, and always pick a winner.

10. Take as little medicine as your doctor will allow, and have just one good doctor, but have one whether you need him or not.

SHOPPING

SHOPPING is a sort of shadow buying indulged in by women. Man, who has no cash allowance except that made by his salary, buys with great recklessness, often purchasing an entire suit without looking through more than one store. Woman has to be more careful. She has to buy twice as much for one-half the money and usually does it. But it keeps her busier than she would be if she earned the money herself.

No woman is a good shopper unless she knows what is in all the stores in town and the prices thereof. Otherwise, she might buy a handkerchief for 29 cents on Tuesday which might have been bought on a Monday at another store only a mile away for 28 cents. This would make her feel worse than the man who bought a six-cylinder automobile just before the eight-cylinder cars came out for less money.

When a woman goes through five stores in an afternoon, prices 137 articles and comes home with a spool of thread she is not merely enjoying herself. She is keeping tab on the store-keepers. The next week some emporium will mark 75-cent corset covers up to 89 cents and will hold a grand reduction sale which will crowd the store with eager buyers. But the Class A shopper will merely smile and wait until the financial bulge has subsided.

If stores did not change their prices so much women would be able not only to do their shopping but to stay at home occasionally and do the housework. This would save so much money at home that they would be able to buy twice as much. Moreover, the stores would be able to sell goods with half the clerks and would cut their prices so much that they would be able to sell more goods with less advertising—which would take away half the temptation to women who would then be able to get along with half as much as they have now—which would make them so prosperous that they would pay twice the present prices without question.

This sounds a little bit mixed, but not more so than most of the conclusions arrived at by political economists after studying the laws of supply and demand with earnest and reverberating care.

Views Of The Press

Resources Of This Country

SUBMARINES and dreadnoughts in the Hudson stimulate the imagination and revive memories of the past. More than a century ago Robert Fulton, inventor and builder of the first steamboat, laid before Congress and the Federal government his plans for building submarines. Copies of the pamphlet he prepared are still in existence and the arguments he used in favor of building submarines for defensive purposes are exactly the same as those heard to-day. The sailing vessels of his day would have been vulnerable to submarine attack. He had previously submitted his plans for steamers to transport troops across the English channel to Napoleon. In his ideas about naval warfare Fulton was fifty to one hundred years ahead of his day.

American ships of war were the first to carry long-ranged guns. Our "long Toms" that figured in the War of 1812 far outranged any guns mounted on British or French ships, and small American vessels were able to destroy rigging and check pursuit while keeping out of range of their adversaries' guns. The most notable change in naval construction recorded in history followed the launching of the Monitor, which showed the way to the heavily-armed dreadnought with its big gun turrets as we see it to-day.

On land American soldiers proved the superiority of the rifle over the smooth-bore musket and Americans invented the breech loader and the repeating rifle with fixed ammunition under the spur of our Civil war. Army officers were slow to recognize the advantages of the repeating rifle and it had to wait thirty years before it became the standard military arm. Inventors and sportsmen were far ahead of the military experts in the use of small arms. Down to the time of our little war with Spain many army officers of high rank insisted that soldiers would waste too much ammunition if armed with repeating rifles. It was easier to keep down the consumption of ammunition by handicapping the soldiers with inferior weapons than to apply themselves to the problem of keeping men on the firing line supplied with cartridges. Time and the war have proved the inefficiency of the past generation of military experts.

These reminiscences show how resourceful the American people have always been and how successfully they have risen to emergencies. They have not changed. The inventors of to-day are the greatest who have ever lived and they are reaping more generous rewards than any who preceded them. When orders for shrapnel, rifles and cannon were offered in this country nine months ago those military experts who had been saying we were unprepared found that every up-to-date machine-shop in the country could turn out military supplies almost at a moment's notice. We have the men, the money and the machinery to equip an army of a million men faster than it can be enrolled and put in shape to use arms. A single shop is said to be making a million rifles for a foreign government. A single steel plant in the East has greater capacity than the Krupp works at Essen, and this American plant is not first or second in its class in this country.

A. Such ordinances have been upheld.

Keep To The Right

Q. Where two vehicles meet on a country road, does the law compel each of them to turn to the right?

A. It is the general rule that each must turn to the right. The statutes in many states contain provisions requiring it.

A Confession As Evidence

Q. Where a criminal makes a confession, will it be admitted in evidence against him on the trial?

A. Yes, if it was freely and voluntarily made. It will not be admissible if made as the result of promises or threats.

More Than One Executor

Q. When a man makes his will, may he appoint more than one executor?

A. Yes.

Registration Laws

Q. Are registration laws always held good by the courts?

A. No. They are sometimes unconstitutional.

Misuse Of Property

Q. If the officers of a corporation misuse the property and assets of the corporation, what legal remedy is there?

A. The corporation may be dissolved by the decree of a court of equity.

Ten In The Hole

Q. A merchant with whom I have had an account claimed that I owed him forty-five dollars. My books show that the amount due him was only thirty-five dollars. I paid him the thirty-five and he accepted it, but he declined to give me a receipt showing payment in full and he insists that I still owe him ten dollars. Could I be compelled to pay him?

A. The mere fact that you paid him thirty-five dollars, and he accepted it, will not release you from the remainder of the debt, if you actually owe it. The case would have been different if the merchant had been doubtful about the amount and, in order to avoid a suit, had agreed to receive a certain sum in full satisfaction.

Mum's The Word

Q. Is a lawyer required to observe secrecy as to matters revealed to him by a client?

A. It is the general rule that a communication made by the client to his lawyer, for the purpose of obtaining professional advice and assistance, is privileged and the lawyer will not be permitted to make a disclosure of such matters.

Repair Man Must Make Good

Later I called him by 'phone and asked him to notify me when they were ready and I would call for them. He promised to do this, but, instead of doing so, he had the things delivered, and they were taken to the wrong house. They are in a damaged condition and I want to know whether I can hold the repair man responsible.

A. He will be liable.

A. Yes.

Must Stop Payment

Q. Where a bank receives a telegram ordering the payment of a draft to be stopped, is it required to obey?

A. Yes.

Rather Transparent Evidence

Q. Kindly tell me whether Roentgen or X-ray photographs are ever received by the courts as matters of evidence.

A. Yes. They have been admitted in evidence, and are generally so admissible, for the purpose of illustrating the testimony given by physicians or surgeons.

Assigning A Judgment

Q. Please inform me whether a lawyer may assign a judgment recovered by his client.

A. Not unless he has been expressly authorized by the client to do so.

But Does One Pay Bills?

Q. Where one owes a bill, must he pay this particular person or will it be sufficient if he pays some one who is acting for the man to whom the amount is due?

A. Payment should be made to the creditor or to his authorized agent. Payment made to some one who has in fact no authority to receive it will not discharge the indebtedness unless it can be shown that the creditor impliedly authorized the act or ratified it and received the benefit of it.

Twins Dressed Alike

"I've always dressed them alike," their proud mother tells us. "People think it's so attractive." Yes. She's right. It is attractive—altogether too attractive. It's so attractive that almost before they learn to talk, they've learned to show off. Their little minds have grasped the fact that people consider them unusual. Betty, encouraged by feminine exclamations of admiration, picks up the edge of her little dress and begins to pirouette. Dolly quickly learns to follow suit. With the result that by the time they reach their teens, they will be well-developed egoists. Their minds, instead of being bent on studies and healthful sports, will be introspectively turned — incessantly gauging the effect they are making on people. And by the time they reach their twenties, they will be rivals. When before they played to the gallery together, they will now regard each other with professional jealousy. Whether or not they continue to dress alike now makes no difference; the damage is done. That early dressing alike did it.

They're striking poses.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Prince's Laugh That Was Good Medicine.

"I THINK, kiddies," announced daddy, "that since you like them so well I will tell you the bedtime story tonight in verse."

"Oh, daddy, that will be fine!" cried Jack. And Evelyn urged, "Do make up some more verses, daddy."

"Well," replied daddy thoughtfully, "let's see." And then he started right in.

"In a far country long ago once lived a fat little prince, you know.

"That prince was as fat as a baseball's brother. He could roll the one way same as t'other.

"He was chubby and round and grinny and cute, and he had a good disposition to boot.

"From the day he came to this funny old earth he lived for laughter and lived for mirth.

"Now, the prince's dad and the prince's mother were not as fat as a baseball's brother.

"For they were solemn and sad and sour. You'd think they'd never seen one glad hour.

"And the rest of their court, it aped their graces, and went about with the longest faces.

"'You mustn't do this and you mustn't do that!' every one said to that little prince fat.

"In the garden and in every palace room, all he met was general gloom.

"But one fine day he watched the crowd, and then he started to laugh out loud.

"You see, my dears, they looked so glum, it was really funny. The little fat tum

"Of the little fat prince, it shook with laughter. He said, 'Excuse me, I really hafter.

"'I suppose it's a naughty thing to do, but could you see yourselves you'd laugh too.'

"And he laughed till his laugh was a regular roar, and then he just started in once more.

"And the king and the queen, they followed suit, and they chuckled and giggled and laughed to boot.

"And because of the prince's laugh that day the court became like a holiday.

"So, kiddies, my dears, when you're feeling sad a laugh will make you and others glad."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD.

Though it was late when the train from Kansas City passed through Casey, a large crowd was collected around the oil well. Men on horseback and in automobiles were packed in with those standing under the glaring electric light talking excitedly; samples of shale were passed from hand to hand and under each nose to see if there were any indications of oil. Bets ran high and stock was changing hands rapidly.

While the engine took on water, Dick and his mother sat by the open car windows listening to the fragments of high-voiced conversation that floated to them.

"This would be a good time to get rid of your stock," she said with a scornful toss of her head toward the excited group.

"Yes, I could break even tonight; perhaps a little better." Just then the train began to move.

"I wish you were well out of it. Even if they should strike oil, with a knave to manage the concern, you would never realize anything on your investment. If there is a good flow of oil in this well, he'll be able to cover up his tracks, for it will be impossible to stir people up to act."

Dick sat with his head bowed on his hand. The day's adventures had depressed him.

It was nearly one o'clock in the morning before Dick turned the key in his own door and let them into the house. It smelled stuffy and hot from being closed all the July day.

"Now, mother, do try to sleep late in the morning. This has been a wearing day and I can get my cup of coffee and toast all right. Nell has me well trained."

"Pish!" Mrs. Morton blew a gusty breath through closed lips. "I'd look well lying in bed and letting you get your breakfast. I never did such a thing in my life and I'm too old to begin."

Breakfast was on the table at the usual time. Nothing could interfere with the clock-like regularity of Mrs. Morton's rising.

"If you have time before your train goes, walk over and see the beet sugar factory. It's immense; a great thing for Fairport," said Dick at parting.

After the dishes were washed and put away and the house in perfect order, she closed and fastened the windows, let herself out and locked the door. As the new factory was near Dick's office, she decided to take the key to Dick instead of secreting it under the door mat as usual.

"I'll go over to the factory with you, mother," said Dick, when she gave him the key. "That must be Jaynes' wife in the touring car," he continued as they approached the nearly completed building swarming with laborers.

"That woman with the brass hair who is acting as a rack for the display of dry goods?" asked the old lady.

"The same. She is no Fairport product. Nell will be disappointed; she hoped this family would be a social asset." Mrs. Morton was staring disapprovingly at the highly colored woman in the machine near her.

"That large man in his shirt sleeves is Mr. Jaynes. He's a wholesouled, comfortable sort." They had stopped near the touring car and Mr. Jaynes came forward to speak to Dick.

"Good morning! Well, work is going on with a swing here. I hope to have enough machinery set up in one wing to take care of all the beets raised this summer. The farmers can see then that it will pay to make a specialty of this thing next year."

"Mother, this is Mr. Jaynes. As you are a farmer's wife, this subject will interest you," said Dick, presenting his mother.

Household Hints

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES.

To Stop Falling Hair and Promote the Growth—Boil a double handful of sage with one teaspoonful of salt and sulphur in one quart of water, (use leaf sage); strain into large bottle. Add as much quinine as you can hold on the end of a knife blade. Add to this mixture five cents' worth of bay rum, the same amount of witch hazel. Rub thoroughly into the roots of the hair. If scalp is dry use a little vaseline on the scalp; the liquid will cut the grease. Give hair good brushing when dry.

Boracic Acid, one of the simplest disinfectants, is a valuable home remedy. Mixed with vaseline it makes one of the best salves for cuts, burns, insect bites, sunburn, etc. If dusted in sleeves of coats or dresses, it will remove the odor of perspiration. Tired feet feel better after a hot foot bath, then dusted with the powder. Handkerchiefs and linens used by the sick should be steeped in a solution of it before being sent to laundry. A solution of it is fine to bathe the eyes, as it is cooling and removes the fever. It's good for many other things too numerous to mention.

GOOSEBERRY FOOL.

Take two pints of gooseberries and stew them in as little water as possible. You don't want to have a lot of juice or your fool will be sloppy. When they are quite soft, work them through a sieve. Make a thick custard. Let the gooseberries get nearly cold. Then stir the custard thoroughly into them. When the whole thing is perfectly cold serve it in a glass dish or in little custard cups.

Gooseberries which are just "on the turn" are much more acid than those which are quite green. If you get them when they are turning add a great deal of sugar or your fool will not be eatable.

GOOSEBERRY TRIFLE.

Use two pounds of gooseberries and stew them with six ounces of sugar and a very little water till they are tender. Cut three sponge cakes into three or four slices. Arrange them in a glass dish. Pour the hot stewed gooseberries over them. Let the fruit cool down a little, and then cover it with half a pint of thick custard. When the custard is cold decorate it with cherries or candied bits of angelica.

You can make this kind of trifle with almost any fruit. It is very good indeed when done with apples which have been nicely flavored with lemon rind or cloves.

SUNDAY PUDDING.

You can use almost any fruit for this pudding. Gooseberries are nice by themselves, and are also nice when mixed with a few strawberries later in the year. The ingredients are: Stewed fruit, sugar to taste, custard, thin slices of stale white bread.

Cut the crusts off thin slices of stale white bread and line the inside of a basin. Fit them neatly into one another, so that there are as few gaps as possible between them.

Stew the fruit with plenty of sugar. While it is still quite hot pour it into the basin. Cover in the top with another slice of bread. Put a saucer on the top slice, and a weight on the saucer to press down the contents of the basin. Let it stand a whole day. Then turn it out in a glass dish, and cover it with thick custard.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

San Francisco—From San Francisco, the scene of its latest demonstration, Dr. Maria Montessori's world-famous system of child-training is to be carried to China. The apostle of learning who will carry the famous system across the seas is Mrs. Wong Sun Yuo Clemens, of this city, a charity worker, and a sister of Mrs. Howard Gould. Mrs. Wong is studying under Dr. Montessori at the Palace of Education at the Exposition, where she is receiving special instruction to enable her to carry out her design. Next year Mrs. Wong will go with her Chinese husband to the Orient, and she is confident, from her knowledge of the Chinese, that they will be quick to take up the new method.

Toronto—The most successful summer course ever conducted by the Ontario Department of Education has been completed. Canada is being looked to constantly for important and advanced methods and progressive measures. Her training of women in domestic science not only has influenced the United States, but has had imitation in England. The Canadian schools have been among the pioneers in discarding final examinations in certain sections, especially in the public schools of Ottawa, where examinations, which have so long been a Damoclotan sword over the heads of pupils, have been discontinued for several years.

Detroit—The teachers' pension bill, which went into effect August 20, throughout Michigan, with the exception of the city of Detroit, is derided by Detroit educators as "worse than worthless." This view is taken because of the elimination of State aid in establishing the pension system. Detroit teachers have a permanent fund of $100,000 as a basis for a practical retirement system, and will not vote to come under the new law and risk their fund in a larger enterprise.

PRACTICAL KIMONO APRON DRESS.

No. 8782.

Of interest to women always is the inexpensive, simple, yet comfortable and good-looking house dress. Women must have light practicable clothes for their morning tasks and it would be hard to find a dress more ideally suited to this purpose than the suggestion shown above. This Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No 8782 also includes a cap. The waist has a round neck and the sleeves may be finished with a circular cuff at the elbow or with gathered sleeve protectors. The skirt is attached at raised waistline. Waist perforated to be cut off for bib effect and the skirt for shaped outline. Length of dress at center-back is 57 inches. Without seam at center front of waist all sizes require piecing in 27-inch and 36-inch material. Size 36 requires 6 yards of 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

WILL TRY COMMISSIONERS.

Elizabeth Aug. 24.—Prosecutor Alfred Stein said yesterday that he would serve notice on the five members of the Elizabeth Board of Excise that they would be tried in September on an indictment charging malfeasance in office in the transfer of the saloon license of Henry J. Greger to Felix Marx after Greger had been convicted of running a disorderly house.

Temperance

NEWS AND VIEWS

Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

Secretary Hugh F. Fox, of the United Brewers, rails against the Anti-Saloon League because, he says, they are only exploiting the temperance sentiment, and in reality are engaged in tearing things to pieces and have no constructive plans whatever.

It is an interesting, although not always an attractive, sight to see a wrecking crew tear down buildings. Now the Anti-Saloon League has a wrecking crew tearing down the old booze business, and it's a dandy. Evidently Mr. Fox hasn't seen anything but the wrecking crew at work. It is not the fault of the crew that its work has to be done before the foundations and superstructure of a nobler building can arise in its place. John Mitchell says, "For every brewery that is destroyed, a factory will arise in its stead."

We once heard Congressman Webb, of North Carolina, tell how on a certain mountain in Western North Carolina, a few years ago, you could have seen on a clear morning smoke rising from five cotton mills and from about 50 distilleries and breweries. On that same place you can stand today and see the smoke rising from 60-odd cotton mills, but not from a single brewery or distillery. This is the full Anti-Saloon League program—Society and Industhy Revolutionized.

Alexander Winton, founder and president of the Winton Motor Car Company, of Cleveland, O., says the rule barring users of liquor from his plant has been enforced since the factory opened, and expresses the belief that no well regulated factory can afford to employ men who drink even in moderation.

"We do not allow any man to enter our plant with liquor on his breath or to drink at any time, if we know it," says Mr. Winton.

"No well regulated plant can afford to employ men who drink. Men who use liquor cannot be at their best, and certainly cannot do efficient work if they are even slightly under alcoholic influence.

"I believe the use of liquor by employes will curtail the output of any plant, but we have never employed drinking men, and so we have no means of comparing our product under any other than the present conditions."

The Winton plant employs about 1,200 men in Cleveland and almost an equal number in other cities.

Georgetown, O., although it gave a small majority against the home rule measure at the election last November, became automatically wet under the Beal law. Twenty High School boys who belong to a club having as its object the welfare of the town, decided that the saloons must go from their community. With the aid of the teacher of a Bible class in the Presbyterian church, to which more than half of the boys belong, the club members procured petitions to have an election called, and with a thoroughness worthy of imitation they wenet from house to house by twos and secured signatures. After the electoin date was set both sides worked earnestly to bring out a large vote. The boys by personal interviews won to the dry cause men who had always before voted wet, and in some instances personally escorted to the polls the prohibition recruits. A victory of three to one for the dry forces rewarded their efforts.

EDITOR UP FOR CONTEMPT.

Atlantic City, Aug. 24.—The right of a newspaper editor to define a course of conduct for a judge is the issue raised by Judge Clifton C. Shinn, of the Common Pleas Court, in the contempt proceedings brought by him against the editor of the Atlantic City Press. The case was continued until tomorrow, when final arguments will be heard. The judge took exception to an editorial taking him to task by inference for failure to cause an investigation of alleged charges against a local magistrate. Editor Croasdale disclaimed any intention to criticize the court, while Judge Shinn maintained that he should have been personally interviewed.

NEWLYWEDS ARE GIVEN SURPRISE VARIETY SHOWER

A variety "shower" was given to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph O. Martin last evening at the home of Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Wheeler, 21 Mountain avenue. There were present about twenty-five relatives and friends. Instrumental and vocal numbers were rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Martin, also by Mrs. Charles F. Windham, of Washington.

The affair was a complee surprise to the young people, who will begin housekeeping this week at West Front street and Madison avenue. At an opportune moment a well-worded speech by Horace J. Martin acquainted the newlyweds with the object of the gathering, after which the many useful gifts were ushered into the parlor and unwrapped by the recipients. Refreshments were served at a late hour, and the guests departed at midnight. Mrs. Martin was formerly Miss Edith E. Wheeler. She and Mr. Martin wre married this summer

OVER $300 CONTRIBUTED TO DAY NURSERY FUND

Although friends of the children have been most generous in their offerings to help along the work of the City Union of King's Daughters at the Day Nursery and over three hundred dollars has been contributed, further donations, however small, will be especially welcomed, inasmuch as the need for more funds is felt more this summer than ever before. This work of caring for the sick children and babies is increasing and there is urgent need to meet the expenses incurred in maintaining a diet kitchen and employing a nurse who visits the homes, gives mothers instructions and advice as to the proper way of preparing food for the children and also gives her services to sick children.

Of the latter there is an unusually large number at this time of the summer, and special care must be taken in preserving their health. Fresh milk and other supplies are used in large quantities inasmuch as the growing registration at the nursery is increasing daily.

Send you donation, however small, to this office. It will be acknowledged through these columns and turned over to the nursery where it will be applied to a most worthy charity. The total fund to date is $307.20. Add your mite and help pay for the milk for some poor baby in Plainfield.

JIM COFFEY OR FRANK MORAN WILL CHASE WILLARD; HEAVIES NEED ACTION

Fight fans are expressing pleasure at recent news from Gotham. It seems that the winner of the Jim Coffey-Frank Moran bout, to be staged there shortly, is to challenge Jess Willard and engage him in a furious fight for the title.

Heavyweight affairs have been a perfect bore of late. Any occurrences of interest have been so few as to be inconsiderable and we have almost come to think that the heavy division has passed away. The appearance of the Coffey-Moran bout has warmed our hearts, however, and there now seems the possibility of a little action.

Probably never before has a man won a fighting title and then gone into such complete retirement as has Willard. It will be remembered that his victory seemed a bit more brilliant than the average, too, and for at least a week his name was sung with great heartiness and acclaim. He was the large cheese for the nonce.

But since then Jess has done less than little. He has appeared a bit in amateur theatricals, so to speak and he has displayed a few of his favorite movements. But beyond that it's been little enough. Obviously to hold his belt he must do more.

Many believe in him and soberly declare that he has all that a champ should have. It would please most of us if he proves it. Pretty soon he will have the chance.

SPEEDY WYONA CANOEISTS ENTERED IN RACE MEET

The speedy Wyona canoeists are entered in the canoe races at Lake Hopatcong this Saturday, as are the terrible Tuscaroras, of which William Schooley, who used to live hereabouts, is captain. "Cap" Schooley and his men are camping on Raccoon Island, and the Wyonas will spend a short time with them. The homeward trip will be made via the paddle route. Schooley and his Tusks are also entered in the Greenwood Lake canoe races.

JACK MARTIN IS OUT OF THE GAME

Fractured Rib Will Prevent His Playing For At Least Ten Days.

Jack Martin, the local lad, who pastimes at short for the St. Paul American Association club, who has had plenty of big league experience with the Yankees, Braves and Phillies, is again the victim of hard luck. Last week in a game between the Saints and the Columbus balltossers one of Martin's ribs was broken. The report does not state whether it was a pitched or batted ball that turned the trick, but it does say that he will be out of the game for ten days and, perhaps, longer.

Since Jack's injury the Saints have steadily dropped from first to second place. O'Leary and Harry Niles are taking Martin's place.

The injury to the Plainfielder is not his first one since joining fast company. While with the Yankees, under the Stallings regime, one of Walter Johnson's "bullet balls" collided with his face and he was knocked completely out. This accident did more to cause Jack's release than any other factor. Then, too, he was spiked twice and had to lay off in each case for a week or ten days.

All local fans hope that the present misfortune will not keep the "pepper boy" out of the game for any lengthy period. Just now his chances of getting back into the speed circle, are unusually good.

ARLIE LATHAM PRESENTED WITH A BLUE ENVELOPE

The league in which Dave Driscoll, Joe Harter, Waly Cosgrove, Jimmy Clinton, Bill Stallings, "Red" Grimes and the rest of the ex-Central New Jersey leaguers perform is certainly a peevish circuit. At least the fans and players are awfully hard on the "umps." Arlie Latham, once a Giant, now a delicatessen dealer and spasmodic journalist, was presented with his walking papers yesterday. His inability to see the plate in the recent Hackettstown-Dover conflict was the immediate cause of his release. The report does not say whether any of the above-mentioned players "kicked" on any of his decisions, but several of the amateur umps around these parts are willing to wage a dollar to a doughnut that they did.

THROCKMORTON AND MATHEY TO COMPETE IN TOURNEY

Among the 128 tennis players who will compete in the national championships at Forest Hills, L. I., next Monday, two are, at least, intimately known in this city. Harold Throckmorton, of Ilderan, the eighteen-year-old schoolboy wonder, has been designated to the lower half as has Dean Mathey, the Cranford crack. In the upper half, Maurice E. McLoughlin, Karl Behr and R Norris Williams, 2d, are the most important contestants.

It is expected that Mathey, Throckmorton et al, will give McLoughlin and the rest of the stars of equal magnitude a run for the honors.

It is thought that, unless inclement weather intervenes, the tourney will close on September 7. The doubles matches in which McLoughlin and Bundy will defend their title against Griffen and Johnston, the challengers, will be run off either on Saturday, September 4, or on Labor Day.

"CHICK" CURTIS FAILED TO SHINE

Platt Adams, However, Captured Two Firsts at Panama Exposition Games.

"Chick" Curtis, the Newark pole vaulter, who recently competed in the Panama-Pacific Exposition games as the Eastern vaulting representative and who spoiled Ralph Runyon's chances of a trip to the coast, did not shine at the meet. In fact, his showing was really poor. Although he easily vaulted 12 feet 3 inches earlier in the season he could not make 12 feet in the coast competition, Belah, the winner, clearing the bar at 12 feet 9 inches.

Platt Adams, formerly a resident of this city, but now a citizen of Newark, showed up well, capturing two firsts. He took the running broad jump with ease and experienced little difficulty in capturing the hop, step and jump. Adams stated that Curtis' poor showing was doubtlessly due to the fact that his injured foot was troubling him. He added that the wind aided the vaulters greatly.

It is the opinion of many that Curtis ought to have stayed home when Pilgrim advised his doing so. Runyon and Caldwell, the next two men in line, it is believed, could have accomplished as much as he. At any rate the Michelin meet will tell.

ROD AND REEL

The fishermen that braved the sea off Sandy Hook, Saturday, had some time, and it hardly paid for the few fish they caught. The weather wasn't much better Sunday, but still there were a number of boats from the cities on the fishing grounds. Their passengers caught weakfish, fluke and croakers.

Barnegat Bay fishing must pick up or else it will lose its prestige. There is no fun making the trip from Plainfield to catch four or five fish, and people soon get tired of it. One party of four fishing there Saturday caught three weakfish that cost them $6 a pound.

Pickerel fishing will take on new life after Labor Day, as that will be the end of the fast motorboat season on Lake Hopatcong. Thomas Clifford, one of the veterans, said that the powerboats have ruined the fishing this summer, but there seems to be no way in which it can be stopped and it is a question if any one wanted it stopped. Tom caught eleven pickerel Saturday evening.

We are promised a run of clear weather which will mean good salt water fishing if the promise holds good. There is a large school of pound bluefish coming this way from the Boston fishing waters and they should strike in here about tomorrow. Kingfish are plentiful in the surf and lifesavers along the coast report weakfish moving in shore.

Crabs are running well in Spermicity Cove, below the dyke off the Highlands, but at present they are light weight, but will improve greatly by September, when the best fishing is anticipated. Indications are good for weaks and blues. Mossbunkers are making their appearance. They are the pilots or forerunners of the blues, and the Shrewsbury no doubt will be the destination of crowds of Plainfield and suburban fishermen from now on till Labor Day.

Fishermen on the Belmar pier hit into the weakfish and bluefish in lively fashion Friday night and Saturday. The blues are all along the Jersey coast now, and those who are fortunate enough to find the schools enjoy rare sport. One novice who had never fished before sat on the Sharp River jetty with a drop line and hauled in a four-and-a-half-pound weakfish and then a six-and-a-half-pound striped bass inside half an hour. Others fished for hours without getting a strike. The blues were breaking again yesterday just off the Belmar pier and farther up near Allenhurst. The water was very rough.

Fishing is an erratic proposition. Some of the members of the National Fishing Club went out on the Freeport boats last week at the Cholera Banks, and every man on board had a butter tub full of sea bass and porgies. A short distance away two other boats lay anchored, and the catches did not average half a dozen fish to the man. When a captain is fortunate enough to get his bearing so closely that he can lay the boat right on the spot, there are plenty of fish to be had.

At Horse Shoe, off the Highlands, weaks are reported as biting well.

That funny fellow Scoop is on the classified page.

AMATEUR BALL JINGLES

The brand of sportsmanship exhibited by the Baptists on Saturday, when the Tab manager requested that the playing be discontinued after one of his players broke a leg, is indeed worthy of favorable comment. The Baptists had a swell chance to annex the battle and a little argument on their part would have induced the Abstainers into finishing the game in a half-hearted way. But Dan Randolph did not resort to any such tactics He left the decision to Jimmy Monahan, the Tab leader, who asked that the affair be called off for the afternoon. His request was granted at once.

The Hope Chapel team had in its line-up a new member Saturday. Frank Conti, who has been playing with the Levgars for some time. He is a resident of High Bridge and has a brother, who is their regular twirler. This fellow will shoot the slants over for the Hopes next Saturday when the Tabs are the visiting team. Frank says it's good night, Tabs.

Dick Schott met with singular success at Hopewell last Saturday, although he failed to lead his mates to victory. He battled with the best Flemington had to offer for fourteen frames and at the finish neither team had advanced to the one run station.

The accident to Frank Brennan cripples the Abstainers' forces not a little. Brennan could play any position to which he was assigned and his work in all of them was always of the best. Monahan sure has a great problem before him and he will have to scout around to find someone to take the "Kid's" place.

My, what a wing that boy Rosenson has. Holding the league leading Netherwoods to three bingles is by no means a daily occurrence. Few fans predicted even a fair showing for the Clintons, Saturday, and the sport scribe who would dare to announce that the East Enders were to get the trimming they did, would have been a candidate for the undertaker.

Those Brooklyn Cayugas were certainly a husky troupe. Here's how one fan described them to us. "One of the 'Canucks' was twice as big as 'Babe' Gleason." Evidently the youth in question was some tall.

LeRoy Apgar and Herbert Pennoyer must have been hungry towards the end of the argument Saturday. Both these young men made successful attempts to take a trip home. Russ Stewart, presiding at the "eats" counter, failed to stop them.

Among the applicants for a Carnegie medal is one "Gawge" Miller, who claims that he saved the life of the Saurer pennant hopes by allowing the Chapelites to connect with his slants only six times in their recent melee. Nine signers have aided his petition. They include eight of his fellow players and the attendance.

Cut the grass on Avon Oval, ye tea drinkers. This edict comes not from us, but from the managers of several local teams who have chanced to perform there.

The latest from the trenches—the Plainfield A. A. claims the Sunday baseball title.

What do you think of this lad Kachelreis? Personally, we think he's trying to throw away a perfectly good arm.

The baseball writers' Hall of Fame has added to the list the name of Lohsen. Under his picture one may read this caption: "Error makers." However, he is making a game effort to belie the title. Keep at it, old top, stick to it.

PENN STATE COACH.

Charley Brickley, ex-captain of the Harvard football team, will coach the eleven at Penn State this fall as assistant to Dick Harlow, chosen by the Athletic Association to succeed Bill Hollenbeck. Brickley will be of great assistance to Harlow, who contemplates changing the entire system of football at the college. There will be a big staff of coaches when the season opens, many of them former Penn State men. Bud Whitney, captain of the 1914 Dartmouth eleven, will also assist Harlow.

OPENING OF FOOTBALL SEASON DRAWING NEAR

Just one month from tomorrow the Rutgers football season will open much to the joy of the gridiron followers and to the disgust of the World Series anticipant. A few of the colleges will begin hostilities on September 18, but the New Brunswick lads' first argument will be with Albright, at the Middlesex county seat. At present the Garnet boys are hard at work training at Eatontown, and among those who have reported to Coach Sanford and "Cap" Toohey are Nash, Bracher, White, Garrett, Seiler, Scarr, Whitpen, Austin, Bolby, Tallman, Rockerfgeller and Hasbrook.

Colgate, where Monroe Good is securing his college education, will play West Point on October 16, and the local pigskin artist is almost sure to engage in the argument.

ENDORSE BABCOCK FOR RE-ELECTION

Democratic Club Vote to Support G .O. P. Councilman at Coming Primaries.

REVILLE FOR ASSEMBLY

Messrs. Martin, Lapsley, Galbraith and Senger Endorsed For Council —Claybrook Will Also Be Urged to Seek a Re-nomination.

The meeting last night of the Plainfield Democratic Club in headquarters, Park and North avenues, was a large and enthusiastic one and was the last regular gathering of the local Democratic organization before the primaries. Candidates were discussed and the club made several endorsements in addition to framing up a slate.

Theodore Martin, Democratic councilman from the First ward, was endorsed for re-election to the office. Howard Lapsley was endorsed to represent the Second ward; Dennis Galbraith the Third ward, and Charles Senger the Fourth ward.

Councilman Richard A. Claybrook, Democrat, councilman-at-large, was enthusiastically endorsed for re-election. His career in the Council was referred to in glowing terms and he was highly complimented. The endorsement of his name by the club was unanimous. Mr. Claybrook is also president of the club.

An unusual event took place before the club adjourned. It was no less than an endorsement of Councilman Juan A. Babcock, also councilman-at-large, but a Republican. Mr. Babcock's career as a public official was alluded to in highly complimentary terms and the club members will exert their influence to see that he is re-elected.

This action was a return compliment for the action of the Second Ward Republican Club. At the meeting of this organization last week the members endorsed Mr. Claybrook, Democrat, for re-election.

Patrick J. Reville, a former councilman and census supervisor, who also was an aspirant to the position of postmaster against the present postmaster, Alvin E. Hoagland, is a candidate for Assembly and was present at the meeting last night with his petition. This petition was circulated among the members and generally signed.

The club also went on record as favoring a small board of freeholders.

PLAYGROUND EXHIBIT.

The summer playground exhibit at the Bryant School will be held tomorrow afternoon on the East Fifth street yard beginning at 2:30 o'clock. An unusually comprehensive display of basketry, waste baskets, sewing baskets, and trays made by the pupils will probably excite more attention than anything else, many of the pieces being the source of pride to the makers as well as the teachers in charge. The display is the result of the industry of the pupils under the supervision of Miss Harriet Moe. Games, relay races and dances will figure prominently in the program of the afternoon. A cordial invitation is extended to the parents and friends of the pupils to attend the exhibit.

A SCIENTIFIC BUTTERMILK.

The recent appearance of a real Bulgarian buttermilk at the soda water fountains and restaurants of the city is a welcome refreshment to hot weather sufferers. Aside from a sense of local pride that a scientifically prepared product is now made at the Woodbrook Farms in Plainfield, it is common knowledge among doctors that a general increase in the drinking of buttermilk is likely to produce a beneficial effect on the health of the community.

The peach and ice cream festival which will be given by the Ladies' Aid Society, of St. Peter's Lutheran church, will be held tomorrow afternoon and evening, on the lawn of the church, at Grove street and Mercer avenue.

COLLECTORSHIP JOB CAUSES PERPLEXITY

So Many Good Men Want Place Borough Council Is Having Trouble.

Members of the North Plainfield Council will caucus tonight with Mayor Clark, on the matter of choosing a successor to the late George F. Brown as borough tax collector. Indications today were that the gathering is not to have an easy time of it, for although the appointment is only for four months, there are a score or more of active candidates, and about fifty people who would like to fill the place. Among those who have been prominently mentioned are William O. Wirth, Frederick A. Martin, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, William J. Trembath, Frank Rowley, James Arnold, Guy B. Peck, William A. Cochran and Councilman Julius Stahl. Mr. Stahl, however, has denied that he will be a candidate, and has told a number of friends that he cannot understand why his name has been put forward.

Of those mentioned Mr. Vanderhoef and Mr. Martin have announced that whether or not they are appointed by the Council, when it meets Friday night, they will be candidates for the place in the Republican primary next month. It is probable that some of the others mentioned may also seek it.

Mr. Vanderhoef's friends feel that he is peculiarly fitted for the place because of his long residence in the borough; his experience as secretary of the Union Building and Loan Association, with the handling of over $2,000,000 since he first took the place; as a banker, having been one of the incorporators and a director in The State Trust Company, during which time he has been chairman of the real estate and loan committee. Mr. Vanderhoef also holds an important position as a member of the executive committee of the Improved Order of Heptasophs, a fraternal organization with 70,000 members, and he has been identified with the Woodhull & Martin Company in this city in an executive capacity for sixteen years. He has been a staunch Republican party worker in North Plainfield, and is at present president of the Board of Health there, having served four years. His friends insist that these qualifications, coupled with a pleasing personality make him a desirable man for the place.

Mr. Martin is also being urged because of his peculiar fitness for the position. For ten years he was connected with the office under Collector Brown, and during one year of that time handled all of the tax collector's work, while Mr. Brown was ill. He is thoroughly conversant with all the details of the office, and would be prepared to step in and take the work over without any instruction, and causing no delay such as might be occasioned by a new man. He is actively engaged in the real estate business in this city as head of the Frederick A. Martin Company, which however, would not interfere with his doing the work of the collector's office.

With the available timber, each of whom has at least one friend in the Council, the prospects are that whoever gets the place will have to face a fight in the primary to retain it. Each contestant feels, however, that there is a tacit advantage to be gained by having the appointment for the temporary term, preliminary to the fight for the nomination at the primaries.

LIGHTNING STRIKES NEW MARKET BARN; LOSS $1,000

A blacksmith shop owned by T. W. Bilyou, of New Market, was struck by lightning during the severe electrical storm last evening and caught fire. The Bilyou family were all asleep at the time, but Mrs. Bilyou awaking for some reason, discovered the fire and notified the New Market department, but they arrived too late to prevent the entire loss of the building.

The New Market pond is near the shop, but as the firemen had no means of drawing the water from it, chemicals were used to prevent the destruction of the estate. The total loss amounts to about a thousand dollars. All the stock in addition to the unfinished work and the building itself was destroyed.

LIZZIE WILL BE GOOD.

Lizzie Ronzo helped herself to a bicycle belonging to Mrs. Paretti yesterday and took a ride on it, although she insisted that she had no intention of stealing it, when questioned by Judge DeMeza this morning. She apologized to Mrs. Perreti in court, and promised the judge that she would stay home and be a good girl, and help her mother hereafter. She is sixteen years old.

THE CONFESSIONS OF AN "AD MAN"

H. E. Bowen, Formerly With The Herald, Tells Interesting Story.

PERSONAL SKETCHES

After Nearly Half Century In Advertising Work, Plainfielder Says He Is Glad to Enjoy Well-Earned Rest.

Under the caption of "Ad Man's Confessions," this week's Editor and Publisher contains an interesting story, it being the experiences of Henry E. Bowen, of this city, in securing big advertisements for the New York Herald. Mr. Bowen recently resigned his position with the Herald after a long and faithful service. Mr. Bowen's story follows:

"Thanks for your appreciative 'obituary.' After a half century in advertising work I am glad to enjoy a rest at last and be able to read all the good things you say about me and my life work. Your very kind invitation to write out some of my varied experiences during twenty years' service with the New York Herald I accept with pleasure. In swopping stories with my old friend, 'Pop' Freeman, he would quaintly remark: 'Bowen, your confessions would make good reading for all us boys.'

"If, in my personal sketches I reveal some of the secrets of the office, I hope my good friends on the Herald will pardon me. I do not intend to do any harm, and my confessions may be deemed very good advertising for the Herald. This is not my main purpose, as I hope whatever I write may stimulate the minds of all

JERSEY CENTRAL VETERANS' OUTING

Ninth Annual Affair at the Highlands Yesterday Was Largely Attended.

Joseph A. Haynes, of Craig place, the borough, the president, and John Rowland, of this city, were among those who attended the ninth annual outing of the New Jersey Central Veterans' Association at Bamboo Hall, the Highlands, yesterday. There was a large gathering of the members of the association as well as officials of the railroad, covers being laid for 250 at the dinner. The feast was followed by a number of excellent speeches.

Mr. Haynes is the oldest member of the association. He was in the employ of the New Jersey Central for fifty-three years prior to eight years ago when he was retired by the company. During the last years of his service with the company he was station agent in this city, a position which he filled with much credit. Mr. Haynes now lives in retirement at his home on Craig place. During the summer he and his wife enjoy frequent trips to Lake Hopatcong. The veterans' association now numbers about 300 members.

PERCY MC VOY LIKELY FIRST WARD CANDIDATE

Percy McVoy was among those mentioned for the First ward Councilmanic nomination at a meting of the First Ward Republican Club held in the office of V. W. Nash Jr., last night, but the endorsement of any candidate was laid over for one week. It is understood that there are other likely candidates for the office to succeed Councilman Martin, who is a Democrat.

In the absence of Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., the president of the club, Mr. Nash, first vice-president, presided. There was a considerable discussion regarding the local political situation, and all present were enthusiastic over the outlook.

WILLIAM McCANN'S ADVENTUROUS CAREER

Borough Youth Planned to See the World On $15 of Mother's Money.

The adventurous career of William McCann, the ten-year-old son of Mrs. Mary L. McCann, of 18 Duer street, North Plainfield, came to an abrupt end in Westfield yesterday, when he was picked up by a policeman and detained until his mother came for him.

Willie grew tired of a prosaic existence around home, and discovering a pocketbook containing $15 under the pillow of his mother's bed, secretly took it and made a hurried departure from the neighborhood.

With so much money at his disposal, the boy began to wonder how he could spend it. Passing the M. C. Van Arsdale shoe store, he was attracted by the array of tan shoes on display in the show window, and entering the store, bought a pair of $2.50 ones. These he put on, carrying the old ones strapped to his back. The wanderlust spirit overtaking him, he next boarded a Main Line trolley, paying his fare like a man, and rode as far as Westfield, where he decided to alight and spend some more money.

His first purchase in Westfield was a penknife. Next he dropped twenty-five cents in a singing machine at the Central Railroad station and enjoyed the music for some time. Then he purchased a "hot dog," some soda water, a book of Dutch jokes, some peanuts and a bag of cakes. Having made the rounds of the Westfield stores, Willie was about heading for the shopping centres of New York when Acting Chief of Police Caufield, whose attention had been called to the young spendthrift and who had been notified by the North Plainfield police to be on the look-out for the boy, placed him under arrest, and held him until his mother could come and get him. Of the amount stolen, the boy had $11.05 left. No charge was made against him by his mother, but it is likely that he will be placed in an institution for incorrigible children.

TO DISCUSS CONSOLIDATION.

Franklin Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night, in its lodge rooms on Front street. A large attendance is desired as the question of consolidating with the other Junior organizations in the city will be discussed.

SIXTY-FIVE YEARS NO BURDEN TO JIM

United States Senator Martine Can Do Day's Work With Best of Men.

HAS HAD EVENTFUL LIFE

Up Every Morning at 5:30 and Does What Many Consider a Day's Work Before Most People Have Breakfast.

United States Senator James E. Martine is celebrating his sixty-fifth birthday today. He's having an easier time of it than he does on other days, though, and that is because he is away on the annual outing of the Union county Democrats, along with about fifteen hundred others of the faithful. The Senator is a man who just hates work when he is comfortably settled at his home on Cedarbrook road, in this city. He hates it so that he gets up at 5:30 every morning and cuts an acre of lawn with the lawn mower, prunes a few fruit trees, picks the vegetables for the day's use, and perhaps walks a quarter of a mile, more or less, to some neighbor's with a big basket of his choicest peaches, which accumulate more rapidly than his own household can dispose of them. For the Senator is not farming for profit, but merely for the love of it.

All of the foregoing is just what the Senator did this morning before he took the 8:36 train for Elizabeth to go on the outing. If he were home he would probably paint one side of the house or barn, lay a few pieces of stone sidewalk, greet some ten or fifteen politicians or neighbors, and have time to read the New York

MANY NOTABLES AT BABY PARADE

Local Entrants Attract Favorable Attention at Asbury Park Affair.

Asbury Park, Aug. 25.—One hundred thousand spectators, including Acting Governor Walter E. Edge, of New Jersey; Miss Mary Pickford, the moving picture star, the Chilian Ambassador to the United States, and other notables, today saw the twenty-fifth annual baby parade on Ocean avenue here. Seven hundred children from all parts of the United States and many from foreign countries participated in the pageant. With coaches gaily decorated with flowers and bunting, in fancy costumes, burlesque, and posed in tableaux on floats and pony drawn vehicles, the children passed in proud review before the judges who awarded prizes valued at $5,000.

Among the participants in the parade were the following from Plainfield: Logan Murphy, five years; Dorothy Murphy, six years; Robert Murphy nine years; Katherine and Louis Evans and Mildred and Edith Angerbauer.

MRS. ANNA HENNESSY DIES IN 38TH YEAR

Mrs. Anna Hennessy, aged thirty-eight years, of Oakwood avenue, Netherwood died this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital where she was a patient for several weeks. Beside her husband, eight children survive her. The latter are: Caroline, Edward, Mary, Arthur, Esther, Margaret, Cornelius and Anna Henessy. The last named is two weeks old. Mrs. Hennessy also leaves her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gunther. One brother, Otto Gunther, also survives her.

The funeral will be held at the late home Saturday morning, and later at St. Mary's church, where a mass of requiem will be celebrated. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

SHIRTWAIST DANCE.

A large attendance at the shirtwaist dance to be held tomorrow night by the local lodge of Elks is expected. The committee having the coming outing to Atlantic City in charge is making all arrangements for the affair and a good time is promised. Music for dancing will be furnished by an Edison diamond disk phonograph and the latest selections will be played.

FUNERAL OF ROBERT HART, JR.

The funeral of Robert J. Hart, Jr., who died Sunday in Hartford, Conn., was held this morning from the residence of his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Burnett, on Washington street, and later from St. Mary's church, Father McDonald officiating. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MANY LOCAL MEN ON DEMOCRATIC OUTING

Senator Martine Led Plainfield Delegation to Witzel's Grove This Morning.

Plainfield was well represented on the outing of the Union county Democrats, which left Elizabeth this morning for Witzel's Point Grove. United States Senator James E. Martine, Transfer Tax Appraiser John P. Owens, District Court Judge Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., and Constable George York, Councilman Theodore Martin, LeRoy J. Ellis, John W. Caulfield, James J. McCann, Lewis Moraller, Walter Linbarger, Henry Rogers, Otto Linke, Jeremiah Callahan, John F. Casey, Sr., John Connolly, Henry Windham James Prindle, Charles Higgins, Frank Wagner and James P Cullen were included in the local leaders of the party who went along.

The outing is the annual excursion of the Elizabeth Democratic City Executive Committee, but there are hundreds of suburban Democrats and up-State Democrats along, for the fame of the excursion is not confined to the county boundaries.

Not a single pasteboard was accepted at the gangplank of the steamer Sirius this morning unless it was duly countersigned, and the committee was at headquarters, 21 Broad street, Elizabeth, last evening for that purpose.

The Sirius is one of the largest and best of the Iron Steamboat Company's vessels. Witzel's Grove is equally popular, and there was a big assembling of the clans when the Democrats put off to Witzel's this morning in the good ship Sirius.

GOLD LIFE MEMBERSHIP CARD FOR F. H. SMITH

At a meeting of the Plainfield Lodge of Elks tonight a gold life membership card will be presented to Frank H. Smith, past exalted ruler, as a testimonial of the appreciation of the lodge members for what he has done for Elkdom in this city.

At the same time the women who gave a card party some time ago to raise money to purchase a banner for the lodge, will make that presentation also. This banner will be carried by the Plainfield lodge in the parade to be held in Atlantic City this fall in connection with the annual convention.

CHARLES HARRIS SAYS HE WAS ATTACKED BY DOG

A complaint concerning a dog was made to the North Plainfield police yesterday afternoon by Charles Harris, of Steiner place. He claimed he was bitten by a dog belonging to Mrs. James Conroy, of 9 Steiner place. Harris told Chief Marshal Weiss that the dog had darted out at him as he was passing the house and had sunk its teeth in his leg, tearing his clothing and leaving a bad wound.

Harris was advised to seek a physician and have the wound cauterized, and to make a formal complaint against the owner of the dog before Recorder Hand. The police say that they have had numerous complaints about this dog.

HOTEL NETHERWOOD TO HAVE NEW PROPRIETOR SOON

B. Erickson, night clerk at the Hotel Netherwood, who issued a statement through the Daily Press, yesterday, regarding the charge of illegal liquor selling at the hotel, made against the management by the Plainfield police, is authority for the statement that Adolph Ruehl, the present proprietor, will relinquish the proprietorship of the house in about two weeks and turn the hotel over to an experienced hotel woman.

The future owner is capable, Mr. Erickson said, and has unlimited capital at her disposal. On just what lines the hotel will be conducted after the change in management comes about the night clerk did not know.

DUMP FIRE EXTINGUISHED.

The North Plainfield police and health authorities report that at last the fire in the rubbish on the dumping ground on Greenbrook road is out. The owner of the property notified Chief Marshal Weiss yesterday afternoon that the last vestige of fire had been extinguished, and an investigation of the dumping grounds last night bore out this statement. The residents of that section of the borough are relieved to know this, as the stench arising from the burning rubbish and debris at times is more than they can stand.

RESUME ACTIVITY AT DARDANELLES

Cruisers Penetrate Straits and Bombard Forts—Aeros Attack Constantinople.

WASHINGTON WAITING

Will Not Take Action In Arabic Matter Until Von Bernstorff Presents German Report—Page's Secretary Coming With Affidavits.

Athens, Aug. 25—Two allied cruisers penetrated the Dardanelles Sunday and bombarded the Turkish batteries at Gastanea, according to a despatch from Mitylene.

Four Turkish sloops carrying troops to Gallipoli Peninsula and to Lapsaki, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, were sunk today by a British submarine in the Sea of Mamora.

A Russian aeroplane squadron bombarded the outskirts of Constantinople, resulting in the death or injury of 41 persons, of which 30 were Turks, 8 Greeks and 3 Armenians. The attacks took place on Monday in the Adriatic suburbs of the city.

The Turkish minister of war has ordered 40,000 reinforcements sent to Gallipoli Peninsula.

Paris, Aug. 25—British troops at the Dardanelles, reinforced by troops recently landed at Cuvla Bay, have resumed the offensive. The war office today announced that the left wing of the English army had captured 800 yards of Turkish trenches.

Regarding operations in the Dardanelles, the French war statement today says:

"On August 20 our fleet bombarded successfully the point of disembarking at Akbashilian, on the Europe hill to the north of Nagara. Despite the violent fire of numerous batteries directed upon him, one of our aviators sunk at anchorage a large Turkish transport.'

Today's French war statement also says: "In Artois in all the sectors to the north of Arras, the cannonade was rather sharp during the night. Some combats with grenades were waged at Souchez and Neuville. In the region around Roye and Lassigny there was an artillery duel which was violent all the time. In Champagne and in the Argonne only some minor conflicts were reported."

London, Aug. 25—Clifford N. Carver, private secretary to Ambassador Page, left London today for America. He is believed to be carrying to Washington the official report of the United States embassy on the destruction of the Arabic.

Two divisions of Italian troops are being pushed to the Dardanelles. This statement was received by the London Star from its correspondent at Athens.

Today's official casualty list covering all British fronts gives the number of officers 114, of whom 35 were killed, and that of men at 984, of whom 174 were killed. This makes today's casualty list 1,098, of whom 309 were killed.

Washington, Aug. 25—Asbassador Page's message, containing summaries of the testimony he has obtained from survivors of the Arabic has cleared up all doubt in the minds of officials here that she was sunk without warning, although more evidence of the same tenor is expected. But if Germany fulfills the implied promise in Ambassador von Bernstorff's telegram, and accompanies its disavowal of the act of the submarine commander with an apology and satisfactory assurances such an "accident" will not occur again, it is believed that the President will accept that statement and the incident will be closed.

In spite of the bitter feeling in administration circles, no effort has been made to correct the impression which was allowed to go out yesterday that the President was determined upon a course of drastice action as soon as the evidence is all in hand. There is an evident purpose on the part of the administration leaders to let the country know that the period of writing notes has passed and that so far as Germany and the submarine warfare is concerned this government will speak hereafter by actions and not by words.

The administration has not at any time believed Germany would be unable to make a satisfactry explanation if she chose to do so. That is to say, the President did not want the United States dragged into the European struggle, was convinced that the people were similarly averse to participation in the war, and intended to accept as satisfactory any reasonable explanation Berlin might make, if it was offered obviously in a conciliatory spirit.

It was true that the German government did not profess to know the circumstances of the Bulletin No. 7.

NECCO SWEETS are made by the New England Confectionery Company of Boston. This great concern employs a physician as a Factory Inspector, to protect it against accidents in the works. He made this report:

Small quantities of alcohol, such as would produce no visible signs of intoxication, are yet sufficient to interfere with mental alertness. The effect of these small doses upon the consumer is that he is unable to concentrate his mind as closely on his work as when he is free from alcohol. He becomes careless and is apt to take chances which he would not think of taking in his natural condition. The result is that the wage-earner who has a "drink or two" on his way to work is making himself liable to injury.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Plainfield Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed—to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders, is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. The following advice of one who has suffered will prove comforting to hundreds of Plainfield readers.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, says: "I suffered a great deal from rheumatic pains across my back. My kidneys were weak and irregular in action, and I was in a miserable condition for months. Nothing I tried seemed to give me any relief until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's drug store. They seemed to take hold at once, removing the rheumatic pains and regulating the action of my kidneys. They improved my condition so much that I soon felt like a different person."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Gardner had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

CONFESSIONS OF AN "AD MAN"

advertising solicitors who each week read your journal, and that they may realize that there is something worth while in the strenuous work they are doing.

"I was engaged by Albert Fox to work on the Herald on October 1, 1895; and it is indeed strange that on the morning of July 19 last, when I handed in my resignation and bade good bye to all my twenty years' business, my farewell was said to my old boss, Mr. Fox, while he was opening his desk and resuming his connection with the paper after an absence of seventeen years.

"My work in the advertising department was directly under experienced men—a rare list: Fox, 'Tom' Evans, Gillam and DeWitt.

"My biggest work for any one issue was on the Christmas Herald in 1900. The advertising I turned in amounted to $7,000, including three colored pages, each costing $500; and these four advertisements were all from whiskey firms: Wilson Whiskey, Old Crow, Maryland Club and Duffy's Malt Whiskey. I was greatly amused to read an item in the leading wine and spirit organ, the following week, that there were rumors in town that the Whiskey Trust had purchased the Herald.

"Shortly after, I met Colonel Duffy, who charged me with going to his competitors and getting their advertising by giving them the 'tip' that Duffy had taken a page. My reply was: 'Colonel, if I had gone and tried to get their business on any such 'tip,' I should have been unsuccessful. Not a page would I have secured if they had been told that Duffy's Malt Whiskey had been booked!'

"The largest single order I ever received was from George P. Rowell. He offered to take two pages in colors every Sunday for a year, amounting to $104,000, provided the Herald would give an exchange order of two pages in Printers' Ink for the same period, amounting to about $16,000—he agreeing to pay cash for the difference. Without referring to the office I turned down his order, as the positive rule in the Herald was that no conditional order could be handled by any representative of the paper. However, a week later I landed an order from Mr. Rowell for a $1,000 page, every other Sunday, for one year, amounting to $26,000 in cold cash and no exchange advertising!

"One day, while calling on Mr. Rowell, I saw on his desk a pile of page proofs of Ripans Tabules. He told me that it was a six-page order for 'Pop' Freeman's paper. I said: 'Let me have it also for the Herald. Coming out in two big papers Sunday it will take the town by storm.' I left his office with the copy and order, and as I was going out of the door met Freeman coming in. I told him of my good luck. 'The hell you say!' he exclaimed. My reply was: 'Yes; but as your paper has seven columns to the page and the Herald has only six columns, your order will be for six pages, while my order is for seven pages!'

"The only comment that was made to me at the Herald office was by Chief Clerk Scully, who said: 'Bowen, how can we explain next year the loss of these forty-two columns?' His only thought was how the office record could be kept up a year thence!

"'Pop' Freeman was a month working up his big order, and I only five minutes, but we made all the newspaper men that week sit up and take notice.

"The smallest order I ever worked for came from a diamond merchant on the Bowery. When I called I found he was a pawnbroker. I spent many half-hours with him after that, and I think everybody now knows Forgotson and his six-line advertisements.

"Soon after my going with the Herald I became convinced that the best offer I could make any firm to secure its advertising was a single column for $100. I never talked contract, but stated that a column in the Herald would surely net, the following week, at least $1,000 in results. In this way I landed customer after customer; and often I would have ten firms taking a column each in a single Sunday issue. It was not long before firms like Altman and Stern changed their positions to news pages, and I had hard work not to crowd out the column customers I had made.

"The beauty about the Herald was that its returns backed up my statements. For years single-column advertisements came from my customers, and long after I have left this mortal sphere I am sure they will continue; and then I can do as my old friend Hunt, in praising my work, so often loves to say: 'Bowen, when you get up to Heaven, St. Peter will give you a welcome and say there is plenty for you to do there!'"

65 YEARS NO BURDEN TO JIM

morning World and the Plainfield Daily Press before daylight gives out. Incidentally he would take good care of three square meals, for the mere fact that a man has been here for sixty-five years is no reason in the Senator's mind why a person should not get a little exercise each day and have a good appetite.

And for all that, the Senator is one of those modest people about whose personal affairs mightly little gets in the papers. "How the devil did you discover today was my birthday?" says he to a Daily Press reporter, who congratulated him this morning. When "Who's Who in America" was given as the authority, he admitted the charge, but nary a word that could be used to add to the very brief description of the Senator's career in that worthy book, where a person is given plenty of opportunity to say nice things about himself if he wants to. There are facts on record, though, and they are worth repeating.

Mr. Martine was born in New York city, August 25, 1850, and received his early education in the public schools of that city. His parents removed to Plainfield, where his father, Daniel W. Martine, purchased a farm of 160 acres surrounding a house which was built in 1717, and in which the Senator and his wife reside at the present time. Senator Martine's father died when he was still in his teens, and since that time he has been actively engaged in directing the affairs of the estate. For thirty years he has engaged in practical farming, but in more recent times he has combined farming with real estate operations. Of the original farm 10 acres have been developed into fine residential property under the personal supervision of the Senator, and is now intersected by numerous streets, along which are beautiful homes.

It may truly be said that "Jim" is a self-made man and one of Plainfield's most successful citizens. Knowledge of the fact that he is vested in a high political office does not change him in the least, his disposition is friendly and cordial at all times. He is always free and ready to converse with anyone who attends him in Washington, and his door of all others in the Senatorial office building bears the welcome sign, "Walk Right In."

Never a self-seeker for political office, but always willing to run so the party would have a candidate, Senator Martine, at the urgent request of friends, entered the race in 1910, and succeeded John Kean as one of the United States Senators from New Jersey. He also bears the distinction of being the first Senator from an Eastern State who obtained his election as a result of a direct vote of the people. Mr. Martine was elected at a joint session of Legislature on January 23, 1911, following an exciting and notable campaign resulting from the demand that the Legislature acquiesce in the choice made in the direct primaries on September 3, 1910. He received 47,458 votes, or four times as many as his opponent. Mr. Martine's term will expire in 1917. It has been announced for some time that he will be a candidate for re-election. Although the late Senator John Kean started the movement for the erection of the new postoffice in Plainfield, Senator Martine used his influence and secured a further appropriation for the building, which promises to be one of the prize pieces of architecture in this city.

JOHN DOE, ET ALS, LOOK OUT! PILLAR OF FIRE MAY GET YOU

Another echo of the Pillar of Fire trouble which took place late in June was heard this morning, when two representatives of that noisy organization appeared at police headquarters and secured five warrants. John and Richard Doe, John Roe and John and Richard Poe, whoever they may be, want to be on the look-out, or the Holy Jumpers may get them. The representatives of the sect candidly admitted to Judge DeMeza that they had no idea who untied the tent ropes, and broke up their so-called religious meeting on a lot on Watchung avenue, but for all that they had been instructed by the "high priestess," or some other potentate at their Bound Brook colony, that they must get the warrants, "and that is all there is to it."

The police have maintained all along that they have no idea who did the work on the night in question, and are ready to arrest anyone against whom a complaint may be made, but they draw the line at trying to find the five men mentioned.

WILL EXCHANGE SPANKINGS TO QUELL STONE THROWERS

Robert Marks, colored, and Benjamin Bernstein, neighbors, at Washington avenue and Third street, agreed in the presence of Judge DeMeza this morning that they would exchange notes every night and spank their children if any stones had been thrown by the youthful members of either family during the day. Thus was settled what promised to be a long drawn-out discussion as to who threw the first stone last Friday night, when Bernstein claimed that marks had hit two of his children with stones. Both admitted that in the past they had usually been able to put a temporary curb on the younger generation by the use of a razor strop or some similar instrument of torture (for the youngsters). As they seemed to be in perfect accord themselves as to what was needed, the court dismissed the charge which Bernstein had brought against Marks. The latter was represented by V. W. Nash, Jr.

PHYSICAL DEPT. CLOSED.

Taking advantage of the dull season and the absence of so many members from the city, the Y. M. C. A. has undertaken to make necessary repairs and renovations to the physical department. The pool will be cleaned and fresh varnish and paint will be used to brighten up things. It is expected that the work will be done by September 1.

FIFTEEN BRIGHT NEW POSTS PLACED TO REGULATE TRAFFIC

Fifteen new traffic posts, painted bright red, with the warning, "Go Slow, Keep to the Right," were placed about the city this morning by Lieutenant Maurice Higgins and Driver O'Gorman, of the police department. They replace a lot of old style posts, which were not so plainly visible, and are also at many street corners where no posts were to be found before.

The corners which they occupy are at the intersection of Park avenue with Front and Second streets, North avenue, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth streets; Watchung avenue and Front street, North avenue and Fifth street; Fifth and Richmond streets, Front and Richmond streets; Sycamore avenue and Fourth street. The old posts will be put in less prominent localities, as the need developes.

MISS SUSY E. CARDNER'S FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Miss Susy E. Cardner, whose death occurred yesterday following a brief illness, was held from the home of her mother, Mrs. Helen M. Cardner, on Orange place, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Vicars Stevenson, rector of the Grace Episcopal church, conducted the service, which was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Floral offerings from friends of the young woman were especially beautiful, many set pieces being included in the number.

Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Andrew H. Stiglitz, Charles Kiederling, Charles DeGraw, J. J. Lake, Russell Beekman and E. B. Hayden.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF WHIPPING YOUTH

Charged with striking the young son of Peyes Kuminsky with a whip, August Scheleck, of Dunellen, a grocer and butcher, was arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell at Dunellen last evening. All parties reside in that borough.

Scheleck admitted the charge, but cited as an excuse that the boy had thrown dirt on some groceries in his wagon, and that this was not the first offense of the kind. The child's parents showed the court the marks on the boy's body made by the whip, and the mother testified that three other boys, who had run away, had thrown the dirt, not her boy.

Sentence was suspended upon Scheleck. Recorder Campbell stated that there was doubt in his mind as to who had thrown the dirt, and counseled Scheleck not to take the law in his own hands again, warning him that a second arraignment for a similar offense would result in a severe sentence.

HARRY DZENDZELL.

Following an illness with stomach trouble, from which he had been a patient sufferer for six years, Harry Dzendzell, aged thirty-eight years, died last night at his home, 206 Grove street. Mr. Dzendzell leaves a wife and three children. He was a communicant of St. Joseph's church, the borough. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 7:45 at the house, and at 10 o'clock in the Greek Catholic church, Elizabeth. Interment will be made in the Greek cemetery, Elizabeth.

NO LIGHT ON WHEEL.

Joseph Viti, a barber, was arrested by Patrolman Henderschott last night, for riding his wheel without a light. The officer told Judge DeMeza this morning that he had warned the same man twice before to get a lamp. After telling Viti that if he was caught again he would have to pay a ten-dollar fine, and that it would be cheaper for him to buy a lamp, the court let him go.

FUNERAL OF INFANT.

The funeral of Josephine Povedenski, who died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Povedenski, of 923 South Second street, will be held at the parental home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

QUICK SETTLEMENT.

Frederick A. Martin & Co., insurance brokers, have settled the $600 fire claim presented by August Wersing, whose barn was destroyed by fire last Friday night.

You May Find a Worker Trained and Fit to do Your Work.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

A Galley o' Fun!

NEW RULES.

Man with Lamp-Globe (to Jaggs, who has been following him closely for two blocks)—See here! Why don't you pass me? You make me nervous, tagging at my heels!

Jaggs—Shorry, old man! Would if I could, but the rules this year won't let me get ahead of the man carrying the ball!

DURING THE NEGOTIATION.

"And he has other weak points—"

"Well, Mister, if he had nothin' but strong points I wouldn't be standin' here tryin' to sell him for a song!"

TO AN EMPTY POP-BOTTLE.

(Thrown away by a madly enthusiastic maid at the ball game.)

Most fortunate! How I do envy thee
Thy happy lot! for Fortune ne'er on me
Hath smiled. Her frown—hard, stern, austere—
Hath soured my life, nor soft'ning lines I see.

Yet thou, insentient thing, has known the bliss
Of warm lips, in an eager, lingering kiss—
A long caress that drew thy life away—
Craves one a sweeter, happer death than this?

To know the favor of a maiden's eye;
Soft, clinging hands, and lips whose every sigh
Draws forth one's life—Who would not yield his soul
And with the last faint protest happy die?

FULLY REPRODUCED.

Hercules was keeping the big stick busy during his famous encounter with the Hydra. But, as you know, every time he struck off one head, two succeeded it. Finally the humor of the situation struck the strong man. "I'm sure giving a correct imitation of what Charlie Murphy is doing to New York state!" he chuckled.

EXACTING.

First Summer Girl—Oh! I broke off the engagement! He was so unreasonable!

Second Summer Girl—Indeed!

First Summer Girl—Oh, yes! Why, he objected on my going to a moonlight drive with another man!

He is not skilled in gentle art
To please his lady fair;
He does not strive to win her heart
With flowers sweet and rare.

No sonnets ripple from his pen;
No moonlight serenade
Awakes from dreams—or other men,
The shy—and sleepy—maid.

No frenzied vows he'll register,
Nor is his love revealed
By derring-do for sake of her
On any jousting field.

When he a-wooing goes, instead
Of stunts like that, he'll say:
"Let's double up, kid—on the dead,
I got a raise today!"

UP TO DATE.

Assistant—Great Scott! This next issues of ours is going to be simply rank. It'll never sell a copy.

EIGHT BLOSSOMS ON THIS NIGHT BLOOMING CEREUS

Henry J. Storrs and Miss Storrs, of Kensington avenue, invited a number of friends to their home last night to view a remarkable specimen of night blooming cereus, which came out in the early evening. The plant had six beautiful blossoms, and there were two other buds which will probably be out tonight. It is one of the finest specimens that is known to be on exhibition in this vicinity and flowers appear annually at about this time of year.

A few years ago Mr. Storrs had a specimen on exhibition in Armstrong's drug store which contained twenty-two blossoms, and there are many Plainfielders who still recall the wonder that was created at the time. The plant is not so rare as it was a few years ago, but because of blooming but once a year creates a great deal of curiosity.

Another fine speciment is in possession of Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, of Watchung avenue, and that also bloomed last night.

Another plant in this vicinity is that belonging to Mrs. I. E. Giles, of Grove street, the blossoms having appeared on Monday night, being five in number.

NETHERWOOD HOTEL MAN FAILS TO APPEAR IN COURT

In spite of the fact that a representative of Adolph Ruehl, manager of the Netherwood Hotel, appeared at police headquarters yesterday morning, and said that the latter would give himself up to answer to a charge of illegal sale of liquor, Ruehl did not put in an appearance today. The police have been unable as yet to serve the warrant which has been issued in the case because of the hotelman's absence in New York.

The principal topic which everyone discussed at headquarters this morning, including Mayor Calkins and Chief Kiely, was the interview printed exclusively in the Daily Press last night, in which B. Erickson, night clerk of the hotel, told of the use which has been made of liquor in that institution. All who commented on it seemed to be skeptical about the necessity for a half gallon of whiskey for medicinal purposes, and to be surprised that any hotel would keep beer on ice for the use of the employes. The chief, in the meantime, will try to get service on Ruehl, and have him in court within the next few days, although it is believed by many that he will not return to the State.

MRS. WILLIBAUD DIES IN ELIZABETH HOSPITAL

Mrs. Amelia Willibaud, who had been an inmate of the local almshouse from the time it was opened, died yesterday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth, after a month's illness, aged sixty-six years. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning from St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, this city, and interment will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Although a paralytic, Mrs. Willibaud had a most cheerful and sunny disposition and endeared herself to all who came in contact with her. An inmate of the almshouse so long, she had many friends who were pained to hear of her death. While she suffered more or less all the time because of her disease, Mrs. Willibaud enjoyed her usual health until three months ago, when she became much worse. She kept failing until a month ago, when she became entirely helpless, and it became necessary to commit her to an institution, where she could have constant care. She was accordingly sent to the Elizabeth Hospital. As far as is known she leaves no near relatives.

WILL REVIEW G. A. R. VETERANS

President and Cabinet Will Be Greeted By 50,000 Soldiers.

EXHIBITION DRILLS

U. S. Regulars Will Entertain at Fort Myer During the Week of the Veterans' Encampment at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25—President Wilson and members of his Cabinet will review the 50,000 G. A. R. veterans who will march down historic Pennsylvania avenue next September when the fiftieth anniversary of the grand review is held in the National Capital.

The President was in his office in the White House one sultry afternoon last July when the names of several prominent Washingtonians were announced. When the visitors were seated in the President's office, they explained they were representatives of the citizens' committee of Washington, formed to arrange the entertainment for the forty-ninth encampment and fiftieth anniversary of the grand review of the G. A. R. a the National Capital the week beginning September 27. The spokesman told the President that his help was needed because it might be the last great gathering of the veterans who saved the nation in the days of '61.

President Wilson's answer was brief, but it was decidedly to the point. He told the committee he was ready to give them his full cooperation, and agreed to review the veterans.

Acting under orders from Secretary of War Garrison and Major General Wood, United States regulars will give exhibition drills during the week of the encampment at Fort Myer, Va., a short distance from the National Capital, on the grounds adjacent. A special feature of these drills will be exhibitions by the U. S. Medical Corps.

A feature of the military demonstrations during the week will be a wig-wag signal contest between experts of the signal corps of the Civil War and of the United States Army. Lieut. George C. Round, who flashed the last signals before the fall of Richmond, will wig-wag a message from the dome of the Capitol to a comrade stationed on the roof of the treasury building, a mile distant. The old method of transmitting signals by torches will also be shown by the veterans, while the up-to-date methods of field telephony and wireless telegraphy will be demonstrated by experts of the regular army. Many of the old forts which surrounded Washington in the days of the Civil War have been put in readiness for the signal contests and at night the city will be girdled by the flashes of the signal torches in the hands of the men who defended the capital years ago.

Secretary Daniels has placed the U. S. Marine Band at the disposal of the veterans for the week, and a series of concerts will be given. The full band of sixty-five pieces will also participate in the grand review, Wednesday, September 29, when 50,000 men will be in line. The Secretary of the Navy has also promised the Washington committee that one vessel of each type in the United States Navy that can navigate the Potomac River, will be in Washington harbor and will be open for inspection by members of the G. A. R., and visitors during the encampment. The fleet will include the lighter cruisers, torpedo boats and submarines, while one of the most modern monitors will be moored beside a vessel of the same type of iron-clads of the Civil War.

In addition to the war ships, two naval aeroplanes and two hydroplanes will be brought to Washington from the aviation base at Pensacola, Fla., and exhibition flights will be given by experts of the navy.

RUTGERS GRADUATE AWARDED FRENCH CROSS FOR BRAVERY

New Brunswick, Aug. 25—A letter received here by Loren Garland from George Roeder, a Rutgers College graduate, who is one of the nurses sent abroad by Mrs. Gustave Stromberg, says he has been awarded a cross for bravery under shell fire at the front in France. He has been with an auto ambulance corps for several months.

Roeder writes under date of August 1, when he was stationed sixteen miles from Nancy, where the French line has swayed back and forth over a distance of 500 yards since the beginning of the war. The German trenches are some distance away, and thousands, Roeder says, have been killed without knowing what a German soldier looks like. Some of the shells come a distance of twelve miles. He thinks the war will end before spring, and urges those Americans who are anxious for war to give up the idea.

BOROUGH MAYOR REMOVES STREET COMMITTEE HEAD

Bound Brook, Aug. 25—Declaring that he desires at the head of the street committee one who is more in harmony with his plans Mayor George H. Packer has announced the removal of Councilman Francis Morris from that position and the appointment in his place of Councilman Louis J. Mathis.

The Mayor's action is the outcome of the fight in which members of the Borough Council have engaged all summer over the proposed paving of Main street.

Mr. Morris was an aspirant for the Mayoralty two years ago, but stepped aside when Mr. Packer was indorsed by the local Democratic Club. The ambitions of Mr. Morris have grown no less, it is said, and the present incumbent is believed desirous of serving another term. The Mayor, it is declared, has incurred the enmity of local organization Democrats and may not receive their support. There is talk of former Mayor J. T. Robinson entering the race.

Councilman Morris has retained counsel to test the legality of the Mayor's action.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

The last of the silver souvenir spoon matinees will be held at the Proctor Theatre tomorrow afternoon. The housewives have had an opportunity of securing six silver spoons during the course of the spoon matinees without the usual trouble of keeping coupons.

Blanche Sweet, the popular "movie" star, appears at this house this evening in that Paramount production, "The Warrens of Virginia," a magnificent spectacular photo-dramatization of military and domestic conditions during the days of our Civil War. "The Warrens of Virginia" ran for more than a year at the Belasco Theatre, New York, and is acknowledged to be one of the great classics of the American Civil War, showing the true motives of both sides and the sorrows of fratricidal warfare. A most wonderful picture.

Tomorrow's feature picture is "The Country Boy," a heart interest drama of rich humor and rare pathos. Herein we see how the country boy is saved from the temptations of the city, and finds a place to recuperate back in his own country town. A story of love which appeals to the heart of the most critical of moving picture theatr-goers. In this play the cast includes Marshall Neilan, playing in the title role; Florence Dorothy Greene and Florence Dagmar, a trio of "movie" stars who are hard to beat in their ability to please.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

From time to time the question comes up whether or not the dramatic critic should prophesy the business value of a theatrical production—that is, the length of run indicated by its "first night" impression. Whatever the merits of the question, it is interesting to know that the trained writers of the New York newspapers were unanimous in predicting for "Potash and Perlmutter" a long run, and they may now recall these predictions with satisfaction, since the famous play woven about Montague Glass' characters left New York city only after its second season, and then only because previous contracts made it impossible for Manager A. H. Woods to keep it there longer.

In view of the coming engagement of "Potash and Perlmutter," at the Plainfield Theater, on Saturday afternoon and night, the following extracts from some of these original New York criticisms are now pertinent:

New York Times—"Potash and Perlmutter" is certain to be doing business at the same old stand long after the winter styles are 'passe' and the salesmen on the road are showing summer samples.

New York Herald—"Everybody seemed to think that the firm had done a great night's work, and that nothing short of a panic would prevent them being right there doing business for a long time to come. It wouldn't be surprising to see them showing the spring and summer goods in the same place.

New York American—"Potash and Perlmutter opened a cloak and suit establishment in the Joel M. Cohan Theayter last night y'understand, and it looks like they vill have it a successful business.

"Had a continental dramatist written 'Seven Keys to Baldpate,'" says J. Bernard Rethy in The International, "we would have had no end of lengthy discussions about its merits and defects. But because it is the work of George M. Cohan, the former star performer in vaudeville, this very remarkable comedy has been criticised with a certain air of condescension and with that particular tone of superciliousness that is so characteristic of the 'cultured' man.

"There are passages in this play that any dramatist might have been proud to have written. Here is a savage satire, stinging and truthful. There is one scene in particular that is truly remarkable. Five men and a woman are seated in the sitting room of a deserted summer hotel. Outside a winter storm is madly blowing. In a big game for money and power these people have lost everything. Deeming all to be gone and seeing no hope left for them in this world, they bare their naked souls to each other with shameless courage. Each speaks for himself—bitterly and with terrible earnestness. There is now no attempt to conceal anything, no beating about the bush, no timid delicacy. Only the natural baseness which seems so much a part of almost every human being, asserts itself in this crisis sharply and with startling clarity. If for nothing else but for this scene posterity will remember George M. Cohan. A witty man recently asked in a tone of raillery, 'why not write the history of the drama from Shakespeare to George M. Cohan?'"

Theatre, Thursday, September 2. This play will appear at the Plainfield

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Charming Hazel Dawn, who has a list of stage successes as long as her forefinger, will appear on the U. S. Astor screen this afternoon and tonight in "Niobe," a delightful comedy in which a Greek statue comes to life and causes no end of trouble in the home of a business man.

Miss Dawn will be recalled as the bright particular star of "The Pink Lady" and "The Debutante," and she is said to be one of the most beautiful women now acting before the motion picture camera. Her remarkable beauty registers perfectly in this subject and she demonstrates an unusual ability to portray a humorous role. She dominates the action throughout the five parts of this film, but is assisted by a cast of clever film performers. Altogether "Niobe" is bully entertainment for the warm weather.

Tomorrow a drama entitled "Greater Love Hath No Man," will be the chief attraction at the Astor and on Friday, Blanche Sweet, who with Mary Pickford divides the distinction of being the most popular actress on the screen, will be seen in "The Captive," a war film in which many battle scenes are presented. Saturday, "Marse Covington" will be exhibited.

LEARN HOW TO SWIM

In a Series of Ten Articles, Famous Expert Louis De B. Handley of the N. Y. A. C., Gives Advice to Beginners and Veterans.

Article No —Long Distance Swimming.

By LOUIS DE B. HANDLEY.

[Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.]

THIS branch of the art of natation has grown to be a favorite pastime and sport of American swimmers of both sexes. Some look upon it as an agreeable form of recreation to be indulged in for the mere pleasure it affords; others consider it an enjoyable means of physical development, to be taken up for exercise and health; others again see in it laurels to be gained by testing their speed and endurance against worthy rivals. But for one reason or other it appeals strongly to all who have acquired aquatic proficiency.

We had evidence a-plenty last season of the hold it has taken on our competing swimmers, for large fields were the rule in all important Marathon contests. For instance, thirty-four men and youths bid for honors in the grueling twenty-two mile race of the New York Tribune, the longest ever held in this country; more than fifty started in the national ten mile championship of the Amateur Athletic union, run off in the Mississippi river by the Missouri Athletic union of St. Louis. One hundred and one took part in an event at the same distance featured in Kansas City.

And almost as great activity was witnessed among noncompetitors. Men and women in every section of the United States were daily undertaking to cover long courses for the sole purpose of the personal satisfaction involved, and many exceptionally good performances went to their credit.

Notwithstanding this widespread popularity, there appears to be some doubt even in the minds of devotees of the sport, as to the best stroke, or strokes, to use in water journeys of several hours, and now and then one reads of instructors and prominent swimmers who still advocate old fashioned styles, such as the breast and side strokes.

Yet it is hard to understand, in the light of past developments, how any one can fail to see the advantages to be derived from the adoption of modern methods.

None will question the fact that the up to date strokes—the trudgeon, crawl and trudgeon-crawl—yield more speed at the so called classic distances (in America from fifty yards to ten miles) for they have furnished all the obtaining world's records. Consequently the only objection which can possibly be raised against them is that they are too tiring for unusually long trips. But even such an objection is totally unwarranted.

It should be remembered that any stroke, to permit record breaking performances, must enable its exponents to obtain from their natural resources more efficiency, in both speed and endurance, than they could secure from its predecessors. It would thus be illogical to suppose that strokes which have proved their worth in all round competition are beyond the ken of any one.

But there is no need to theorize. One might cite dozens of cases in which women and young girls have held the latest strokes for several hours, and Charles Durborow of Philadelphia swam the trudgeon continuously for 14 hours 15 minutes when he established the American record of nineteen and three-quarter miles over a charted course, across tide.

It is believed by a number of authorities on the subject that the plain crawl, with its narrow, alternate thrash of the legs, is not as effective as the trudgeon for distance swimming in rough water, and it must be admitted that crawlers have so far found it impossible to maintain an action rapid and strong enough to drive them through heavy seas without being badly checked. It may be, however, that the youngsters now under way of development will overcome the difficulty as they grow to maturity. Years of practice are necessary to accustom the human muscles to new movements, and the crawl is of comparatively recent origin, so that today's adults have hardly had sufficient time to fit themselves thoroughly for endurance work. The rising generation instead has been trained to the wanted movements almost from infancy and may fare better. But this remains to be seen.

It is probable, all told, that the latest stroke, the trudgeon-crawl, will eventually establish its supremacy. The greater propelling force of the scissor kick is obvious, and the speed obtained from it can be maintained at very small extra expenditure of power by a gentle flutter of the feet between kicks, so that it bids fair to supersede both the mother strokes.

In training for distance swimming it is essential to first eradicate all faults of stroke and then to practice the correct movements until they can be performed mechanically.

Few of our endurance swimmers pay sufficient attention to form. It seems to be the prevalent idea that strength and stamina are the sole requisites to succeed. Yet it will be readily appreciated that if a defective stroke causes loss of speed and energy over a course of moderate length the double loss will increase proportionately the farther one goes.

As pointed out in previous articles, the only way to master a correct stroke is to start on short stretches, taken at slow pace under the guidance of a competent instructor, if possible, and to then lengthen the distance gradually, avoiding speed work altogether.

One of the usual mistakes incurred by distance swimmers is to work too hard. Excessive work invariably reduces weight and lowers vitality, both assets to be highly valued, the former because it tends to minimize the ill effects of cold and prolonged immersions, the latter for self evident reasons.

It is well, in training, to swim no farther than one mile, as a rule. One may then accustom the muscles to the wanted action without danger of drawing too heavily on one's resources and when it comes to attempting a particularly hard feat the stored fund of energy will stand one in good stead. Of course, it is advisable at intervals to thoroughly try out one's stamina, but this should be done rarely, and never within a week or less of a race or important test.

The question of eating and drinking during a swim of several hours is one upon which watermen seldom agree, but medical authorities claim that it is best to take very little, for the digestive organs are not in normal condition, and, furthermore, their effort to perform the allotted functions draws the blood from the surfaces, lowering the temperature and generally causing chills or cramps.

Practical experiments substantiate the claim too. It has been ascertained that to the great majority solid food is harmful instead of beneficial, and that even liquids—bouillon, coffee, etc.—cannot be safely recommended, for they often cause nausea. Some seem able to take care of administered food, and they probably profit thereby, but they mark the exception. The problem of what to do is best left for individual solution.

The use of alcoholic beverages and other stimulants, however, can be condemned without hesitation. Doubtless they give a temporary and illusive feeling of increased strength, but a heavy reaction soon follows, and the artificial stimulation is dangerous, for during the period of comparative exhilaration the heart is working at abnormally high pressure and strain upon it is terrific.

It has long been recognized that the great enemy of the distance swimmer is cold and the habit has spread of fighting it by coating the entire body with oils and greases of various kinds. But of late doubt has been expressed concerning the wisdom of the practice.

Some point out that when man is undergoing physical effort his working muscles produce poisonous substances which must be eliminated through the blood vessels and the pores of the skin, or fatigue and exhaustion result. If, therefore, the pores are clogged and closed the disposal of the poisons is hampered and the heart is subjected to undue stress when it endeavors, as it does, to accomplish the task alone.

Probably the best plan to follow is the one advocated recently—namely, to treat with grease only those portions of the body where large arteries are near the surface, and leave the others free to aid in the eliminatory process.

One of the distressing features of distance swimming in the sea is the action of the brine on the eyes, which occasions what is known as salt water blindness. At times complete loss of sight is experienced for awhile. When Charles Durborow made his record breaking swim across Delaware bay his vision became blurred after about four hours, and later a black curtain closed around him, so that during the last part of the fourteen hour trip he was forced to navigate by sound only, the men on the piloting craft striking the stern loudly with an oar to direct his course.

Goggles have been devised to overcome the trouble. They are shaped carefully to the nose and optical cavities and surrounded by a strip of soft rubber which, if properly fitted, excludes the water entirely. They are hard to adjust perfectly, however, and quite useless if they allow any leakage.

An excellent idea is to provide one's handlers with a soothing wash—boracic acid and rosewater are the usual ingredients—so that the eyes may be bathed frequently. This gives temporary relief and prevents, or at least delays, the action of the salt water.

Distance swimming within reason should be universally encouraged. The moderate speed enforced obviates the danger attendant upon fast sprinting, particularly in competition, and ability to paddle leisurely for miles or hours may at any moment be the means of saving one's life. Accidents frequently occur far from shore, and it is not then the speed swimmer who has the best chance of being rescued, but his fellow waterman who has practiced over long courses and can stay afloat undismayed, awaiting assistance.

It's hard to be an optimist on the day your tenant leaves. But prompt recourse to classified advertising will soon set things to rights again.

WATER COMPANY EXPLAINS ACTION

Bills For Additional Service Issued Following First Inspection In Many Years.

Certain bills being sent out by the Plainfield-Union Water Company calling for payment for additional service in many instances have aroused the indignation of individuals, who desire to know the reason for this action. In most cases they are for taps in barns and garages, and criticism is directed towards the water company because in many cases the barns and garages so billed against have no water connections whatsoever.

To inquiries made by a Daily Press reporter this morning, William J. Whelan, secretary and manager of the company, gave a lucid explanation of the whys and wherefores of the extra bills. It was said that the company instituted an inspection throughout its entire territory last fall, being convinced that many water connections had been made by plumbers or other mechanics which had not been reported to the company, and therefore were not being charged for. This was felt to be particularly true in regard to stables and automobile houses.

The inspectors have about finished their work, and the bills are going out for water service to such property owners as the inspection has shown should pay for additional service. This is usually where an automobile house has been erected for the storage of a car.

But what has caused the numerous complaints which have come to the office of the Daily Press is that property owners are billed for garage and stable taps when there is no water connection at all in stable or garage, and this phase of the matter they cannot understand.

Mr. Whalen explained this by stating that where a person was known to keep an automobile or horses the water company took it for granted that water was used for washing purposes, and therefore made the charge whether there was a water connection in the building or not. The charge for automobile or stable connection is six dollars, where one car or two horses are kept, and two dollars a year extra for every additional car or horse. In cases where it has been proven to the satisfaction of the company that no washing is done on automobile or carriage, an amicable arrangement has been made between the company and the consumer. The bills are dated last September, Mr. Whalen explained, because that was when the inspection was started. This is the first inspection the company has made in twenty years, he said.

HEAVY DAMAGES CAUSED BY STORM

Cow Cut In Half By Bolt of Lightning At College Farms.

Lightning struck two buildings on the College Farms, connected with Rutgers College, New Brunswick, last night, and caused damage to the extent of $2,000. The building in which the cows are housed was struck as well as the horse barn. One cow was cut directly in half by a bolt of lightning. Another cow was killed, and also a horse. The cows were registered stock and were valued at $600 each.

Peter Smith, who resides on a farm back of Lincoln, lost his barn and most of the building's contents in a fire caused by lightning last night. A bolt struck the structure and soon it and almost everything it contained was in ashes. Only a few articles were saved.

A bolt of lightning played an odd trick at the home of Thomas Brown, on West Third street, near View avenue. The lightning demolished the chimney and knocked a quantity of soot down upon two of Mr. Brown's children who were asleep in a bed near the chimney.

WILL PETER MAC BE THE SENSATION OF THE SEASON?

The horse world is looking forward with interest to the career on the grand circuit this summer of Peter Mac, 2:06¼, the green trotter owned by Captain David Shaw of Cleveland. Peter Mac probably will start at Syracuse, and is likely to be one of the sensations of the season. Captain Shaw, who is eighty-two years old and a well known figure among horsemen, bred and trained Peter Mac, but never raced him.

TAUGHT SON TO PITCH.

Mamaux, Pirates' Star Heaver, Owes Most of Success to His Father.

One year ago last spring Mamaux, the Pittsburgh pitcher, was heard of only because he happened to be tried on the same team with Pitcher Papa. When Papa was released the jokesmiths forgot about the other end of the joke. Now Mamaux is the sensation of the National league.

Mamaux is successful through hard work, practice and study. He is bred and trained to pitching. His father is John Mamaux, a Pittsburgh manufacturer of tents and awnings. In his younger days he was a star semi-pro hurler. He preferred business to a big league career.

When his son, Albert Leon, was old enough to grip a baseball the elder Mamaux took him into the yard and began showing him how to pitch. In school Albert was the best pitcher in the class. At sixteen he was pitching against teams of grown men. He and his father attended big league games together and studied pitchers and batters.

Mamaux started his professional career with Wilkinsburg, in the Allegheny County league, was secured by Pittsburgh, tried in the spring of 1913, sent to Fort Wayne of the Central league for seasoning and recalled to Pittsburgh for trial in the spring of 1914.

Fred Clarke, Pittsburgh manager, when asked that spring about the youngster said, "He's going to be one of the best pitchers in the country."

"What's he got?"

"Brains."

Mamaux has been Pittsburgh's best pitcher this season. He measures six feet, weighs 170, is quiet and unassuming. He is the best musician in baseball. He plays a violin in concert work in the winter.

DALE INVENTS NEW CURVE.

Cincinnati Twirler Originates Slow Curve Which Baffles Batsmen.

Baseball experts have agreed that it will take something new and startling to revive the old time interest in baseball. It remains for Gene Dale, the youthful Cincinnati Reds' pitching wonder, to spring a replica of Mathewson's fade away, Walter Johnson's bullet ball, Russ Ford's emery twister and other famous inventions of the box.

GENE DALE, REDS' BRILLIANT YOUNG PITCHER.

Dale has invented a slow ball curve which he uses with baffling effect. Many pitchers have slow balls, but they don't curve. Dale's floats over the pan and executes an amazing twist as it reaches the batter.

Recently Dale struck out Stengel and Wheat of the Brooklyn team when they were up with one out and the bases full.

BOYS FROM THE BUSHES ARE NERVOUS WHEN THEY FIRST REACH FAST COMPANY

Nervousness, stage fright, buck fever and other acute forms of diffidence very often mean the return of a youngster to the brush who really has enough stuff to win him a place in fast circles. Of the many recruits from the bushes who are given a tryout every spring a considerable number of them are so tremulous and scary that they fumble and boot everything they try. Managers look at them sadly, sigh a bit and slip them back to whence they came.

Very often they are bat-shy. They bring with them an overrated notion of big league pitching and they feel uneasy about getting too close to the plate. The gaff of the big league catchers takes all their pep. They dislike the idea of stopping a fast one with their frontal bone. The pitchers of course are wise to this and do all they can to encourage the busher in these ideas. They try to make all their fast ones break about 2½ inches north of his left ear.

And so the kid swings wide and foolishly at bat and every failure discourages him all the more. He goes out to field, muffs a hard chance and is hooted on all sides. Usually the fans are willing to chip in with a bit of derision. And without plenty of nerve it's hard for the kid.

I., a few days ago, beating the two other hydroplane speed boats that were pitted against her. She covered the course of thirty miles in 1 hour, 3 minutes and 34 seconds. Members of the Detroit syndicate that built Miss Detroit said after the race they would be prepared to defend the cup at Detroit next summer.

"PROHIBITION."

Atlantic City people are complaining because the liquor law is being strictly enforced there on Sundays, while at the resorts in Monmouth county no effort whatsoever is made to stop hotel-keepers dispensing liquid refreshment on Sunday. The Atlantic Cityites' contention that there is no observance of the law in Monmouth is strengthened by a five-column article which appeared in the New York World of Monday, telling of the experience of a reporter who was in search of bibulous entertainment at Asbury Park, where no licenses whatsoever are granted. Prominent hotels of the resort are mentioned at which the reporter bought whiskey and other drinks, openly and above board.

That the World's story is undoubtedly true is substantiated by the statement in the Asbury Park Press that "the expose uncovers a condition that should be removed at any cost. If Prohibition in Asbury Park is a farce and is winked at and defied openly, then Prohibition should give place to a different system of regulation of the traffic under license laws. This resort cannot afford to be held up periodically on the prodding iron of outside newspapers in search of local sensations. Asbury Park and Ocean Grove are equally shown up as hypocritical in the article referred to and each comes in for its share of notoriety to be extracted from an exceedingly plain and open statement of conditions that are known to exist."

What better argument is wanted than this frank statement of the Press that prohibition does not prohibit? The same story comes from Maine resorts, from cities in the South where the prohibition amendment merely keeps liquor away from the colored man, and from every other place where liquor sale is not licensed. Here in Plainfield, the problem is as nearly solved as is possible until nation-wide prohibition is brought about.

The temperance educational campaign which is being conducted in this city will do more to awaken drinking men than all the prohibitory measures that might be adopted. In that campaign the advertisements which appear in the local papers every Wednesday and Saturday, give short arguments, very much to the point, for the consideration of those indulge. And they are presented drinker at a time when he own to read what is go- e, and can give more than a passing thought to the telling points.

SUFFRAGE GETS BOOST.

One of the principal topics being discussed in the New Jersey Suffrage campaign just now is whether the liquor interests are favoring the antis or the pros. The Suffragists have alleged that the liquor men are backing their opponents, and the latter have retaliated by publicly inquiring whether the pros expect to bring about prohibition, in case suffrage wins. The reply by the anti-suffragists has of course been that the liquor interests are not supporting their cause, and the suffragists have said that they are primarily interested in getting the vote, and not in bringing about prohibition.

The same questions have arisen in Pennsylvania, and suffrage there has been given a boost which will indirectly aid the cause in New Jersey, for the Pennsylvania Federation of Liquor Dealers have aligned themselves against votes for women, and have resolved to give financial aid to the campaign of the antis.

It is a great gain for any cause to have the fighters come out in the open, "leave the trenches," as it were. Of course the suffragists will say, as the Philadelphia Ledger points out, that they knew that the organized liquor trade is their chief antagonist; "but to find it in close alliance with and prepared to finance the movement of the women who are opposing suffrage is a revelation of which they will naturally make the most. This definite alignment of the liquor forces should rally to the support of the amendment not only every total abstainer and Prohibitionist, but every friend of local option. Local option in this State is by no means a Prohibition movement; but is on the contrary a demand for community home rule in one of the most vital of local concerns. There are plenty of people who have no sympathy with the extremists on the anti-liquor side, but who bitterly resent the attempt of the liquor trade to dominate political affairs. The unconcealed alliance at the last session of the Legislature between the liquor men and the Penrose-McNichol machine made a host of friends for the local option cause among the voters, and it will make more for the cause of woman suffrage."

The Camden Post Telegram has discovered that Union county has forged ahead of Camden in population during the last five years, if the unofficial returns are correct, which apparently causes surprise to the Camdenites. This county has approximately 167,377 persons, and Camden has 163,221. Five years ago we followed the South Jersey county, which had 142,029 to our 140,197. Unless Bergen county has grown at a very rapid pace, and it will not be surprising to learn that such is the case, Union probably now occupies the fourth place in the State. It is not surprising that the gains have been made here, for Plainfield alone has increased nearly twenty per cent., and that is one of the largest gains, except in very small municipalities, that has been made in the State in the five years.

One week from today promises to be a busy one. The Business Men's Association is planning the second Dollar Day for 1915, and as usual there will be a big array of bargains. The days of this kind in the past have been about as successful merchandising events as the city has ever seen.

"Didn't do it, but willing to plead guilty." That is a remarkable statement, and about in keeping with anything that could be expected from a man who keeps a half gallon of whiskey in the house "for medicinal purposes."

O Little Boy!

O little boy, with grimy hands,
With wonder on your chubby face;
O little boy, that waiting stands,
In youthful and unstudied grace—
O little boy with will unformed,
With heart as clean as cloud-held snow,
What human heights must yet be stormed
By lives like yours, I fain would know?
O little boy—I once was you,
And saw the big world through your eyes;
You'll find much false you now deem true,
And meet with many a sad surprise.
O little boy, life's fleeting sands
May trickle ere you get your chance;
Dear little boy, with dirty hands,
Don't wipe them on my flannel pants!

"Never mind," called back the green bean, "they're going to can you to-morrow."

Dogs

Dogs are of several varieties. The most harmless of all is the rabbit dog, and the most harmful is the rabid dog.

There is the Great Dane dog, gloss finish, about the size of a calf, and the St. Bernard, which is a close second, but with more foliage.

Then there is the poodle with chenille fringe; good for window washing, when a handle is fastened to it by means of a shawl-strap.

Poodles are fine companions, and poor substitutes, for children. It is hardly fair to a poodle to raise it without a few children to amuse it and keep it cheerful.

There is nothing more pathetic than the awful loneliness of a poodle compelled to associate regularly with a woman who has no more humanity or brains than to prefer it to a child of her own or some one else.

The Humane Society ought to rescue dogs that are compulsorily thrown into that society.

When we see a man leading a solely ornamental dog along the street, we may safely look for the sport-collar, the wrist-watch and the kerchief in his sleeve.

Suffrage

Some women believe they ought to be allowed to vote.

When enough of them believe it, they'll vote.

Humans are the only race of creatures in which the female is discriminated against.

You can't tell a male from a female dog by its dress—not even by its pants.

They dress alike.

Women are busily trying to convince men that equal suffrage is the right thing.

Man listens with more or less politeness and wonders why she doesn't vote, if she wants to, when she does everything else she wants to.

Some men whose wives boss them all the time rather enjoy seeing them stumped at something.

Roosevelt invented "unmitigated and deliberately intentional prevaricator."

HEALTH TALKS

by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Fate Of Fifty-Four

IN a series of fifty-four tuberculosis patients admitted to a hospital there had been no chest examination, no sputum examination and no observation of the patient's temperature by the doctor first consulted in six cases. A chest examination, but no sputum examination, was made in over half of the cases. A diagnosis was not made in a single one of the fifty-four cases by the doctor first consulted.

Why not?

Well, there are several reasons. In the first place, the patient is sure he has "just a slight cold," or a "little bronchial trouble," or a "run down condition," or else he "needs a good tonic." In the second place, cough medicine is too alluring, tonics (whatever they may be) too cheap, and "colds" too convenient. Or, to word it another way, doctors are too easy-going, too ready to accept the patient's own version of his trouble, too busy to find out, too careless to make a thorough examination.

"One lung a trifle weak," or "weak spot in one apex," or a "slight catarrhal condition in the right base" is no diagnosis at all, but a mere subterfuge. It means the doctor doesn't know. He should say so frankly. In incipient tuberculosis of the lungs the best physician will be hard put to it to make a diagnosis in less than half a dozen painstaking, complete physical examinations of the entirely bared chest and trunk, together with a careful observation and consideration of all the symptoms.

The sin of omission, though it may have its mitigating circumstances, is nevertheless unforgivable. The doctor had far better acquire the reputation of being a "crank on consumption" than to let one patient leave his office with false assurance. When, through obstinacy or false modesty, the patient objects to a complete examination of the naked chest and back, then the self-respecting doctor can do nothing but confess himself unable to diagnose the condition or intelligently advise the patient.

Tuberculosis is the most common of all serious diseases. The patient may experience no symptoms focusing his or her attention upon the chest, and still have incipient involvement of the lungs. There may be nothing more than a loss of weight, a loss of strength, a general decline of health. That probably accounts for a goodly share of the fifty-four mistakes above cited.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Love Me, Love My Dog

Mrs. J. A. M. states that she kisses her bulldog, and lets her poodles sleep on the bed near her, and lets the poodle eat from the same plate with her baby sometimes. She wants us to reassure her, and her neighbors, that this is hygienic.

Answer—In the baby's interest we venture to say that it is a great mistake. A dog, apparently well, may carry diphtheria bacilli and infect a child under such remarkable conditions. And even a well-bred dog occasionally sticks his nose into the neighbors' garbage can or elsewhere, thus opening up rich avenues of conjecture, to say the least. This time we stand firmly with the neighbors.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES—NORTHWESTERN

NORTHWESTERN University was founded in Evanston, Ill., in 1885, at which time Chicago was supposed to be in the northwestern section of civilization.

It was established by the Methodists and has remained firmly Methodist ever since, though its location on the edge of Lake Michigan has made most of its students firm believers in immersion whenever the water is warm enough for bathing. It has a fine wooded campus which would now be worth $7,000,000 if cut up for building lots, and it has educated Evanston to such an extent that whenever an Evanstonian pulls a lowbrow stunt it is regarded as a natural phenomenon and gets a column on the first page of the Chicago newspapers.

Northwestern's early buildings are of the old octagonal tower type with ivy overcoats. Its alumni have contributed to it with such vigor and persistence that it now has over $4,000,000 endowment, a library of over 100,000 volumes and a number of huge and imposing learning laboratories. Evanston has never been interested in the price of oil, like Chicago University, but quivers with anticipation whenever there is a corner in wheat. James A. Patten, who doled out the bread of the nation for a brief period once, is its patron saint, and while he was in business the University got a new building whenever wheat crossed the dollar mark.

Northwestern has fine law, medical and dental schools in Chicago, and has nearly 5,000 students, including a football player and vast numbers of unusually ornamental co-eds. It also has a School of Divinity and a coast-guard crew, being the only University to maintain both life-saving and soul-saving stations. It houses its girls in a vast hall com-

Views Of The Press

The New Temperance

IT IS not unlikely that the war and the measures which some of the belligerent Governments have had to take in self-defense for the restriction or suppression of the use of alcohol, especially in its more potent forms, have impressed upon more people the value, the virtue, or the necessity of total abstinence than all the rhetoric and all the too often romantic statistics of the prohibitionists, from Neal Dow to the Anti-Saloon League and the robustious Captain Hobson. Whatever backslidings a long peace may bring to the Russian mujik, suddenly cut off from his one wretched and false "consolation," the great increase in Russian savings bank deposits in a year of hard times is a most persuasive argument for total abstinence. It is not moral. It is addressed to the pocket, a more sensitive organ in a good many of us than the conscience.

It is true that millions of persons in the United States drink in moderation, confining themselves to beer or light wines, and many persons can afford to drink, though they are seldom the ones who spend the most in devotion to Thirst. It is true, too, we think, that both in this country and Canada the quickening of prohibition activity and the enlargement of Dry territory, however naturally inspired by the European inhibitions, are a misinterpretation of the essential question. A reaction against alcohol is going on. It is partly social, partly scientific, partly moral, partly and most powerfully economic. Young men, many of them protected by their athletics from excess, see great railroad and other corporations banishing drinking men from employment. They see that no mar is trusted or can long keep his post who has a passion, or even a sporadic weakness, for alcohol. They see the working world, in this age of machinery, high pressure, and ferocious competition, compelling sobriety. Not to be always sober, clear of head, steady of nerve, is to be dropped. It is the unforgivable business sin.

Then there is the waste, the loss, the unnecessary expenditure when the necessary cost of living is so exorbitant. A prudent man says: "I may never be in any danger, but I won't take the chance of injuring my prospects. I'll save my money. I'll avoid one obstacle to success."

No high philosophy, but a sound one, understandable of every man who has his bread and butter to make. We are glad to see that a society has been founded which will deal solely with the economic side of drinking, try to show the diminution of efficiency and the economic waste caused by drink. Volunteer total abstinence resting on "enlightened self-interest." This society ought to do fruitful work.—New York Times.

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND

by E. R. BRANSON

Constitutional Prohibition

Q. Please tell me why an amendment to the United States Constitution would be necessary before we could have what is called "constitutional prohibition"? Couldn't Congress pass laws on the subject if it wished to do so?

A. The regulation of the sale of intoxicating liquor or a prohibition of its sale belongs exclusively, under the law at the present time, to the various states. Every state has the right to regulate its purely internal affairs and to promote the health, safety and morals of its citizens unless, in so doing, it comes into conflict with a valid federal law. Congress has no power to enact legislation affecting the states in this matter. Before it would have the lawful right to do so, an amendment to the United States Constitution would be essential.

A "De Facto" Corporation

Q. Please explain what is meant by a "de facto corporation."

A. A de facto corporation is an organization which assumes the right to act as a corporation without having the actual legal right so to do. It exists by virtue of what is called a "color of authority." If the members of the association have made an attempt, in good faith, to organize as a corporation, pursuant to the terms of a charter or a law under which they might legally organize, and have made actual use of corporate franchises, a de facto corporation is called into existence.

He Is Beginning Early

Q. A boy seventeen years old purchased some goods of me and tendered me in payment, at the time, a check signed by him. I delivered the goods to him and the next day presented the check at the bank, but the check was dishonored, as he had no funds. Could I bring a suit against him?

A. Yes.

A New Parlor Game

Q. In signing a legal document, is it necessary to put the name at the bottom of the page or sheet? The reason I ask this, is because I have a legal document which was signed at one side, about the middle of the page. What will be the effect of this?

A. Although the proper and the usual way to sign is to attach the signature at the end of the document, the validity of the paper will not necessarily be destroyed if it is signed in any other way. The question is one of intention. If the name was intended as a signature to the document, the validity of the paper will not be affected by the fact that such signature appears at the top, in the middle or at one side.

An Undated Note

Q. A man with whom I have had business dealings gave me a promissory note in settlement of a transaction between us. Later on I discovered that the note had no date. Does this fact affect its legality?

A. No. Although the date should have been inserted at the time, it is not essential. The note will be considered as dated at the time it was signed and delivered to you.

She'll Get It Any Way

Q. Does a wife have authority to receive payment of money due her husband and give a receipt for it?

A. She has no such authority unless it has been expressly given by the husband, or unless such authority may be implied from the circumstances or unless the husband sanctions and approves the act and receives the benefits of it.

"And We Are His Sisters And His Cousins And His Aunts"

Q. A man left a will which contained a clause giving a certain sum of money to "his cousins." Since his death, the will has been probated. Considerable doubt has arisen as to what persons are entitled to receive this money, as there are three "first" cousins and four "second" cousins. Who should receive the money?

A. Your question is one involving a construction or interpretation of the will. If the word "cousins" is used alone, and there is nothing in the will to indicate a contrary intention, it will be taken to mean first cousins. If, however, there is anything else in the will showing that the word was intended to apply to the second cousins or to all the cousins, first and second, such meaning will be given effect by the courts.

A Dumb Man As Witness

Q. I would like to inquire whether a deaf and dumb person can be a witness in a court proceeding.

A. A deaf and dumb person is a competent witness, provided he understands the nature and effect of an oath and provided questions can be addressed to him and satisfactorily answered by means of the sign language or by writing.

Everybody Works But Father

Q. Please tell me whether an adult child may be compelled to support an indigent parent.

A. The statutes of some states require it, under certain circumstances.

Success

In Success, defeat is but an incident. Obstacles, stumbling blocks, disappointment in ideals — these things weave into and form the Raiment to Success. For Success is a series of failures—put to flight.

Learn to walk past Failure.

A few years ago a young man stood behind a New England counter as a Clerk. Quiet, honest, faithful, yet a Failure in the eyes of his Employer, who one day drew aside the father of the boy and advised that the son be taken back to the farm, for he never would become a Merchant. To-day if you will but walk down State Street, Chicago, you will behold this young man's monument —a tribute to the failures, disappointments and iron persistence of Marshall Field, who died the greatest Merchant in the World.

Learn to walk past Failure.

But Success isn't measured in tangible assets. Lincoln left next to nothing in money standards. His success, though, is the marvel and inspiration of the Ages.

Learn to walk past Failure.

Success is largely a matter of personal Viewpoint. It is impossible for you to fail permanently if you determine to Succeed. Let each new day of your life then, take invoice of its own self. Let it chalk up the Failures with the Successes—let it mark plainly the Record. But inside of your own consciousness let nothing take from the image of your mind the Knowledge that real Success consists wholly in sacrificing temporarily in repeated failures that you may win permanently in worth while Deeds done.

Learn to walk past Failure.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Little Swiss Boy Who Saved His Daddy.

They Were Tied Together.

"AWAY over in Switzerland," said daddy to the children, who clamored for their bedtime story, "a little boy once saved his father.

"Switzerland is a very little and very famous country. It is noted as the home of the Alps, one of the loftiest and most celebrated of mountain ranges. The scenery—which you know, kiddies, means beautiful views—is very striking and lovely in this country, and people go there from all over the world to see the great mountains that seem to rise right up into the blue sky, with white fleecy clouds around their peaks.

"This little boy's father was a guide up in those mountains. He made his living through taking tourists on mountain climbing trips, which are very dangerous and therefore all the more attractive to people of courage.

"Mountain climbing in Switzerland, my dears, is not much like you and Jack climbing the slopes of one of our little hills. These mountains are so high that their tops are covered all the year round with ice and snow, because, you see, the air is so thin away up there among the clouds that it is always cold, and when men and women climb the Alps they know they have done some work. They have to take hatchets along to chop steps in the ice that rises in a sheer wall, and they carry alpenstocks, which are long bars of wood with a sharp point at the end to stick in the ice and help them in climbing, and the guide goes first to pick the way, and there is a rope tied around his waist which extends back to the people behind him.

"This guide of whom I am speaking was one of the best in the Alps. He had a little boy about twelve or fourteen years old who bade fair one day to become as fearless and dependable a guide as his father, whom he often accompanied on his trips.

"One day the father and his little boy left their cottage to meet a party of mountain climbers farther down the mountain. They were tied together, and the father was in advance. Suddenly he slipped, crying out a warning to his little son, and then the poor daddy plunged over the edge of a deep hole that is called a crevasse.

"The little boy acted as quick as thought. He happened to be near a great icy rock. He sprang behind it and dug his fingers into some crevices. As his father came to the end of the rope away down the crevasse the son, braced by the rock, held fast, and the father gained a foothold on a small ledge.

"Then the little boy, manfully hanging on, cried out for help. As luck would have it, two guides were near at hand, and they hurried there and drew the father up to safety."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Come over to the car and meet my wife," said Mr. Jaynes, when he had grasped Mrs. Morton's hand as if it had been a pump handle, and worked it up and down.

"Gertrude," he called in a loud, hearty voice, "here are some of Fairport's representative citizens.

Mrs. Jaynes extended a plump hand that was nearly bursting a glove a size too small for her, and said in affected tones:

"I'm happy, I'm sure. I'm down to see the architect" — she pronounced it arch—"to look over plans for our new house. We are going to have the modernest house in Fairport. It's to have a spinal staircase.

"Do you live here?" she added, for the tall, gaunt woman made no reply and was regarding her with scant favor.

"No, I was on the way to take the morning train home. I must get dinner for harvesters."

"Get right in here; I'll take you to the station," said Jaynes cordially, opening the tonneau door.

"Thank you, I'm not much of a friend of these buzzing, snorting things; they get on my nerves. I have no liking for being shot through the air at forty miles an hour. I'm at home on the ground and there's plenty of time to walk to the train."

"Now, I want to show you that my machine is neither a buzzer nor a snorter," laughed the man good naturedly, "and we'll go at an easy gait. Put her in, Morton; won't you come along and see her off? I'll bring you back so you won't lose much time, if that's an object."

"Thank you, I'll be delighted. I don't share my mother's prejudices against machines," and Dick helped his mother in and climbed to a seat by the side of Mr. Jaynes, who was still in his shirt sleeves. The old lady sat up very stiff by the side of her highly-colored neighbor.

"I do hope you won't mind Mr. Jaynes' shirt sleeves." Mrs. Jaynes leaned toward her. "Me and my daughter have done everything to make him more refined, but as Genevieve says, he shames her constant."

"Why, he has more on his arms than you have," said Mrs. Morton, looking disapprovingly at the gauze that draped the buxom figure.

"Lor', that's what he says. He says I keep cool and want him to swelter. What a queer thing style is, anyway," she added confidentially.

"I don't know. I never spent much time learning about the fashions," replied her companion tartly.

"No, I see you haven't, but my daughter is so set on my keeping right up to the latest."

"How many children have you?" asked the old lady.

"A son and two daughters. My oldest daughter graduated from Bryn Mawr last June. She sang on class day. I was there. She takes after my side of the house; we're musical. The youngest takes after the Jaynes. My son isn't very strong; he's gone to a boys' camp this summer. Mr. Jaynes thought hunting and fishing would make him robuster, but he don't take to it."

"What does he want to do for a living?"

"For a living?" Mrs. Jaynes turned a superior smile on her benighted neighbor. "It won't be necessary for him to earn a living. He can take up what interests him."

"That's a pity! That's a pity! No young man amounts to anything who can't knuckle down to hard work. Work takes all the nonsense out of people. If you want to ruin a boy, give him plenty of money to spend and do not make him responsible for anything," said the old lady with earnestness, as she was helped out on the station platform.

ACCORDION PLAITS PRETTY AND POPULAR.

No. 8746.

One of the delights of the season that has lent itself admirably to the practice of making skirts full is the accordion plait. The cloth itself has a charm and daintiness that is quite in keeping with the modesty and innocence of the maiden. A dress, winning because of the way this feature is carried out in the waist as well as the skirt, is Ladies' Home Journal pattern, No. 8746. This Empire frock opens in the back with kimono waist, straight skirt and sleeve frills to be accordion plaited or gathered. Without a seam at the center-front of the waist, all sizes—16 to 18—require piecing in 30, 36 and 42-inch material. Size 18 requires 5¾ yards of material, 3 ½ yards of insertion, 1 yard lace edging for the neck, and 1 yard of 12-inch ribbon for the girdle.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Foree & Co.

Household Hints

MENUS FOR LARGE PARTIES

Luncheon for Twenty-five Persons—Four loaves of bread or four dozen biscuits, eight pounds ham, two quarts pickles, one-half pound butter, one pound sugar, three-fourths pound coffee in six quarts water, three large cakes, one quart cream or one gallon milk, three cans fruit or three quarts cranberries, one and one-half gallons ice cream.

Banquet for 100 Persons—One large ham, ten chickens, twenty loaves bread, four quarts cream, six pounds sugar, five pounds coffee (three gallons water to each pound coffee), celery, olives, pickles and salted almonds, four cakes, white; four cakes, dark; four gallons ice cream or five gallons sherbet. Candies. Fruit.

APPLE SAUCE

Wash perfect apples, quarter and slice. Put into a granite pan with only enough water to cook. When done, rub through a colander, sweeten with white or light brown sugar; then add a small piece of butter and a very little grating of nutmeg. Serve cold. It is very wasteful to peel apples unless afterward some use is to be made of the pelings.

GREEN APPLE PIE

Material — Apples, three; granulated sugar, one-half cup; water, two teaspoonfuls; cinnamon and nutmeg; pastry flour, two cups; salt, one tablespoonful; lard, or vegetable fat, one-fourth cup; butter, one-fourth cup.

Directions—When pastry of any kind is to be made it is well to prepare for it by having all materials cold. It is the expansion of this cold air when baking, combined with the correct way of making it, which makes the pastry light and flaky.

Set the flour sifter in the mixing bowl and into it put flour and salt, then sift. Cut into this flour with a knife the lard and the butter. Do this quickly and until the butter, flour and lard seem to be well mixed. Then gradually add sufficient ice water—or at least cold water—to make a dough. Do not use one unnecessary stroke to do this.

Turn half this dough onto the pastry board, roll and cover the floured pie pan. The apples for this pie should be good, tart cooking apples. Peel and slice in the pastry lined pie pan, sprinkle over the sugar, dot with bits of butter, about a generous teaspoonful, sprinkle with cinnamon or nutmeg and add the given amount of water.

Roll out the upper crust, wet the edges of the lower crust with cold water, cover, press edges together and trim neatly. Take a thin, pointed knife and life both crusts away from the pan, then, as the pie expands in baking both will come up together and no juice will run out. Bake in a moderately quick oven forty-five minutes.

THE TABLE.

Sand Tarts—Butter, three-fourths cup; brown sugar, one and one-half cups; eggs, two; flour, three and one-half cups; baking powder, two teaspoons; salt, one-half teaspoon; granulated sugar, one tablespoon; cinnamon, one-half teaspoon (sugar and cinnamon look like sand on the tarts). Cream butter, add sugar and eggs which have been well beaten. Sift flour and baking powder and add to the egg, butter and sugar mixture. Chill. Roll one-eighth inch thick and sprinkle with granulated sugar and cinnamon. Cut in fancy shapes; serve with tea, iced or hot.

Onions With Sausage—Take large white Spanish onions; peel and boil in salted water until about half done. Take out, remove centers (by pressing down with thumb), chop and mix with sausage meat, bread or cracker crumbs, pepper and salt. Fill onion cavities solid, put in shallow pan with just a little water and bake until a nice brown; baste once or twice. Bake about twenty minutes.

APPLE FRUIT COCKTAIL

Peel large apples which have a fine flavor, and with a potato scoop out small balls, dropping them into a little water with plenty of lemon juice added to keep them white. Prepare a mixture of grapefruit, pineapple and bananas, and put into the cocktail glasses; add a few of the apple balls; make a syrup of all the fruit juices and, when cold, pour it over the fruit.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Lucy Stone, whose ninety-seventh anniversary was celebrated in Orange recently by a demonstration at which were present suffragists from every town and hamlet in New Jersey, in confuting the statement that women should not be allowed to vote unless they could be called on to defend the nation, had this to say: "Some woman risks here life whenever a soldier is born into the world. She does sentry duty over his cradle, and for years she is his quartermaster, and gathers his rations. And when that boy becomes a man, shall he say to his mother: 'If you want to vote you shall first go and kill somebody.'"

Apropos of the above, a young man of tender years called at suffrage headquarters the other day and gave voice to the time-worn anti-dictum that since "women could not fight they should not be allowed representation in their government; woman's place was in the home, anyway, etc." It was gently pointed out to him that all men who vote are not required to fight to obtain the vote, even an army training not being a qualification required by the government for the right of exercising the franchise. We thought this old, worn-out anti argument had been buried long ago, but like "the woman in the home," it keeps continually cropping up and is dramatically set forth by some young aspirant to franchise honors, who himself has never handled anything more warlike than a baseball bat.

Reverting to the "woman's place is in the home" argument, we might call attention to the novel plan which the New York suffragists had thought of carrying out to show as dramatically as possible what it would actually mean in the industrial world to have every woman remain in the home for one day even. They had thought to set one day aside when every woman should stay in the home, but the project had no sooner entered their heads than they were staggered by the figures at their command. These showed how utterly impossible it would be to put it into effect for even one day without crippling the world's work to an irreparable extent. Those whose opinion was asked in the matter felt that such an undertaking could not even be contemplated with equanimity, that it would be "dangerous," a "menace to the life of the community," that it would "paralyze business," "close schools and stores," "cut telephone wires," and "jeopardize life itself" through severing the connection between patient and doctor.

Suffragists knew all this; have known it for a long time. So have you. For a long time they have been trying to meet anti-suffrage insistence that woman's place was in the home by citing these self-same facts from the economic history of the times. But the antis couldn't seem to take it in. They shut their eyes to the facts, gazed sentimentally into space and repeated "woman's place is in the home." Then the suffragists called the antis' bluff and let it be known that they had under consideration the idea of applying their precept literally for just one day. The result?

Well, it will not, it seems, be necessary to inaugurate the women's day at home demonstration. The point has already gone home. For years every opponent of woman suffrage who wanted to hide his paucity of motives did so with the almost universal "woman's place is in the home." Mr. Taft said it, Mr. Root said it, Mr. Stimson said it, Mr. Wickersham said it, Mr. Nugent said it—everybody, intelligent and ignorant, high or low. It was a huge bluff which frightened a credulous world. Now the bluff has been called. Those who last week were most sentimental in their insistence that woman's place is in the home, this week are most lugubrious over the prospect of her staying there for even one day.

Anti-suffragists have fairly fallen over their own feet in their haste to condemn women for the proposal to abide by the time-honored anti precept that "woman's place is in the home." In the language of one of them, for women to stay in their homes for even one day would be to "prove the limit of lawlessness to which suffragists are prepared to go in order to gain their ends."

Yet this is exactly what anti-suffragists have been urging as woman's one excuse for being; this one sphere only, the home, have they been willing or able to recognize as any concern of woman's;. "Woman's place is in the home"—they have said it and re-said it until the woman who has been forced to go out of her home to earn her livelihood and that of others dependent on her has had to do so with a sense of traditional onus and public condemnation resting upon her. Has had to face the accusation that she was a usurper and a betrayer of home and society.

This present agitation has won from good friend and unwitting foe alike so telling a tribute to the dignity of woman's labor outside of the home, its far-reaching extent, its tremendous responsibility, its unescapable involvement in production, manufacture and distribution, that it is doubtful if even again it will be possible to lose sight of woman's great contribution to industry, to business, to education, to morals, in her work outside of the home. This has been the point fought for by the suffragists, sedulously denied by the antis. Accordingly, at a conference held at the headquarters of the Empire State Campaign Committee, 303 Fifth avenue, Tuesday, August 24, it was decided to postpone the agitation for a woman's day.

SUFFRAGISTS TO MEET.

The executive board of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association will meet at the New Branch State Headquarters, in Trenton, 238 East State street, on Friday, August 27, at half-past 10 o'clock. Delegates will be present from all over the State, and plans for the closing work of the campaign will be discussed. The members of the board will be the guests of the Trenton Suffrage Campaign at luncheon, and in the afternoon, from 2 till 4:30, there will be an open conference for all interested suffragists, the subject of which will be "Work on Election Day."

SAVED HIMSELF, UNAWARE.

Showing How the Eye Sees More Than One Thinks It Does.

Writing on psychological subjects in the Ladies' Home Journal, H. Addington Bruce says:

"From Dr. A. H. of Pennsylvania, one of our well known psychologists, I have received this impressive piece of testimony to the power of the eye to see more than one consciously apprehends:

"'Three summers ago, when I was on a visit to my old home town, I took a short cut across familiar fields where a fair growth of weeds covered the ground. I was going along at a rapid gait, with my mind wholly occupied with matters other than my path, when suddenly, quite reflexly, my left foot, instead of going down on the spot where it should, jerked itself over to the left, and I went on fully ten steps before I realized that I had made the sharpest kind of an offset in my path. I wondered what made me do it, turned, retraced my steps and found an adder still coiled and ready to strike, exactly, as I judged, where my foot would have gone.'

"Dr. A. H., recognizing the correct explanation of his fortunate misstep, adds:

"'During my boyhood summers I used to go barefooted much of the time. Through sad experiences with stubble fields, brier patches and stony paths I learned automatically to pick my way without giving thought to the matter. As a result, I find myself frequently in my walks avoiding obstacles which at the moment I do not consciously discern.'"

A LESSON FOR THE NURSE.

She Didn't Like It When She Was Paid In Her Own Coin.

A mother overheard her nurse girl talking to the child she was putting to sleep, and among other legends of the nursery in which she was indulged was this: "If you don't go to sleep this very minute a great, big, awful, black bear, with eyes like coals of fire and sharp, white, cruel teeth, will come out from under the bed and e-a-t-y-o-u-a-l-l up!" The poor little thing nestled down under the clothes to dream of horrid bears eating her up.

That night when the stolid nurse had composed herself in her own comfortable bed and had put the light out there came a sudden rap at the door, and the voice of the mistress called loudly through the panels: "Maggie! Maggie! Get up as quick as you can! There's a burglar under your bed!" At the word "burglar" the girl sprang screaming from the bed, tore open the door and fell into hysterics in the hall.

The lesson was more instructive than the mistress designed, but when the girl's fears had calmed she said to her: "You did not hesitate to tell my delicate child, who could not possibly know that it was a lie, a cruel story about a bear under her bed. Now, when I treat you to the same kind of a story, you are nearly frightened to death. Tomorrow you can go into the kitchen and work there. You are not fit to care for little children."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Curious Experience.

Lombroso, the famous Italian criminologist, once had a curious experience. He was in a printing office correcting the proofs in his "Delinquent Man" with the chief reader when on reaching a page which dealt with a young man who, impelled by jealousy, had stabbed his fiancee he made a surprising discovery. The proofreader was this man.

"Suddenly," Lombroso said in telling the story, "he threw himself at my feet, declaring that he would commit suicide if I published this story with his name. His face, before very gentle, was completely altered and almost terrifying, and I was really afraid that he would kill himself or me on the spot. I tore up the proofs and for several editions omitted his story."

Thunder.

Winter thunder is considered throughout Europe to be of very ill omen, but April thunder is considered to be very beneficial. In Devonshire and other cider counties of England there is a saying that "when it thunders in April you must clean up the barrels"—in readiness, that is, for a plentiful crop of apples. The French consider April thunder to be indicative of a good yield from vineyards and cornfields.

Getting It Straight.

It was in the Elysian fields.

"I am gratified to see that Shakespeare is more sought after than the military heroes," declared a highbrow shade. "I consider this a tribute to the peaceful arts."

"It isn't that so much," pointed out a lowbrow shade. "Every new arrival wants to ask him if he really wrote those plays."—Kansas City Journal.

Angel Coins.

An "angel" was an ancient gold coin weighing four pennyweights and valued at 6s. 8d. in the reign of Henry VI. and at 10 shillings in the reign of Elizabeth in 1562. It took its name from the effigy of an angel embossed on one side.

How to Keep Our City Moving

We must keep moving. A city booms only so long as its manufacturers and merchants keep moving. The wheels of every line of endeavor must be kept turning if the city is going to develop, and what is of deeper concern than the wheels of Plainfield kept turning?

Should every one who has the interest of Plainfield close at heart buy goods from our merchants, the benefits all around can easily be seen. Thousands of dollars that would otherwise go out of the city will be kept circulating here and contribute a big share towards making a bigger and busier Plainfield.

A dollar spent at home will keep that dollar at home and all will share in the profits.

THEY PLAYED QUAINT AND CURIOUS GAME IN THE LONG AND LONG AGO

Quaint and curious must have been some of the rules of thirty years ago. We learn, for example, that in the ninth inning of a game between Chicago and Washington, Uncle Anson hit the ball over the fence for a home run, but refused to go farther than third, his object being to compel Connie Mack, who was catching, to "play close behing the bat so that Whitney could not speed the ball." Knowing that one run would be of no avail, he hoped that with a slower delivery hits enough might be made to win the game. The home nine were too old birds to be caught with such chaff, and Mack refused to play under the bat until Pfeffer had been thrown out at first, after which Whitney struck out Williamson, and the tricky Anson was left on third. Can you imagine a modern batsman, after whacking over the fence, even dreaming of limiting his travels to three bases

An event among iron men: Back in 1886, when Boston and Washington played a double-header, Jim Whitney pitched the full eighteen innings for Washington, and Willie Stemmyer went the eighteen-inning route for Boston. Whitney won both games, 3 to 1 and 4 to 3.

One odd custom among the old-time teams: While they didn't carry as many pitchers or utility men as modern clubs, they often lugged four catchers, each pitcher having his own special backstop, who was not even supposed to work with any other pitcher unless one of the other three catchers was disabled. Four pitchers and four catchers, therefore, made up the battery department of many clubs, instead of seven pitchers and two catchers, as is frequently the case today.

Hard, hard luck for Hank O'Day: One afternoon in 1887 he whanged a three-bagger, which the journals of the time naively describe as the longest hit of his career, and then scored on a wild pitch. All this in the beginning of the eighth, and as Hank slid home the umpire called the game on account of darkness, and the score reverted to the seventh, thus depriving Hank of his mightly triple.

TIMELY SPORTDOM GOSSIP

The fair maidens who have made known their intention of holding an athletic carnival at Parker Field on Labor Day are looking for more entries. So far a goodly portion of the fair sex has responded, but there is still room for more.

One George W. Wriston cannot reason out why there is such a lack of baseball spirit this year. He refers to the younger set, and we agree with him. Is it laziness? True, some of the old guard have secured jobs, and they should be praised for so doing, but the majority of them are asleep when the "ump" is ready to yell "play ball." Parker Field has everything the youthful ballists need, and still no one seems to make use of the "utensils." Last year the boys had to scout around for baseballs and bats, but about a million of kids were on hand to do it. Now if Mr. Wriston sees a lone youth wandering in the vicinity of the baseball diamond, he seriously thinks of waking him up.

Not long ago agitation was started for a representative tennis team. Now comes the announcement that the Netherwood Tennis Club will act in that capacity. But there are other clubs just as anxious to assume the burden. The Hudson Terrace Tennis Club will not allow snch a title to go flying by, and we look for some interesting struggles between the rival aspirants.

Out comes the report that Hyman Abrams has agreed or is going to agree to handle the indicator for the Hopewell baseball team this Saturday. Whether the job is a permanent one we are not prepared to say, but we see no reason why Hymie should seek new fields.

Anotner fan has declared his intention of joining the umpiring squad attached to the City League. Ira Vail will handle the indicator this Saturday in one of the games.

Youthful Herbert Pennoyer certainly can slam the pill when he feels "right." Saturday he must have felt both right and left. He banged out a "Gavvy Cravath."

Manager Coughlin, leader of the Netherwood forces, has signed Eddie Stallings. This announcement may surprise friend fan, as Eddie retired from the game early last season. He strained a tendon in his leg, and his doctors advised the lay-off. It is only reasonable to suppose that if Stallings did return to the game he would join a fast semi-pro team. However, it seems that Coughlin intends using him as a coach, if nothing else. And we might here add that Eddie is some coach.

Arlie Latham has gone the way of the forsaken. Canned by a sandlot aggregation, the members of which objected to his umpiring, is the verdict handed to Lil' Arlie.

Latest from the trenches. The American Tile Workers and the Levgar Structural men are going to clash on the diamond. Steel baseballs will be used. Nothing like keeping in your accustomed environment.

Well, we are glad to learn that those Tabs and the Jones lads are going to stage that five-ply series. Sunday baseball has been poorly attended this year, but these five attractions should prove of interest to the restless fan.

QUEEN CITY BASEBALL TEAM IS RE-ORGANIZED

The Queen City baseball team, which has been unusually inactive during the past few weeks, has undergone a reorganization, according to the reports given out by the new manager. A really strong team will be placed on the field for the rest of the season and it is desired that the Farmers, Highlanders, Westfields, White Sox and Lincolns arrange to cope with the Queens at various times in the near future. The manager, Vincent Mullin, 183 North avenue, has no game on for Saturday or Sunday and would like to hear from any of the above mentioned teams.

The Queens will present this line-up: Cohen, catcher; Houston, 1b F. Mullin, ss; Randolph, lf; Lohsen, rf; Butler, p; Semer, 2b; V. Mullin, 3b; Velard, cf.

FORMER LOCAL CATCHER PLAYING IN COLORADO

Bill Samuels, the New Brunswick lad, who used to catch for several local clubs, is at present working in a mining business in Primero, Col. He is also playing baseball down there, but admits that the Fast has the goods in that line.

Samuels used to catch for Dunellen, Bound Broo and, on a few occasions, for Plainfield. His battery mate was generally Harry Jennings, the Rutgers "phenom," who has twirled for practically every fast semi-pro team in this vicinity. Bill describes the team with which he is now playing and makes special note of the vast contrast between that team and the ones with which he used to perform in these parts. An ex-Cleveland player adorns first, a High School lad handles second, a half-breed ambles around shortstop while a semi-pro takes care of third. Two Mexicans and a Cuban roam around in the outfield. The two pitchers are future leaguers and according to Bill get $100 a month, the same salary as he receives for taking care of their slants.

LOCALS OUT IN COLD.

The Perth Amboy High School has given out its football schedule for the coming season and the local pigskin artists are not on the card. The season opens with Metuchen on September 25 and closes on November 20, Bloomfield H. S. being the visiting eleven. Games will be played with Rahway and Westfield High Schools, the second and third best aggregations in Union county, but Plainfield High, the one best bet in Union, is slighted. Why?

JOHNSON AS AN ACTOR.

London, Aug. 25—Jack Johnson, the erstwhile heavyweight champion, is now an actor. The big black boxer today announced that he has given up the ring for good and will henceforth seek his limelight on the stage. He appears in the leading part of a musical comedy entitled "Seconds Out," now running at a big suburban music hall. Johnson, who is surrounded by a cast of white actors, is the real hero of the piece.

KINKEAD TO ACCEPT.

Sheriff Eugene Kinkead, of Hudson county, will accept the office of president of the proposed Inter-State Basketball League, according to the latest reports given out at Elizabeth, which is one of the cities in which a team will be placed. Frank Bruggy and Jimmy Clinton, two former local baseball players, have signed up with one of the eight league teams.

MARSTON AT DETROIT.

Max R. Marston, the Cranford crack, is among the many golfers who will compete in the championship tourney which begins today in Detroit. The only other aspirants from this vicinity are two Baltusrol men.

COMMISSION AWARDS BENTON TO THE GIANTS

The controversy between Pittsburgh and the Giants for the possession of Rube Benton, the former Cincinnati pitcher, was decided yesterday morning by the board of directors of the National League in favor of the New York club. Benton was sold by Manager Herzog to Pittsburgh, but there was an option held by the Giants, the agreement having been made with Garry Herrmann, owner of the Reds. In the decision the directors said that the option, which was taken up by the Giants just before it was to expire, had the prior claim.

While this was only a verbal agreement, there was documentary evidence which bore out the fact that such an option existed. The directors who rendered the decision were Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn club, and James Gaffney, of the Boston Braves. The other directors, Garry Herrmann, of Cincinnati; Harry Hempstead, of New York, and Barney Dreyfus, of Pittsburgh, were all involved in the transaction, so that they did not act in the capacity of arbiters.

SPORT BRIEFS

Harry Stone outpointed Fighting Fitzpatrick in ten rounds at the Wallace A. C., of Far Rockaway, last night.

First Baseman Red Bluhm, of the New Orleans Southern Association team, has been sold to the Cleveland Americans.

Chicago—Packey McFarland is now boxing in better form than any day since he began training two weeks ago, immediately after the match was consummated.

The Boxing Commission, at its meeting held yesterday, agreed to the McFarland-Mike Gibbons bout being held at the Ocean A. C. on September 11, after satisfactory proof had been shown that the promoters were financially able to pay the big sum agreed to in the articles of agreement. McFarland already appears to be in excellent condition. Making the weight will not bother him in the least. His condition is so satisfactory that yesterday he took a day off. He just took a long walk and did no work in the gymnasium at all. Johnny Griffiths, the Chicago lightweight, who outboxed Leach Cross last week, joins the staff of sparring partners tomorrow, and will remain with Packie until after the battle. At the end of the week the entire camp will be transferred to Brighton Baths, as Packie has expressed a desire to finish his training near the scene of the big contest. The promoter of the match, W. C. Marshall, wired yesterday that he had engaged quarters for him and was having constructed a complete gymnasium in training quarters, within twenty feet of the big pool.

The Central Baseball League season closed yesterday, Evansville Club winning the pennant.

Arthur Chapple equaled the track record of 39 seconds for the mile in a special time trial over the distance at the Brighton Beach Motordrome last night.

The entry list for the national amateur golf championship, which begins on Saturday at Detroit, contains the names of 138 golfers.

LOWEST MEMBER SCORE OF YEAR ON LINKS BY MURPHY

Arthur Murphy, playing with W. Engeman, made the lowest member's score of the season yesterday on the Plainfield Country Club golf links, when he covered the eighteen holes in 75. Three different holes the fourth, tenth and fifteenth were made in two, the latter being 243 yards, with four as par. On the second hole, where three is par, Mr. Murphy took six strokes before being successful. His score was:

Out .....4 6 5 2 5 4 6 3 4—39
In .....2 6 4 6 5 2 3 5 3—36—75

RACQUET WIELDERS COMPETE.

Merrihew, of this city, by default, while Harold S. Throckmorton, of Ilderan, won from Harry S. Parker, by default. Maurice E. McLoughlin, R. Norris Williams and Karl Behr are not competing this year.

In the cup singles (second round) Harold Throckmorton defeated E. H. Hooker, 6—0, 6—3.

PLAINFIELD A. A. TO MEET T. A. B. S.

Series of Five Sunday Games Scheduled By Local Teams.

Disgusted with the caligre of bait put up by teams they have, at various time, engaged to appear here, the manager of the only two big local Sunday teams have decided to schedule a five-game series between their respective clans. The two outfits, the T. A. B. S. and the Plainfield A. A., have already met twice this season, the Abstainers being humiliated on each occasion However, these two engagements are not to be counted in the five-ply argument, the first section of which will be staged next Sunday on Avon Oval, where all of the games will be played. The Sunday championship is at stake, although the winner is sure to receive challenges from the Farmers, Highlanders and White Sox. Provided the teams maintain a nip and tuck melee all along, the deciding engagement ought to be a hummer and will, no doubt, be run off on September 26.

Owing to the accident which befell Frank Frennan, Manager Jim Monahan has signed Savidge to appear in the outer works. However, he will play only with the Sunday team Johnny Wilson and "Kats" Miller have also been nailed by the enterprising Abstainer chief and they too, will only romp around on Avon Oval on Sundays. The line-ups of the contesting clubs have been altered but little and when the opening gong clangs the teams will rush on the field with the following men in the breast works:

Plainfield A. A.	T. A. B. S.
Jones, lf	Kyle, c
Carney, rf	Wilson, ct
H. Rosenson, cf	Savidge, rf
B. Rosenson, ss	G. Miller, lf
W. Miller, 1b	T. Denny, p-ss
Jacger, 2b	J. Denny, p-ss
Moulton, 3b	McCarthy, 3b
Bergen, c	Scott, 1b
Dixon, p	Geary, 2b

The official umpire will be Frank Malanga.

NICK ALTROCK, LAUGHMAKER

Baseball Jokesmith Is Only Diamond Clown Now In Big Show.

Nick Altrock, who since the departure of Arlie Latham and "Germany" Schaefer for other fields is the only diamond clown remaining with the main show, forced a big laugh in the frolic between the Yanks and the Senators in New York not long ago when an injury to a player threatened to cast a gloom over the festivities.

Fisher and several other Donovanites started to run Shanks down between second and third, and the pitcher finally dashed up behind the runner and slammed him on the back with the clinched ball. The pellet happened to strike Shanks on the spine, and he crumpled up and dropped in his tracks.

As he was being revived and the spectators were on tiptoes to know the extent of his hurt Nick rushed upon the field, hit himself on the head and pretended to fall unconscious. He picked himself up when his teammate revived and staggered toward the bench with him. The performance broke the strain, made everybody laugh, and both Senators were cheered throughout the stands.

RECALLS OLD CONTEST.

Andy Coakley twirled a no-hit, no-run game Saturday, winning 3 to 0. Local fans can still remember the championship contest between the Somerville and Plainfield Central New Jersey League teams, when "Slim" McConnell, now a Fed, then a Yankee, beat old Andy in a rip-roaring nine-inning melee, the locals winning 2 to 1.

ABARMS GETS OFFER.

Hyman Abrams, who recently made his debut as a City League umpire, has received an offer to umpire in Hopewell for the rest of the season. If the pecuniary terms suit Hymie, it is thought, that he will handle the indicator there for the first time this Saturday.

FRANK H. SMITH HONORED BY ELKS

Plainfield Lodge Presents Past Exalted Ruler With Life Membership Card.

IS SUITABLY INSCRIBED

American Flag and Banner Are Also Given to the Lodge By Its Women Friends — Presentation Speeches Followed By Dancing.

Two eventful chapters in the history of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., were added last night, at the splendid quarters of the organization on Watchung avenue. One, the lasting appreciation, love and esteem of fellow members to a brother who has given so much toward the completion of a supposed impossible project. The other, a splendid exhibit of the co-operative spirit of feminine admirers of the great organization, through whose efforts Plainfield Lodge will display two handsome banners in the reunion of Elk organizations in Atlantic City, September 13 and 14. Though the intention was to acquire one banner from the receipts of the card party given by the wives of Elks several weeks ago, an American flag, measuring five feet eight, was purchased at the same time from the receipts of a second card party given at the home of Mrs. A. E. Force. Both emblems are masterpieces of the weavers' art, being pure silk, the former embroidered and the latter fringed with gold. In the back of the banner an inscription, bearing the fact that the banner comes from the wives of members of the club, is suitably inscribed.

Past Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith

In presenting the two emblems to Exalted Ruler Alfred A. Prudhon, Mrs. George R. Westcott said:

"Exalted ruler, officers and members of Plainfield Lodge: As the representative of the committee of women who have desired to show in a visible, tangible way their good wishes and feeling toward this lodge, and their appreciation for the courtesies which from time to time have been extended to them by its members, a very pleasant duty has been assigned to me this evening.

"In common with the Elks themselves, it has at all times been our earnest desire that the Plainfield Lodge should make a brave showing before all, that it should be recognized far and wide as standing for those great things which make life both attractive and honorable.

"That it has been our privilege to secure this banner for you gives us all great reason for rejoicing; that it is in reality the gift, not of a small group of women, but literally of hundreds, will, we hope, give it added attractions in your eyes.

"We present this banner to you gladly, enthusiastically, wholeheartedly, 'long may it wave,' long may its beauty remain inviolate, and may there never come a day when the women of Plainfield will not bid the Elks Godspeed in their every plan and work, and with the same constant and unselfish devotion which has characterized the work which this ceremony brings to an honorable and triumphant conclusion. Gentlemen, the banner is yours."

"It is with the greatest honor and the most sincere pleasure that we present to Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, this beautiful flag.

"It's the flag of a resolute nation,
It's the flag of the strong and free,
It's the cherished of true-hearted millions,
And we hallow its colors three.
Three proud, floating emblems of glory,
Our guide in the coming time,
The Red, White and Blue in their beauty,
Love gives them a meaning sublime.
One land, one heart, one hand,
One flag forevermore;
May it protect from East to West,
From North to South, from shore to shore.

H. C. KIEDERLING WINS PONY CONTEST

Award Will Be Made At Park and North Avenues On Tuesday.

The first McKeon Pony Contest has been decided. The $200 saddle pony and outfit goes to Henry C. Keiderling, the twelve-year-old son of Daniel H. Keiderling, of 133 East Second street, this city, and will be awarded next Tuesday at Park and North avenues. The successful contestant polled 2,810,00 votes.

The vote was close, the successful contestant winning by only 234,800 votes. The standing of the three highest contestants was as follows: Keiderling, 2,810,000; Jack D. MacQueen, of 212 Clinton avenue, 2,575,200, and Miss Lillian Pashin, of 1000 West Third street, 2,132,370. These figures, while practically correct, are subject to verification, according to Frank McKeon.

In the last published account of the standing of the various boys and girls in line for the pony, Miss Pashin was first, MacQueen second and Keiderling third.

Henry C. Keiderling is a brother to Harvey Keiderling, who was awarded the Boy Scout bronze hero medal by the National Court of Honor last Fourth of July, for saving the life of Sadie Pangborn, daughter of Mrs. James Pangborn, on Robbins' Circus day, when he dragged her out from under the feet of a group of frightened horses.

TOO MUCH KISSING OVERCOMES CHIEF

Boro Police Head Yields to Pleadings of Women Caught Stealing Apples.

Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, had an amusing experience with several Italian women and children this morning whom he drove out of the Charles Hyde apple orchard. Answering a telephone call complaining that a number of women were stealing apples in the orchard and would not leave the place, the chief mounted his bicycle and rode hot-foot to the scene to find that the charge was true.

He counted three full-grown women, five babies and at least a dozen children of all sizes picking apples as fast as they could move fingers and hands, and swooped down upon them with all the authority of the law. At first they scorned to be driven away by a single man, but when he flashed his chief's badge they changed their attitude and became quite docile. In fact, they were downright scared, and, gathering up the fruit they had picked, prepared to beat a hasty departure.

But Chief Weiss was not through with them. He intended to frighten them so badly as to insure their remaining away from the orchard forever afterwards, so pretended to place them under arrest. Then it was that the amusing part of the encounter began.

Each woman in the party had an immense bag of apples on her head, besides all the fruit she could tuck inside her skirts, and they were walking away with it all towards their homes when Chief Weiss called a halt and indicated the direction to the borough lock-up. The women hadn't expected anything like that, and began to cry and beg to be released. Finding the chief too hardened to yield to their tears, they got down on their knees before and beseeched him with uplifted hands to let them go, promising by all the saints they could name not to steal any more apples from that particular orchard.

Still the chief was adamant, so they tried other tactics. One of the women put her lips to the chief's shoes and began kissing his feet, and the other two followed suit. As he was still unyielding, they carried their kissing to his hands, and in a perfect frenzy of grief, pleaded, "O papa, leta us go!"

Then one woman seemed to reach the limit of her endurance, and in the act of pressing kisses on his hand toppled over backwards in a dead faint, or a pretended one, Chief Weiss does not know which, for he had to yield to the persuasions after that, and gave permisssion for them to go home, apples, babies, children and all. The one who had fainted was revived suspiciously soon, but the chief could stand no more such pleadings, and did not intimate whether he thought her fainting was all a farce or not.

The Hyde family complain also of men and boys who go swimming in the water on the estate, and Chief Weiss will likely pay his respects to them, too, tomorrow.

DEMOCRATS FIX SLATE ON OUTING

Annual Affair Is Marked By Harmony and Enthusiasm Over Political Outlook.

CANDIDATES ENDORSED

W. A. Leonard, P. J. Reville and Edward Meek Picked For Assembly—Senator Martine Cordially Greeted By His Friends.

Unanimous in their political opinions as well as that the twentieth annual outing was the best ever, about 1,500 friends and members of the Elizabeth Democratic Executive Committee and the Democratic Club, of Elizabeth, returned to Elizabeth last night from Witzel's Point View Grove, shouting for a Democratic victory all along the line for this year.

Oldtimers who had attended practically all of the outings of these organizations stated they never saw such harmony prevail and that it appeared to them as though the Democratic primary would simply be an excuse for friends to greet each other and talk over the topics of the day.

United States Senator James E. Martine was of the party and again announced to all that he was a candidate to succeed himself in 1916. He was cordially greeted and spent a strenuous day.

The absence of General Dennis S. Collins for the first time in a number of years from one of these outings was much noticed. It was explained that General Collins started for the Panama-Pacific Exposition Tuesday.

SECURE RIGHT OF WAY FOR SEWERS

Practically All the Land For the Trunk Line and Force Main Obtained.

PAYMENTS ARE MADE

Commission Votes to Reimbuse Dunellen For Cost of Strip of Land Instead of Accepting Offer of Equator Realty Company.

Getting together after a delay due to the necessity of the members holding numerous conferences, the Joint Sewerage Commission held a meeting last night in the Common Council chamber. The usual routine business, such as passing the regular contractors' requisitions for payments, and listening to reports concerning the progress of the work, was transacted.

The attorneys representing the Commission reported that the right of way committee had made awards in the cases of the Dr. H. A. Bunker and the J. C. Robinson properties. The Commission voted to pay the awards, either to the owners directly or into court, as was found advisable, the latter way being suggested because of alleged friction between some of the interested parties.

Through the Bunker property it will be necessary to lay about 3,000 feet of sewer pipe altogether. Some of this well be trunk sewer and the rest the Dunellen line.

A knotty state of affairs was revealed by a report from the Dunellen members, who stated that the owners of the Equator Park tract of land in that borough had agreed to lay out a street through the tract and deed it to the borough of Dunellen, so that the borough might have a street through which to carry its sewer into the tract, but that upon investigation it was found that the company did not have sufficient title to the property in question, as it had sold lots on the contract plan all along the proposed street. As condemnation proceedings would have been costly, because the lots had been sold to people all over the country, and it would have been necessary to name all these interested parties in the suits, it was decided by the Dunellen contingent to purchase the strip outright. At the meeting last night the Commission voted to reimburse Dunellen for the cost of the strip of property.

The right of way committee reported that all except about one hundred feet of right of way for the joint sewer and the force main has been secured.

REVOLUTIONIZED WOMEN'S HATS

American Magazine Has Interesting Account of Fight Made By Wm. Dutcher.

FRIEND OF BONNIE BURN

Plainfielder's Work For Audubon Societies Praised—Gave Willingly of Own Time and Money to Stop Use of Birds On Women's Hats.

In the pages devoted to "interesting people" in the American Magazine, for September, is an article by Edwin L. Shuman, describing the splendid work done by William Dutcher, of Park avenue, this city, for the protection of birds. The article is headed "The Man Who Revolutionized Women's Hats," and tells, as has never been told in Plainfield, of the great fight made by Mr. Dutcher before the New York Legislature prior to the time his health broke down. The story is accompanied by an excellent half-tone likeness of Mr. Dutcher, who has a host of friends in this city. He is especially thought of by many because of his fight some years ago before the New Jersey Legislature for the bill which made it possible to establish county tuberculosis sanatoriums, including Bonnie Burn, in this county. The article follows:

I stood one afternoon on the Murray Hill slope of Fifth avenue, New York, and marveled at the women's hats in the procession of fashionable shoppers. They were as pretty as ever, but somebody had removed the plumes and skins of wild birds that had decorated most of them for two decades. And these Fifth avenue

LITTLE FOR JUDGE DE MEZA IN CITY COURT THIS MORNING

John Donato was arrested by Patrolman Kelley last night, for loitering in the rear of Proctor's Theatre. He told the judge that he had gone to sleep in a wagon there, and woke up just as the officer came around. He was let go, with instructions to sleep at his home on Bergen street in the future.

George Alexander was held in $50 bail by Judge DeMeza, this morning, charged by Charles Bicknell with being disorderly and threatening his life. Trial will take place on Saturday morning.

Andrew Greve, sixteen years old, was arrested on Tuesday at the request of his stepmother, Mrs. Amelia Greve. She said he would not help support the family and never paid any board when he was working. The police think that Greve may know something about some things that were missing from an automobile a few days ago, but he denies any knowledge of the matter. After the court talked to him he left weeping, and promised to help his stepmother, and give her part of his pay every week.

ROBERT HART, JR., MET HIS DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENT

The funeral of Robert Hart, Jr., formerly of this city, was held yesterday morning from the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Burnett, of Washington street, and later at St. Mary's church, where a solemn requiem mass was offered by Father MacDonald. Many former acquaintances and friends attended the service. The floral offerings were especially noteworthy. Burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: Hugh Nicholl, John Lyons, John Cahill, Robert McMullen, G. F. Fowley and Leon D. Rodgers.

Mr. Hart met his death last Saturday at Hartford, Conn., in an automobile accident. A seven-passenger jitney crushed the unfortunate young man, but just the exact details of the accident were impossible to be ascertained. He was removed to a hospital and died in the institution in two hours. The driver of the car was held in $1,000 bail. Mr. Hart was employed by an opera company of Hartford, Conn.

HARMONY KEYNOTE OF G. O. P. OUTING

Middlesex Republicans Endorse Candidates and Have a Love Feast.

Harmony was the keynote struck at the outing of the Middlesex G. O. P. yesterday, to Coney Island. Only one important boom was launched the candidacy of William H. Spencer, of Perth Amboy, for State Senator. The organization endorsed him for the office and made him its choice.

It was apparent yesterday that there will be no serious contention in the ranks of the organization over the nominations for Assembly this year. The Board of Freeholders may develop a fight, but nowhere else is one looked for.

The outing took about 700 people. The steamer Albion was chartered for the trip, which was made in safety and comfort. A shore dinner was served at Feltman's.

Prominent G. O. P. workers from New Brunswick, Perth Amboy, South Amboy, Metuchen, Dunellen and New Market were along. State Committeeman Alfred S. March, County Chairman John Pfeiffer, Mayor Garretson, of Perth Amboy, and Mayor William Dey, of South Amboy, were among the prominent men on the outing.

MISS LULU LAMMERS NOW OUT OF DANGER

Miss Lammers, who had just returned from a few weeks' vacation in New Haven, Conn., was feeling quite ill, and by mistake she took the horse medicine for the family medicine. When her parents discovered the mistake she was hurriedly rushed to the hospital, and wor a time was to the hospital, and for a time was now have hopes of her recovery.

GREATEST AERIAL RAID OF THE WAR

Sixty-two French Machines Drop 150 Bombs On German Arms Factories.

BERNSTOFF AT CAPITOL

Sees Secretary Lansing About Arabic—Latter Denies Receiving Report From Gerard—Russians Admit Retreat From Bielostok.

Berlin, Aug. 26 (Bulletin)—Brest Litovsk, the Russian fortress behind which the Grand Duke's Russian army retired after the fall of Warsaw, has been captured by the Austro-German troops after one of the shortest seiges in history. The capture of the fortress was announced today by the German war office. The victory is considered one of the most brilliant of the war.

Paris, Aug. 26—The greatest air raid since the war began was reported today by the French war office. Dillingen, in Rhenish Prussia, Germany, was attacked by 62 war aeroplans of the French. About 150 bombs were dropped upon the town. Great damage was done to the blast furnaces and arms factories.

Extreme significance is attached by observers to a conference of war leaders held Monday at Chantilly, close behind the lines in Northern France. It was attended by Lord Kitchener, Field Marshal Joffre, General Foch and other army chiefs. No intimation of the subject or the result of their conference is allowed to be published.

Announcement that martial law will be abolished everywhere in France outside of the military zone after September 1 is interpreted as a sign of confidence in official circles that the interior administration of France will not be disturbed again by military operations.

Servia is reported to have given a favorable reply to the powers of the quadruple Entente relative to the demands of Bulgaria for Macedonian territory. Acceptance of Bulgaria's demands by Servia is expected to line up Bulgaria as a friendly neutral or else bring the Bulgar kingdom into the war on the side of the Allies.

Washington, Aug. 26—Ambassador Bernstorff reached the State Department at 10:25 today, having arrived here last night, and immediately went into Secretary Lansing's office. He refused to discuss with newspaper men the object of his visit or say whether he had received a report from Berlin as to the sinking of the Arabic.

After a conference of half an hour with Secretary Lansing, Ambassador Bernstorff left the State Department for the German embassy. Smiling and in good humor the ambassador would not divulge the nature of his engagement with Mr. Lansing, although the impression was received that the Secretary and ambassador were in hearty accord as to the subject of their discussion. That it concerned the Arabic was taken for granted.

Secretary Lansing stated today that he had not received a code despatch from Ambassador Gerard, in Berlin, reported to have been sent last night after his conferences with German Foreign Secretary van Jagow. He professed to be in ignorance of the purpose of the message.

The press despatches which the secretary referred to said that Germany's position regarding the sinking of the Arabic, on the facts thus far obtainable, was laid before the State Department at Washington today.

Ambassador Gerard was alleged to have last night cabled to Washington a long code message, which he refused to discuss, but expressed the conviction that the Arabic matter will be settled without a break between the United States and Germany.

Berlin, Aug. 26—There will be a delay of at least a fortnight before the German government makes its official report to Washington on the sinking of the Arabic. Foreign Minister von Jagow notified Ambassador Gerard that the German government does not expect to have any information on the Arabic for about two weeks.

Petrograd, Aug. 26—It was admitted at the war office today that Bielostok could no longer be held by the Russians, and that the rear guard troops left in that city when the main Russian forces and civilian inhabitants withdrew to the eastward, had been ordered to evacuate.

London, Aug. 26—Official information was lacking today of reports sent from Paris that a German cruiser Augsburg was sunk by a Russian submarine in the Baltic Sea north of Danzig.

T. W. BILYEU ESTIMATES HIS FIRE LOSS AT $1,200

T. W. Bilyeu, of New Market, whose blacksmith shop burned to the ground Tuesday night as the result of being struck by lightning, told a reporter yesterday that he had had nothing but misfortune since he has been in the blacksmith business. He opened his first shop on Somerset street, North Plainfield, in 1871. In 1882 this shop was washed away by a big freshet. He has been located in New Market for four years and during that time his shop has been broken into four times and tools worth $125 taken.

Mr. Bilyeu said that in his shop at the time it burned down was $600 worth of tools and stock and $100 in work which was just about completed. He estimates his total loss to be about $1,200. This will be partially covered by an insurance policy of $500. If he gets this money from the insurance company he will probably build another shop.

Thomas' last run arrives at Cranford at 1 o'clock which gives him a wait of almost an hour for his train home. It happened yesterday morning while passing the time that he became engaged in an argument with a friend. The argument was so spirited that Thomas took no notice of the train when it pulled in and when he was ready to go home he found that there would be no train to take him until 4:56. So it was either up to him to walk home or hang around Cranford. He made the trip in two hours.

Following the baseball game troop 7 of Plainfield, will give a demonstration of "First Aid treatment" and pyramid building.

DEATH OF CHILD.

Elsie, the ten months' old daughter of Mrs. Mabel Rose, of Harmony street, died yesterday at Muhlenberg Hospital after a brief illness. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the house and interment will be made in the Methodist cemetery. The child was a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hope, of Harmony street.

FIRE ON PATROLS.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Marine patrols in Port Au Prince were fired on last night, according to a despatch received at the Navy Department today from Rear Admiral Caperton, in command of the landing forces in Haiti. Conditions, he said, are unchanged.

COAL FIELDS QUIETER.

Cardiff, Aug. 26.—The situation in the Welsh coal fields was less menacing today, and many of the miners in the Cardiff district returned to work. However, a final adjustment of the trouble is not yet in sight.

VILLA TROOPS VICTORIOUS OVER THE CARRANZISTAS

Washington, Aug. 26.—The Villa forces have succeeded in surrounding Monterey, following a complete victory over the Carranza troops at Vila Garcia, between Paredon and Monterey, according to a despatch received today by Senor Enrique Llorente, the Villa representative here.

San Antonio, Texas Aug. 26.—More than 500 shots were exchanged between Mexican bandits on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande near Progresso, and American troopers late yesterday, according to advices received here today.

PALMER NOT TO GET PLACE.

Washington, Aug. 26.—It became definitely known today that A. Mitchell Palmer, former representative from Pennsylvania, will not be appointed counsellor of the State Department. Mr. Palmer is not an expert on international law, and it is Secretary Lansing's desire to fill that post with an appointee who has had diplomatic experience.

SPECIAL MARSHAL RESIGNS.

Special Marshal George Cooper, of the North Plainfield police force, has resigned his office. Mr. Cooper found the work too much for him in addition to his regular employment, the police work coming mostly at night.

Hamburg's Unique Ferry.

Hamburg possesses a steam ferry of a somewhat original type, for the main deck can be raised and lowered by suitable machinery in order to take up a difference of level of some sixteen feet. The large structural framework rises to a considerable height and is intended to guide the whole platform in its vertical movements. By the use of powerful electric winches it is possible to raise and lower the deck as a whole, even when it is loaded with numerous heavy vehicles, such as are used in landing material at the port. The reason for adopting this arrangement of the deck lies in the fact that at the Hamburg port the difference in tide level is considerable, so that when the boat lands at the wharf it is by no means on the same level at all times and in the ordinary case the heavy vehicles would be obliged to mount or descend a steep incline. It is in order to avoid this drawback that the present type of ferry was constructed, and as the movable deck can always be brought flush with the level of the dock, the vehicles can now run off in the ordinary way.

Lawyers and Liars.

The eminent cross examiners of New York city have their favorite methods of knowing when a witness is telling the truth or lying. One lawyer says he can tell when a witness is lying by the movement of the lips. Another declares the hands form the best barometer, and another declares the twitching of the muscles of the cheeks is a sure sign that the witness has been trapped in a lie. Still another disciple of Blackstone says that facial expression always helps him, as well as watching the feet, which are usually shifted uneasily when the lie is apparent. Then another declares that by keeping constant vigilance on the eyes of the witness he knows when he has his man "going." If taken as complete formula it would mean that a perjurer to escape detection would have to school his face to be impassive, keep his hands in his pockets, hook his feet in the rounds of the witness chair and shut his eyes.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Garden of the Near East.

Brusa, situated at the foot of Mount Olympus, in Asiatic Turkey, is the garden city of the near east. Every mosque and public building and almost every house stands in its own garden, under the shadow of sycamore, cypress or fig trees. The flora of the surrounding district is so rich and varied that it has been the happy hunting ground of botanists for centuries, and some authorities regard it as the cradle land of many of our sweetest spring flowers—the hyacinth, the tulip, the snow drop and the jonquil.—London Spectator.

You Touch a Magic Button When You Become a "Want Advertiser."

Our day is the day of "touching buttons."

A President presses a button in Washington, and a titanic explosion, thousands of miles away, weds the two great seas.

We are fond, nowadays, of accomplishing big effects with simple processes.

And so the "button-pressing" magic applies to the "little things" of life, as well as to the big episodes.

When you become a "want advertiser" you press a MAGIC BUTTON—and the influence is felt in the homes and business places of the city.

Your quest becomes of interest to the people who are able to help you accomplish it.

If you seek work, and "press the button" of Plainfield Daily Press want advertising publicity, your quest becomes one of personal interest to the people who need you. The same law operates in the working out of every "want ad task."

For classified advertising makes the whole city your market; makes the right people your audience; delivers your message to all people to whom it could have any interest or importance.

Press want Ads. work wonders.

EXHIBITS MARK CLOSE OF SEASON

Fitting Climax to Successful Work at Various City Playgrounds.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMS

Children Display Unusual Ability at Amusement Centres — Exciting Athletic Contests Among the Features.

As a fitting climax to a very successful playground season, the supervisors of the St. Mary's and Irving School amusement centres held their annual exhibit yesterday afternoon. The Franklin School exhibition was held about a week ago, while the Bryant celebration will be staged today, when the season comes to a close.

About 150 children, together with many of their parents and friends, attended the Irving School exhibition and enjoyed a very pretty program which began at 3 and ended at 5 o'clock. Folk dances opened the festivities and the following dances were executed to perfection, "I See You," Danish Dance of Greeting; "Hickory—dickory, dock," "Chimes of Dunkirk," Mountain March and Ace of Diamonds. Specimens of the sewing and basket weaving work accomplished by the children under the guidance of the instructress, Miss Ruth Wean, and her able assistant, Miss Marion Mair, commanded the admiration of the many visitors present. A basketball match between two "fives" of youths was full of excitement. The set composed of Sims, Porter, Bussel, Yake and Hines defeating that made up of Shirley, Morely, McCarty, Holloway and Heron, 14 to 6. Relay races and the eating of refreshments completed the afternoon's program. All voted the work accomplished by the two young women in charge, distinctly successful.

Almost two hundred children, accompanied by about as many of their admiring parents and friends, Miss Helen C. George and her assistant, Lucy Douglas, provided a splendid program of dancing and relay games, Dodge ball matches between three teams captained by "Ipper" Witteman, Angelo Brancati and Francis Simpson resulting in a win for the Simpson brigade. Exhibits of the handiwork taught the children during the short seven weeks they have been at the craft spoke well for the work accomplished by those in charge.

Lillian Johnson and Elizabeth Hagan finished first and second in the potato race, while Tom Simpson annexed the 30 yard dash for boys. The winners were all given ice cream cones. Clog-dancing by Master Buddy Pagluicca, a professional, and member of this particular playground, featured the program, music for the occasion being played by Randolph Douglas.

The following children participated in the events at St. Mary's: Maida Larew, Marguerite Roseberry, Mary Russ, Frances Flatley, Veronica Newell, Loretta Connelly, Lizzie Bloom, Minnie Mendelsohn, Margaret Guinee, Elizabeth Keading, Rose Dubrosky, Sarah Seligman, Florence Conroy, Margaret Ennis, Lillian Johnson, Marguerite Graniery, Gertrude Erber, Gertrude Howarth, Mamie Connelly, Mary Soriano, Maggie Soriano, Mildred Erber, Anna O'Keefe, Eleanor Thomas, Mary McCann, Sadie Goldberg, Lillian Rosenthal, Veronica Graniery, Madeline Ryan, Mary Esthel Kiley, Gertrude Conroy, Pauline Riess, Lillian Dubrowsky, Clara Shafer, Elizabeth Shafer, Helen Zepp, Elsie Linquist, Anna Pangborne, Loretta Coddington, Margaret Guinee, Jennie VanTowsky and Sophie Pickin.

Miss Harriet Moe, supervisor of the Bryan playground, held her exhibit this afternoon.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Greater Love Hath No Man" is the title of a photodrama of unusually dramatic theme, which will be the chief attraction at the U. S. Astor Theatre this afternoon and tonight, topining a bill of extraordinary merit. In addition to this superb feature a splendid lot of drama and comedies will also be screened, and there will be special music. Comely Blanche Sweet will appear on the screen of the Astor tomorrow in "The Captive," in which she gives one of the finest bits of character portrayal seen this year. Everything that tends to make a film artistic will be found in this splendid subject produced by the Lasky Company. Chief of Miss Sweet's support will be House Peters, who is seen at the pinnacle of his dramatic form. Theodore Roberts and others equally prominent in filmdom will also be seen in this film.

MRS. WILLIBAUD'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Amelia Willibaud, an inmate of the city almshouse, who died in an Elizabeth hospital Tuesday, was held this morning at 10 o'clock from St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, Rev. Joseph S. MacMahon officiating. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

ANDREW C. THOMPSON GETS DODGE AGENCY

Popular Priced Car to Be Offered By Well Known Agency.

Word has been received from Detroit confirming the appointment of Thompson Auto Co. as local dealers for Dodge Brothers in Plainfield and vicinity. Mr. Thompson is today the subject of congratulations on Automobile Row, as the agency for Dodge Brothers' car is one of the most sought after of any motor car on the market.

Just a year ago, Dodge Brothers, who had been manufacturing the vital parts for more than 500,000 motor cars, announced that they would soon market a car bearing their own name. Today, over 20,000 satisfied purchasers of Dodge Brothers' cars are driving their machines daily and obtaining the utmost in satisfaction.

"Perhaps never before in the history of the automobile industry has a new car met with such instantaneous success as has Dodge Brothers' car," says Mr. Thompson today. "Dealers and owners have now had a year in which to judge the car and it goes without saying that the public has set its stamp of approval on this popular priced car. Not only has the factory been oversold from the very beginning, but even today, when the first rush might be expected to be over, we have three purchasers for every car we can get."

Dodge Brothers' new automobile is a real car in every particular. Freakish design has been carefully avoided and the beautiful stream-line body is combined with a powerful 30-35 horsepower motor, to make an ideal car for five passengers. It is a big roomy car in every sense of the word, having a wheelbase of 110 inches and wheels 32 by 3½ inches. The motor is cast enbloc and has a bore of 3 7-8 inches and a stroke 4½ inches. Electric lighting and starting apparatus is included, and the equipment in every way suggests the car of $2,000 rather than one of $785, the price which Dodge Brothers have made. Real leather upholstery and the latest type of self-lubricating springs makes the car one of the easiest riding machines that has ever been marketed. Among the unusual features on the car is the speedometer drive, which is connected directly to the transmission and is, therefore, practically trouble proof. The arrangement of the transmission gears is also a novel one, no gears except the third being in operation when the car is driven on direct drive.

FIX SLATE ON OUTING

One of the happy men on board was Lucius T. Russell, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee. He remarked the harmonious time and again and more than once congratulated himself that his work would be greatly lessened by the lack of any friction.

It was stated that there are three logical candidates for the Assembly nominations—William A. Leonard, Patrick J. Reville and Edward Meek.

Leonard, who is known as "Bill" to every man, woman and child in Union county, is accepted as the strongest aspirant for the honor he seeks. "Bill" is one man who is against prohibition and everybody that knows him is acquainted with this fact.

Although he does not indulge in alcoholic beverages himself, Leonard believes in letting those who want a drink have it, he explained to a crowd yesterday who questioned him on this particular point. Leonard served two terms in the Legislature.

Francis V. Dobbins, of Rahway, announced that he would not be a candidate for the Assembly nomination. He was a member of the 1914 Legislature, where he accomplished some worthy work for his constituents.

Patrick J. Reville, of this city, was present with several score of his admirers nursing his Assembly boom.

The third candidate for the Assembly honors is Edward Meek, said to be one of the hardest workers for the Democratic party in this county. Mr. Meek is a resident of the Tenth ward, Elizabeth, and besides being an officer of the Democratic Club he is president of the Tenth Ward Democratic Committee. He never sought office before.

One of the most popular men on board was former Freeholder George T. Carroll, of Elizabeth, who this fall will try to win back his old county job. Mr. Carroll is one of six Democrats who yesterday announced their intention of seeking the freeholder nominations. The others are: Freeholders William A. Bourdon, Dennis F. Hennessy, John C. Meyerholz, Maurice Levins and Walter Tenny, of Elizabeth.

Candidates for the county offices were not very much in evidence, but they will be named in their various cities and towns. It was not definitely decided who should be candidate for coroner, but as this office is not looked upon as a very important one a man will not be named until the next meeting of the Democratic committee.

That funny fellow Scoop is on the classified page.

REVOLUTIONIZE WOMEN'S HATS

styles were representative of all the other women's hats from Maine to California! The next day I went out to Plainfield, New Jersey, to see the man who had worked this change. I knew he must be a brave man to meddle with the millinery of twenty million women, and as he had saved still more millions of beautiful birds from destruction it was probable that he had a heart.

If George Bird Grinnell was the Washington of the bird protection movement, William Dutcher was its Lincoln. Mr. Grinnell founded and named the original Audubon Society, in 1886, when the fashion of wearing plumage on women's hats had already begun to make alarming inroads on bird life. He was on the editorial staff of "Forest and Stream," and that magazine devoted much space and labor to the work for a time. But after two or three years the whole movement collasped for lack of funds, the society went to pieces, the "Audubon Magazine" died, "Forest and Stream" found the burden of correspondence too heavy to be borne, and the cause that had called forth enthusiastic letters from such men as Beecher, Whittier, Holmes, Burroughs and Bishop Potter seemed as dead as the mangled bird skins in the milliners' windows.

During those dark days of the '90's one man, working alone in his insurance office on Broadway, kept the dying embers alive until he had fanned them again into a purposeful flame. Mr. Dutcher, like Mr. Grinnell, was a member of the American Ornithological Union, and had long been active on its committe for bird protection. Now he took up the fight single-handed, on his own authority and at his own expense. At first he gave up a corner of his office to it, employed an extra stenographer, paid the bills and wrote letters far into the night with his own hand. When the work grew, he rented another room on the floor below, connected it by telephone with his own desk, and thus kept two businesses running at the same time. He had not much money to spare for he had to earn his daily bread, but he would not accept the slightest recompense for this work. He told his friends that if he took one cent for himself it would "spoil the whole thing." And he never did, even after he had attracted hundreds of thousands of dollars to the support of the cause.

A big, bearded, forceful man he was, without a selfish bone in his body, a good naturalist, with a deeply religious nature, enormous enthusiasm and bulldog determination. With the aid of his fellow members of the Ornithological Union he undertook to revive the Audubon idea in the form of State societies, and to get better bird protective laws through the various Legislatures. The New York society was the first to get under way, followed closely by that of Massachusetts, and today there are thirty-five State Audubon societies in his federation.

Nothing ever tired or discouraged him. Ending a day's work in his office, he would jump on a train to go and do another day's work before midnight among the legislators at Albany. Politicians lived in terror of this "bird crank." The aigrette trade, which he fought from the first, spiked its guns when it could with a paid lobby. He got hard knocks and many defeats, but in 1910 his efforts were crowned with success when the Empire State passed the Plumage Law forbidding the sale of "the white badge of cruelty." It was the beginning of the end of that traffic.

He never wearied of preaching the great value of insectivorous birds to agriculture; yet the farmers and fruit growers of the United States probably will never realize how much his labors benefited them. He cared not a feather's weight who got the glory for any of his work, so long as it was accomplished. Even the millinery dealers and the "game hog," while they fought his reforms, admitted his unselfishness. There was nothing he would not do for anyone who showed the slightest interest in his hobby.

Just the type of man to lead a forlorn hope, you see. Men of wealth began to be interested. Mr. Dutcher's work to save the birds extended over at least twenty years.

Then he was stricken with paralysis in the midst of his overwork, and though his mind is as active as ever he has had to retire from the firing line. But the force he started has gone steadily forward.

In its ten years' career the National Association of Audubon Societies, which he founded, working shoulder to shoulder with the New York Zoological Society and other friends of wild life, has helped to create a new national sentiment regarding the slaughter of our wild birds; and this sentiment has been crystallized in two Federal laws, one forbidding the importation of all wild birds' plumage, the other putting an end to the reckless killing of our migratory birds by pot butchers and plume hunters. Dr. William T. Hornaday, Mr. John B. Burnham, Mr. T. Gilbert Pearson and a score of others did the active fighting that put these excellent laws on our statute books; but they would be the first to say that when the honor roll is written the name of William Dutcher should lead all the rest.

By way of explanation, our reference here to Brokaw's is only intended as a relative comparison inasmuch as this store is the foremost of its kind in this locality.

An uninsured automobile is considered a liability rather than an asset in banking circles. When one goes to a bank to borrow money, he is quite likely to be asked whether he owns a car and if it is insured. If the car is not covered, the banker will point out that it is a menace to the pocketbook as the owner may be forced to pay $10,000 to $20,000 damages to some one. We can remove this obstacle. BEWARE! THE DOG CATCHER IS ABOUT

Many Owners Awake to Find Their Homes Bereft of Pet Canines.

Hist! The dog catcher is about! Be it known by all doggies that safety for them lies only in keeping under cover, for the bad man with the long net and the covered wagon is patrolling the streets of Plainfield daily on the lookout for all stray canines. One fell swoop of the strong net or a pass with a wire noose may spell destruction for almost any dog these days, for even if the doggie wears the metal tag of registry, if it happens to be on the street without having a leash or chain attached to its collar, and comes within the vision of the dog catcher, it is doomed.

Although a dog catcher was appointed some time ago, the man has only started in to work, owing to the failure of the city to provide him with a suitable wagon, it is said. Owners of dogs, who had looked in vain for some sign of "Mr. Dog Catcher" about the streets, had begun to think that the appointee had grown tired of his job before he had begun, and little by little they began to allow their pets more liberty until at length some of them made no attempt at all to restrain their dogs wanderings.

But like everything else, in the day of greatest apparent security the lightning bolt falls. So confident were people generally that the dog catcher threat was only an empty one that they winked and snickered at the mention of such an office, especially as the summer was passing quickly by and no signs of his work were to be seen.

But like a bolt out of the clear sky the blow fell. Without any advertising of the fact the city provided the dog catcher with his wagon and straightaway the official started in to work in earnest. It was no hard task for him to settle upon the sections of the city where his work would be easy, for if he paid any attention to the habits of the dog owners of Plainfield he could have mapped out a week's campaign ahead and decided upon just what streets to tackle day after day. The dog owners didn't believe there was a dog catcher, so why should they worry?

But some of this class are worrying today, or have already worried to the tune of a dollar, for Tuesday and yesterday there were many dogless homes in Plainfield which had went to echo to the yaps of a petted canine. The dog catcher has been around and caught the owners unawares. To a Plainfield man who visited the dog pound last night for the purpose of redeeming a dog that he had permitted to escape from the house under the belief of fancied security, it looked as if the dog catching business was particularly good just at present. There was a houseful of dogs of all breeds and sizes, waiting for redemption, and unless this warning is read pretty generally and the liberty of all dogs curtailed until the catcher tires of his work and voluntarily ceases active efforts, more tears will be shed and additional dollars will go into the pocketbook of the pound-master on Rock avenue.

October 19—State referendum election, and third registration day in municipalities of more than 5,000 people.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

"Let not our esteemed Democratic contemporaries become unduly excited," comments the Trenton State Gazette, "over the fact that Republican election officers have been requested to contribute $2 each to the party campaign fund." The Gazette adds:

"The sum is not so great and the election officers ought to be willing to contribute that amount to the forwarding of a campaign that must be fought by the party, in the success of which they are interested.

"In asking for the money the Republican State Committee is doing nothing unusual, nor is it violating the law which says that no holder of any public office or position, not filled by the voters, shall contribute to the nomination or election of any person to public office. It is provided, however, that this prohibition shall not apply to any person holding an appointive office or position, the term of which is fixed by law.

"Election officers are appointed to office for a term of two years. They are not elected by the people, and in asking them to pony up $2 for the good of the cause the chairman of the State Committee is doing only what the law permits him to do, and what the necessities of the case require him to do."

The Republicans of Middlesex county held their annual outing at Coney Island yesterday, the trip being made on the steamer Albion. Former Judge Robert Carey, of Jersey City; former Prosecutor Charles Crossley, of Mercer county, and State Chairman Newton A. K. Bugbee were among the guests.

A meeting of the Republican Club, of Summit, will be held tonight, when the report of the nominating committee will be received. It is probable that the organization will endorse its president, Ruford Franklin, for the Mayoralty nomination, as Councilman-at-Large Clement K. Corbin, who had been mentioned, has said that he is not a candidate. Robert J. Murphy has no opposition for councilman-at-large, and he will also likely be endorsed.

Senator Walter E. Edge, who is at the present time acting Governor, refuses to talk of his political aspirations for 1916, but he offers no objection to his name being connected with rumors of prospective candidacies for either United States Senator or Governor. He declares that he intends to devote all his energy to the coming session of the Legislature, which he thinks will have a distinct effect on the 1916 election. From his talk it is evident that he will accept the nomination for one of the offices named, if offered to him, but at the present time he says announcements would be premature.

"If I am to be a candidate for higher responsibilities," he says, "the fact will be made known in ample time."

The anti-Wittpenn ticket in Hudson county has been announced and the fight is on. Sheriff Kinkead, with Surrogate John P. Egan, is planning the struggle, and has already scored a victory by naming William O'Neill, of Hoboken, for the Board of Freeholders. O'Neill is said to be one of the strongest possible candidates in Hoboken, and it is believed that he will make a fine fight against Democratic Leader Patrick Griffin's forces, which are arrayed with Wittpenn. The anti-Wittpenn Assembly candidates are: Frederick Armstrong, Frank A. Dolan, Archibald M. Henry, Jacob J. Singer, Charles Colgan, Ulysses G. Borden, James C. Agnew, Edward C. Zeiger and Leo Sullivan. Others are to be announced later. They may include Edward J. Armstrong and William M. Schultz.

MRS. RALSTON TO SPEAK AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

Mrs. Edward S. Ralston, of the Netherwood Reformed church, will speak to the Grace M. E. Sunday-school at 9:45 Sunday morning. It will be the monthly missionary service. At that time Mrs. Ralston will tell of her visits among the mountain people of Kentucky and will bring a mountain doll and other exhibits which will interest all. A cordial invitation to members as well as their friends is extended to hear Mrs. Ralston. A special musical program has been arranged.

Rev. George Bolsterle, now of New York, formerly of this city, will preach at the morning service at 11 o'clock and also at the evening service at 7:45 o'clock.

JAMES KONOPS.

James Konops, the eleven month's old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Konops, died yesterday following a brief illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the parental home, and interment will take place in St. Mary's cemetery.

MARSTON PAIRED.

Maxwell R. Marston, the crack Cranford golfer, who holds the New Jersey title, is paired with Charles S. Dexter, Jr., of the Dallas G. C., in the twentieth annual amateur championship tournament of the United States Golf Association at Detroit, in the elimination round.

THOMPSON HURT.

Harry Thompson, the Elizabeth leaguer, had his nose split in a clash with O'Connell, another player. Both players were racing to haul in a line drive.

FIREMEN'S FESTIVAL.

The Lincoln firemen will hold an athletic festival at Lincoln, Saturday afternoon.

OWLS TO HOLD MEET.

The Owls will stage an athletic meet at Wayside Park, Labor Day.

JOHNNY COULON GIVES OPINION ON THE FIGHT

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 26.—"It's a toss up." That was the opinion expressed by Little Johnny Coulon, ex-bantam-weight champion of the world when asked whom he liked in the Packie McFarland and Mike Gibbons bout to be fought on September 11 at the Brighton Motordrome. Coulon arrived here a few days ago and yesterday he boxed four rounds with the St. Paul wizard. Last week Johnny put on the gloves with McFarland in Chicago, as he is in a position to judge the relatives merits of the two men at the present time.

LEONARD BEEKMAN WINS SOUTHAMPTON TOURNEY

Harold Throckmorton, the Ideran tennis player, fell down before Leonard Beekman, the interscholastic champ, in the Southampton tourney yesterday. The scores of the matches were 6-4, 3-6, 8-6. Beekman won on his machine-like accuracy rather than by showy playing. Throckmorton played like a McLoughlin throughout. His servrices with its high break was as fast as the great California ever sent the ball across the net. However, Harold was as erratic as an eagle at critical times and Beekman profited by his lapses. Now only eight contestants remain in the Meadow Club cup singles.

In the second round of the doubles Throckmorton, with the aid of Ward Dawson easily defeated "Doc" Rosenbaum and F. W. Paul, 6-1, 6-3.

YANKS GET GILHOOLEY.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—Frank J. Dewan, of Jersey City, was yesterday elected president of the Harrisburg Club, of the International League, to succeed Thomas A. Fogarty, of New York, who resigned. The New York Americans yesterday obtained Gilhooley, outfielder of the Buffalo Internationals. He has been leading the league in batting all season. The price is said to have been $6,000. He signed for two years. The Buffalo team will receive several players in return.

MORE BOUQUETS.

Manager Bill Browne, head of the Rahway Field Club, of which Tommy Mullin is a member, received a letter from the Brooklyn Brightons, yesterday, asking for a return game. They, like the Richmonds, say they received the best of treatment at the hands of the popular Bill.

DISCUSSING DEFENSES.

Plans for national defense are being discussed at the eighth annual conference of Governors, which opened at Boston on Tuesday, and closes tomorrow. Governor Fielder, of New Jersey, has read a paper on "the Relation of the State to National Defenses," and this is only one phase of the many about which the Governors have been talking.

No similar opportunity will be offered to discuss plans to bring about uniformity of action regarding national preparedness, for the Governors will not get together for another year, and what they bring away with them will undoubtedly be passed on to the various Legislatures early in 1916. One feature of the gathering has been the review of the Massachusetts National Guard, a force of 7,000 men, who form an object lesson to the executives of many States as to the value of citizen soldiery for national defense. Secretary Daniels has taken them cruising on a battleship, and this has been a unique experience and lesson for many of those who come from inland States.

The New York Times yesterday printed interviews with many of those attending the conference, which demonstrated that the people of the nation from one end to the other are awake to the need of more national preparedness. Thus it seems that the meeting, held almost under the shadow of Bunker Hill, and near where the tea was dumped overboard in the protest against taxation without representation, will develop a well formulated program by the Governors for speedily filling the ranks of the militia and for the establishment of training camps for a national reserve which it is believed Congress will authorize.

Solomon, with all his wisdom, probably never had so many perplexing problems put up to him in one week, as falls to the lot of a magistrate in the city courts of this country now-a-days. Judge DeMeza, here in Plainfield, has had about as many tough questions to solve as has anyone. We wonder if old Solomon, in all his glory, ever so satisfactorily settled a neighborhood row, as did the judge yesterday. After hearing about the youngsters of two families who threw stones at each other, he put the parents of both out of court with the understanding that there was to be a comparison of notes each night, and any offending children soundly spanked, after a careful weighing of the evidence of the day by each parent.

According to National Guard officers who doubtless know what they are talking about the military forces of New Jersey are being very well drilled and instructed this year in spite of the fact that the State's financial condition made it necessary to give up the annual encampment at Sea Girt. It is true that many of the privates are deprived of the training that would be given in camp but their officers are being schooled under the direction of regular army men. This will, no doubt, be of benefit to all.—Trenton Times.

Speaking at the Conference of Governors at Boston, on Tuesday, Governor Fielder said that ninety per cent. of the people living in cities having the commission form of government in the State of New Jersey would not return to the old system. And he hit the matter about right, except that his figures were too low. No one but the politicians of the old school want to go back.

Second ward Republicans having endorsed Councilman Claybrook as a desirable man to run for re-election this year, the Plainfield Democratic Club has returned the compliment by putting its O. K. on Councilman Babcock. Thus are the voters of both parties reminded of the splendid qualities of two excellent city fathers.

What a measly little war that is down in Mexico, anyway. Ten thousand men in an army and only a thousand of two killed in a battle. In France such engagements would be covered by "along the rest of the front there is nothing of importance to report."

People formed a poor opinion of North Carolina for electing a man like Cole L. Blease as the Governor, but it was not a circumstance to what the rest of the country thinks of Georgia since Leo Frank's murder "by the best people in Marietta."

Just when the Russian populace is somewhat cheered up by the report of a great naval victory over the Germans at Riga, Berlin comes forward with a report that there wasn't any victory at all, and no boats were lost by the Kaiser's fleet!

Indiana has nothing on Georgia. Out in Gary a clergyman who was a pronounced pro-German was taken from his home and murdered by a gang of cut-throats, because of his outspoken advocacy of the Kaiser's cause.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Marshal Neilan is today appearing in the title role of "The Country Boy" at Proctor's Theatre. This is a Paramount production, a heart interest drama of rich drama and rare pathos. The story is of one who goes from the quietness of the country town into the throbbing excitement of the city. The change is so great that his emotional system is carried away entirely, and he is compelled to seek relief in his native atmosphere. Back in his home town, he recovers both himself, his happiness and his sweetheart.

Raymond Hitchcocck, that comedian without compare, appears tomorrow in that 4-part farce comedy, entitled, "The Ring-Tailed Rhinoceros." Here is a great comedy of laugh, a humorous medley, a carnival of fun, all caused by the master laugh creator. A Lubin production, with America's foremost comedian.

For the closing of the week, and for the final show before closing down for repairs and alterations, the management has secured for Saturday afternoon and night Robert Warwick, in "The Stolen Voice," a World Film Corporation production well worth seeing.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the 'For Sale' ads.

I wonder much about this thing—
Just think to beat the cars—
Why hash-joints keep their cantaloupes
On top of olive jars.

And why, in rooms where roughnecks tease

They keep the oranges set 'round
On top of pickle-bottles.

This is their summer school of art,

"What in time has been going on here?" asked the stranger, with much interest, as he watched the reviving writhings of some of little Willie's victims.

"All them fellers was either fer Germany or the Allies," explained Willie, truculently, "and they wanted me to quit bein' noctral, an' by heck, I wouldn't!"

HEALTH TALKS
by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Tobacco Heart

A SMOKE or chew—or even a snuff — of tobacco produces these very tangible effects immediately: (1) A rise of blood pressure above the normal pressure for the individual. (2) Increase in rapidity of the pulse. Of course there are other effects, such as a diminished mental efficiency varying from 25% to as little as 2% below the individual's standard—but we are now discussing circulatory effects alone.

Very well, we have finished our smoke and sent our blood pressure up, say, six or eight millimeters, and our pulse rate up, say, ten or fifteen beats per minute. There we are, feeling highcockalorum and fit for anything but war, yet at what cost?

In medicine a stimulant that will raise blood pressure five millimeters and whip up the heart ten beats a minute is no every-day find. So tobacco must be quite a considerable little stimulant, don't you think?

True, and so are tea and coffee, in a milder way.

The typical tobacco heart is nicely illustrated in this actual case: Lawyer, working under heavy strain, thirty-eight years old, smoking continuously. Heart becomes irregular under excitement, drops beats, occasionally gives stabbing pain. Patient complains of continuous sense of pressure or weight over the heart. No evidence of organic heart disease. There is frequent tingling and numbness of the feet, with cramplike pains in the legs at intervals, especially at night or on rising in the morning.

Tobacco was cut off absolutely, by the aid of the famous mouthwash and gargle of one-quarter of one per cent. silver nitrate solution, gum-chewing, non-meat diet, lots of candy to eat, and a firm effort on the patient's part. Complete relief of all the symptoms followed promptly.

Tobacco produces irregularity of the heart, increases the blood pressure, often causes attacks of pain resembling angina pectoris. Stop the tobacco and these symptoms promptly disappear.

While the clinical or practical evidence of the harmful effect of tobacco is open to question, the scientific or laboratory evidence is strong enough to warrant the statement that tobacco is a factor of degeneration of the blood-vessels—hardening of the arteries—with the kidney, heart and brain injury such degeneration entails in due course.

One of the shameful practices permitted, or at least not prohibited by the laws of the country is smoking by persons under twenty-one years of age. There isn't the slightest doubt that tobacco in any form does irreparable harm to the youth who indulges in it.

BANDS

A BAND is a conspiracy among a lot of men who own horns. One man cannot make a band, though three Germans can put up a very fair imitation. It takes a lot of men, considerable co-operation and a good-natured community to manufacture a successful band. As soon as an American town is started, a settler who owns a cornet begins to hunt for a settler with a baritone horn. When he has found him they both track down a clarinet player and then get a job for a man who can annoy a trombone scientifically.

Shortly after this the band is organized and it practises twice a week for three years. The citizens get no pay for listening to this practice; but when the band has learned how to play a piece simultaneously so that the coroner will recognize the remains it begins to charge $50 per appearance. This is about the only unbusinesslike situation left in America.

Bands are very useful. It is impossible to run a circus, political rally, Fourth of July celebration, Hibernian picnic or minstrel parade without one. It is also impossible to bury a very prominent citizen with anything like sufficient expressiveness without a band. Let us all strive to live so reverberatingly that twenty-five men will get $3 apiece for putting on blue coats and caps and blasting a way through the atmosphere to the silent tomb for us.

Band music is very inspiring and is more attractive to a small boy than a public library, a high school, a woodpile or anything but a fire. Any horn in the band when played by itself would make a crow feel proud of its voice, but when they are all tooted together the noise blends into a hurricane of harmony which makes a modest citizen proud to march in a secret society parade in pink silk pants and which causes hardened citizens to resolve to lead a better life and vote the ticket straight hereafter.

They both track down a clarinet player

It is very difficult to become president of this country, and many discouragements are placed in the path of the man who desires to lay aside a few million dollars. But no citizen should despair so long as he can, by practice win the confidence of a large horn and march inside of its coils on every public occasion, surrounded by a swarm of small boys who would give all they have to be in his place.

The Rich Man's Son

"CAN a Millionaire's Son Make Good?" is the interrogatory title of an article by Burton J. Hendrick.

The question is akin to the Biblical assertion that it is "easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

In both cases it depends entirely upon the man. Not in all cases upon the son, for many a good son has been ruined by an indulgent or careless parent, but upon the father—upon the Man.

History abounds with obscure sons of famous men. Genius is not hereditary. Character, on the other hand, often is. But even a naturally strong character may be spoiled by early training, or the lack of it. The millionaire father who has an eye to the future of his son may not go to the lengths of old Commodore Vanderbilt, who all but turned his eldest son and chosen heir adrift in a Spartan effort to fit him for the heavy responsibilities he was one day to assume, but he will see to it that the youth is introduced to work at an early age and made to understand that whether or not he is to succeed his father depends entirely upon his own capabilities for industry and toil.

Too many fathers lay up money only with the thought of "making it easy" for their children. The whole idea is wrong. The "easy way" is the road to individual slothfulness, if not to actual ruin. Riches are the very worst thing that can come into the hands of the average young man of twenty-one. More boys have settled down to worthless lives because they were assured of a competency, whatever betide, than for any other one reason. What bodily toil and muscular exercise are for the body, hard work is to the intellect and the spirit. Don't plan a life of ease and luxury for your boy or girl and imagine you are laying up for them a store of happiness. A bank balance is desirable only when he or she who possesses it knows how to use it.

But if those who have been wrecked on the rocks of wealth are so numerous that any mariner who attempts the sea of life finds them charted for him, so the searcher for better examples of successful rich men's sons need not look in vain. The country is full of young men who have inherited wealth and have not been spoiled by it. When the father is a good father and the son a good boy it matters not much what the financial condition in which they find themselves, the chances for the boy are pretty good.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND
by E. R. BRANSON

A Life Support

Q. If a man deeds his entire property to another person, with the understanding that the latter will support him for life, will the deed be good?

A. It will not be good as against creditors who have valid claims against him at the time, unless it can be shown that the person to whom the property was conveyed paid full value for it.

A Chip Of The Old Block

Q. What is the effect of adding the word "junior" to a man's name? For example, if a man is known as "John Smith, Junior," is the "junior" a part of the name, in a legal sense?

A. The word "junior" is often used for the purpose of distinguishing between a father and son. It is merely a form of description or designation, however, and forms no part of the name, in a legal sense.

Readjustment Of Will

Q. I have a certificate of membership in a mutual aid association. My nephew is named as beneficiary in the certificate. It is my intention, however, to dispose of the certificate in a different manner by my will, so that my wife will be entitled to receive the fund after my death. Can this be done?

A. Yes, unless there is something in the constitution or by-laws of the association forbidding it.

No Prosecution Is Possible

Q. A neighbor boy committed an assault and battery on another boy. They are both under age. Could a suit be brought against the first boy's father? A. No.

Custody Of The Child

A. She cannot be an heir, in the strict legal sense.

A Blank Indorsement

Q. What is meant by saying that a check is "indorsed in blank"? What is the effect?

When A Note Becomes Binding

Q. Does a promissory note become a binding contract as soon as it is signed?

A. No. There must be a delivery.

Compensation For Injuries

Q. A man was crossing the street, at the intersection of one street with another, when a heavily loaded baggage wagon came along. One of the trunks was resting insecurely upon another and was jostled loose and fell to the pavement. The trunk, in falling, struck this man and caused severe injuries. Could he recover damages from the transfer company?

A. Yes, if he was in the exercise of ordinary care for his own safety at the time and if the accident was due to the negligence of the driver.

Aliens As Jurymen

Q. Please tell me whether an alien may serve on a jury, in the courts of Illinois.

A. The fact of his alienage will exempt him, if he should choose to claim the benefit of such exemption. If he does not assert such claim, he may remain on the jury and the validity of the verdict will not be affected by his so doing.

Alimony Again

Q. Where a husband and wife agree to separate, and he makes some provision for her support, and, after they separate, he pays her money from time to time, can he be compelled to pay more?

The Life Line

The Family "Goat"

She—for usually it is a she—can be found in almost any large family. "I do the marketing," she will tell you, "because, you see, I have to have exercise, and I don't care for tennis, like my sisters." No. And she doesn't care for money, or for leisure, or for clothes, either. She doesn't care for anything except work. "I really don't know what I'd do, if I hadn't the housekeeping to do," she will go on. "You see, Edith has her suffrage work, and Mother her church work, and Bob and Nellie their college work. What would I do if I had no work!" And, after all, what would she do with herself if she were not just plain household drudge? Surely, that's all she is fit for—a person who doesn't value her individuality enough to exert herself to defend it. She was a born slave, after all. It isn't unselfishness—this obsession to lay herself down to be walked over; we don't admire a person who gives away every cent he owns. The sane have a limit. But the family goat is as weak as water.

She Asked the Lazy King to Help Her.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— Why There Isn't Any King Bee.

"YOU hear of queen bees," said Evelyn as she and Jack came to daddy for the evening story, "but you never hear of the king bee. Isn't there any king bee, daddy?"

"No-o-o," replied daddy doubtfully, "come to think of it, I don't believe there is. Now, let's see if we cannot think of some story to explain why this is so.

"Oh, I have it! I wonder why somebody hasn't happened to think of it before? It's so very simple. Now, let's see.

"Let's go back to the first swarm of bees that ever happened. This swarm of bees lived inside a hollow tree in a great wood, and they had an easier time than some swarms of wild bees in the present day, for the nearest men were many miles away.

"This swarm of bees was ruled over by a gracious queen, and there was also a king. I mention the queen first, for she did all the ruling. The king wasn't much more than an ornament.

"The queen had in her employ many working bees, and they flew about all day, visiting the fields and the woods and gathering the nectar from the flowers.

"But she wasn't nearly so well satisfied with the king. He was a great, big, lazy gentleman who did nothing but loaf around the tree palace all day long. He would just sit on his honeyed throne and snore and sleep.

"What with the cares of state and the encouragement of her workers and the time required for the welfare of her many little kiddies this queen was a very busy lady, and as the army of workers grew and there were more and more children hatching from the eggs and the pile of honey mounted in the hollow trunk of the tree the poor queen was almost distracted.

"She asked the lazy king to please help her with some of the work. But he, the big, lazy thing, just turned over and went to sleep again.

"So it went on, growing worse and worse, and by and by the queen came to a wise conclusion.

"'What do I need of a king?' she asked. 'He is just good for an ornament, and he refuses to help me administer the affairs of state. I'm going to get rid of him.'

"So she woke the king up and made him give her his crown, my dears."

"What became of the lazy king, daddy?" asked Evelyn.

"Oh, the queen let him stay," answered her father. "But she didn't call him her king any more. She called him her drone."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"What did you learn about the oil wells?" asked Nell as she followed her mother-in-law into the house, carrying her bag and umbrella.

"I found the manager was a slippery specimen who is lining his pockets out of the assessments, just as I expected. There is great excitement over the new well they are sinking at Casey, and the people there have lost their heads entirely and given themselves over to betting and gambling."

"The whole thing seems like gambling to me," said Nell gloomily. "Men seem to enjoy taking risks. I can't understand it."

"It's the same spirit that has accomplished most of the big things in the world. We've got to remember that, though it's hard to be patient with such folly."

"Do you think there is any chance of saving the money they have put in?" asked Nell anxiously.

"If they would turn out the rascal of a manager and put in an honest man, something might be done provided this well turns out any oil."

"So many ifs," sighed Nell.

"Well, if it's spilled milk, we'll leave it and go on." The old lady was putting away her bonnet and getting into "work harness," as she called her calico dress.

"Well, Nell, I saw your new neighbor, Mrs. Jaynes, this morning. In fact, I rode to the station in her fine new machine." The fried chicken and new potatoes were before them on the dinner table.

"Do tell me about her. The coming of an important family is an exciting event in a small town." Nell's eyes shone as she talked.

Mrs. Morton snorted contemptuously as she poured the coffee.

"You didn't like her?" There was a note of disappointment in her voice. "What is she like?"

"Codfish! codfish!" ejaculated the old lady. "You can fairly feel the scales. Bleached hair, paint on her face thick enough for a barn door; she was rigged up in gauze and lace fit only for an evening party. And colors!" She stopped abruptly, unable with words to convey the effect of Mr. Jaynes' color scheme.

The light died out of Nell's face. "So it's Mrs. Newlyrich," she said disappointedly.

"And she's so ignorant her remarks will be town talk. She's equal to the woman who boasted of a new coat lined with vermin," continued the old lady.

"Dick said Mr. Jaynes was a pleasant fellow," remarked her husband.

"He is, but she is ashamed of him; is trying to refine him. They have three children," she continued. "The oldest daughter is like her, she says, and the son is probably one of those pitiful specimens who go around with an eyeglass tied to a ribbon, sucking the head of a cane."

"Maybe he is like the father," said Nell hopefully.

"No; she told me he did only what was attractive to him; he's training to be a gentleman."

"I know the sort. What a calamity to have such a family come to a small town where we must be thrown together more or less, whether we like it or not."

"The less you see of her the more fortunate you will be. There is nothing useful or pleasant that such women can contribute." The old lady hitched back her chair and rose from the table.

Household Hints

GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR OVEN

If you want to get your money's worth when using the oven of the gas range, arrange a combination of articles to cook at one time.

When you wish to roast a small piece of meat, you have room for at least two other dishes and shelf space for baking potatoes around the small roasting pan. Dried fruit, already soaked, is delicious baked.

The combination, when baking, might be roasted meat, potatoes, bread, dried prunes or apricots or baked apple or Brown Betty.

CREAMED VEAL WITH MUSHROOMS

Four pounds of veal, boiled tender; one can of mushrooms, chopped; one quart of cream, heated; four tablespoonfuls of butter and five tablespoonfuls of flour stirred together until melted. Put hot cream, butter and flour in double boiler and cook until flour tastes done. Cut the meat as for salad and mix thoroughly with chopped mushrooms and cream. Put in baking dish with bread crumbs on top, bake from twelve to fifteen minutes, or until brown. Less cream can be used by putting in part milk.

SOAP IMPROVES STOVE BLACKING

In the cleaning of a stove, if a little soap is used it will lighten the labor. Wet a flannel cloth and rub it over a piece of soap; then dip the cloth into the stove polish and rub over the stove; finish with a dry cloth or brush. It is said the polish will last much longer than if used without soap.

THE TABLE

Fairy Toast—Toast six slices brown bread which have been cut thin as a wafer and then stamped out with a biscuit cutter. When done a light brown, dot with a tiny dot of butter and a grating of lemon rind. If the toast is hot the butter will melt and the rind will give a new flavor to the toast.

Hamburg Nut Steak—Mix well together one large cup nut meats, two cups finely chopped bread crumbs, one egg well beaten, half teaspoon each of salt and sage, one-fourth teaspoon pepper; mix well, add one-fourth cup milk, pat into shape of small steaks, fry in hot lard in frying pan. Serve with tomato sauce, or without.

Tongue With Olives en Casserole—Brown two tablespoons butter in a skillet; add two tablespoons flour and rub smooth. Pour in one pint stock and stir until thick. Put two cups diced tongue in casserole and pour stock over it. Season with sale and add two tablespoons minced green peppers, 2½ dozen stoned olives, a tablespoon of kitchen bouquet. Cover tightly and place in moderate oven about thirty minutes. Serve from casserole.

Rice Pudding—To one cup of rice add one quart of rich milk, a little salt and three-fourths cup of sugar. Place in double boiler and cook until milk is absorbed and rice is done. Just before removing from stove, add one-half teaspoon vanilla and one cup raisins which have been soaked in hot water until plump. In this way they will not discolor the rice. Good cold.

CLEANING HINTS

A few drops of turpentine in warm suds makes an excellent woodwork cleanser.

A very inexpensive furniture polish, and the best for the finest furniture, is this:

Mix 10 cents worth of turpentine and 10 cents worth of white paraffine oil and you will be supplied for three years or more and your furniture will have a very high polish.

Just have a cheesecloth moistened with this, not too much, and polish with dry cheesecloth. Try it and you will never use any other. Fine for floors and all high polished surfaces.

The Mother's Creed.

We believe:

That God gave us our children as a precious gift.

That constant, watchful care of them is our full duty.

That we should guard well their health.

That we should train them to right living.

That we should give them the best education we can afford.

That we should give them much chance to play.

That we should pray daily for their welfare.

That our deeds should be right models for them to follow.

—Mother's Magazine.

Self-Control.

One father has devised a plan by which he is teaching his boys how to save without becoming misers and how to spend without becoming spendthrifts. Each child is given spending money on a certain evening of each week if he can produce one-half of the previous week's allowance. In case of failure he has no allowance for two weeks and then makes a fresh start. In this way John, who is ten, and receives twenty cents each week, is a prince of spenders, while the ten pennies in which he converts one of the dimes, but must become a well-controlled money holder if he wishes to receive the next allowance. It is part of the plan that each boy must carry the money in his pocket.

A Duty.

Owing to the fact that the woman remains at home while the man meets and exchanges views with other men out in the world, it often happens that the two grow apart, and in mind and intellect, at least, are more widely separated in their later life than when they first met. To avoid such contingency, it is the absolute duty of every woman to arrange her household affairs that she may be able to devote some definite period, however small, each day to the broadening of her own mind. Let the unnecessary things go—live for comfort not for show and empty appearances, but open mind and heart to the great things of life.

No Finals.

The Canadian schools have been among the first to discard the final examinations, especially in the schools of Ottawa, where the final examinations have been discontinued for several years.

Fifty Thousand Child Gardeners.

As a result of a State-wide industrial contest in Oregon there are now 50,000 children busy gardening. It is thought that of the 125,000 school children of the State at least 75,000 will exhibit at their country fairs or at the State fair at Salem in the autumn something they have raised or made. The superintendent of public instruction and public-spirited citizens are responsible for this wholesome plan of child farming.

Substantial prizes are to be awarded to those who have been most successful in raising garden stuff, chickens or pigs, or in making some useful article. To aid the little ones the Agricultural College has issued 50,000 bulletins containing directions for planting and growing seeds. The scheme is an excellent one, so different from the murderous child labor of the factory. It includes plenty of fresh air, healthful exercise, pleasant mental exercise and blessed contact with nature, her beauty and life. There is here the early lesson of obedience to the royal law of labor.—Christian Herald.

HISTORIC FLAGS TO BE EXHIBITED

Valuable Collection In Washington to Be Carried In the Grand Review.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 26.—For the first time in the nation's history Uncle Sam has consented to temporary relinquish control of one of his greatest treasures—the Washington collection of historic flags of the republic. Many attempts have been made to borrow the army and navy flag collection for exhibition at patriotic gatherings, but it remained for the veterans in charge of the forty-ninth annual encampment and fiftieth anniversary of the Grand Review of the G. A. R., which will be held in this city, September 2-October 2, to be first to receive this privilege.

As famous flag collections go, the American exhibit is not extraordinarily large, but Uncle Sam demonstrates his love and pride by placing a cash valuation of $15,000 on the collection. Several of the more famous of the battle flags, threadbare and torn by the conflicts of 1776, 1812, 1861, are estimated to be worth $1,000 each.

The citizens' committee in charge of the encampment will place the flags on exhibition, under military and police guard, in a storeroom on Pennsylvania avenue, and will lend the flags for the purposes of display to all responsible citizens of Washington, who will, in turn, deposit bond equal to the valuation of the flag selected.

Although the national capital has already won commendation for its decorations for patriotic events, special efforts are being made to make this feature of the encampment even more notable.

The business establishments along Pennsylvania avenue, where the Grand Review will pass, will be draped by gay bunting by day and illuminated by ornamental electric lights by night. During the week four giant search lights will flash their rays upon the Capitol, while a similar number will turn night into day at the United States Treasury building, at the west end of mile-long Pensylvania avenue. In addition to the search lights the citizens' committee expects to festoon the historic thoroughfare with thousands of small electric bulbs.

A DRESS THE GIRLS WILL LIKE FOR RECREATION HOURS.

No. 9028.

When a child plays, it should play without restraint—should be allowed to lose itself in its occupation, to become absorbed in it. Most children if not appropriately dressed, will be inhibited from developing the proper spirit and enthusiasm, if obliged to think that the clothes must not be soiled, mussed or torn—others will play anyway, and woe betide the garment that is not designed to withstand the strenuous activities of childhood. For both these classes, simple play clothes should be supplied. An excellent dress for this purpose is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9028. This bloomer dress is made in kimono style, opening in the back or at the side front. The full-length sleeves have band cuffs and are perforated for shorter lengths. Bloomers gathered. Sizes 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12, size 8 requiring 3⅛ yards of 36-inch material.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

Advance Sale of Furs

Extending until Wednesday, September 15th

That Is Really Remarkable

Because of conditions keeping Furs in this country

The war will keep in this country 25 million dollars of American furs that ordinarily would sell abroad.

This in itself brings down prices.

In addition, we take off these low prices one-fourth more for this sale, taking it out of our own and furriers' profits.

This is why the sale is remarkable. It offers, for instance, dyed muskrat coats at $65, that are better than we had in our last August Sale at $75. Persian lamb coats at $73, which are as good as we had at $110. Mole coats at $100, which last year sold for $150.

Small furs show similar lessening in cost.

For the Fashions, Read the Paris Cable

Paris Cable

PARIS, August 20th,

John Wanamaker, New York:

Furriers show much Breitschwanz (Baby lamb), caracul, skunk, fitch, gray fox with trimmings of ermine, white fox. Long coats have godets all round, short loose coats with very high, wide funnel collars. Muffs are smaller—round, tube and oval shapes.

John Wanamaker, Paris.

This cable confirms what the American fur market predicts, that the fox family will be much in demand—cross fox, white fox, red fox, natural blue fox, and dyed blue fox; that skunk will be especially good. Beaver has come into its own and will be popular this winter, especially in coats.

Fur coats will be round, loose and shorter, around forty inches, with some of them reaching close to the waist. Some wonderful mole coats are in the sale, and some really extraordinary values in dyed muskrat, Persian lamb and caracul coats. The wide funnel collars, of which the Paris cable speaks, are what we call Chin-Chin collars, seen in many of the coats.

In small furs, muffs will be smaller and round—barrel, tube, oval. Some have animal trimmings, some fancy trimmings; many are plain.

Furs bought in this Sale will be Stored Free in our Vaults, if desired until November 1, if 25 per cent. of the purchase money is paid down

Prices give very little indication of fur qualities, but we mention a few here to give an idea of the range and extent of the sale. Each piece is a fourth less than it will be later in the season.

Silver Foxes in the Original Skins

The sets range from $575 to $1800, and these prices will be recognized by those who know as being very low.

PLAN FEMININE ATHLETIC MEET

Many Young Women Entered In Labor Day Games at Parker Field.

PROGRAM OF EVENTS

One of the Stellar Attractions Will Be a Baseball Game Between Business Men and Physicians—Some Who Will Take Part In Carnival.

Plainfield is not to be without its big athletic carnival this year if the well formed plans of the Recreation Committee prove as fruitful as is hoped. According to the ideas being worked out by the Committee a large number of young women of this city will compete in various athletic contests. In addition to this feast a baseball game between the business men and the "professionals" will be staged. W. L. Smalley is taking care of the business men's end of the battle while "Doc" Anthony, than whom there is not a better medical twirler in this vicinity, has agreed to look after the "pros" side of the comedy.

Although neither manager has announced his line-up it is known that the "pro" list will include members of the almost extinct doctors-dentists-lawyers' baseball combinations. It is safe to say that "Doc" Anthony will hurl for them while "Doc" Cregar, a brother-in-law to the famous Mathewson, will be behind the bat. The rest of the battle array will be announced as soon as the weeding out process begins.

Now for the athletic end of the program. The following events will be run off: 50-yard back walk, 50-yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, standing high jump, standing broad jump, baseball throwing, basketball throwing, potato and obstacle races.

Ye scribe passed the home of one of the feminine aspirants last evening and was surprised to see her "working out." Upon questioning her, he was told she was "limbering up" for the meet and expected to annex the beautiful cup donated by the Public Recreation Committee to the individual point winner. If she intends winning that cup she will have to "go some," for there is a splendid cluster of female athletes entered in the events. Among them are Miss Marion Mair, the North Plainfield crack basketball player; Miss Clara Smith, another "Canadian" star, Miss Mildred McAuliffe, Miss Teresa McCullough, the fast N.P. H. S. centre; Miss Ellen Doughty, Miss Jennie and Miss Clementine Bremble, both P. H. S. court stars; the Misses Lillian Spencer, Janet Newell, Margaret Gill, Annie Murphy, Marjorie Burtis, Marion Harrington, Maud McAfee and Nellie McAfee. A number of maidens who competed in the "community picnic" events at Scotch Plains, will contest here, too, under the leadership of Miss Margaret Jahn. The Y. W. H. A., St. Mary's Social Club, and other girls' associations will enter their best artists in the coming attraction, which, by the way, will be staged at Parker Field. Any girl may enter by presenting her name to Miss Lillian Lamson, Stillman School.

MORE ENTRIES RECEIVED.

Among the star athletes who will appear at the Michelin Labor Day meet will be William R. Granger, the Dartmouth and Irish-American A. C. runner, who will compete in the mile run and other events. Other entries received over the week-end include that of Leo Granger, Aaron Morris, the five-mile runner; Jones, Cornell sprinter, and H. Langlie, a pole vaulter and jumper of repute.

JACK FRITTS TO ENTER BIG MEETS

Ralph Runyon Also Scheduled to Engage In Championship Contests.

Jack Fritts, the local patrolman, will enter several events in the coming Michelin A. A. athletic meet which will be held in Milltown, Labor Day. Fritts received a letter from a Mr. Edgerton, one of the promoters of the event, stating that now was the chance for Jack to prepare for the coming all-round events to be held in Celtic Park, September 18. Inasmuch as the Michelin club pays all expenses and gives the athletes a feed after the meet, the local man says he is "sure going to be on hand." He will compete in the pole vault, as will Ralph Runyon, another local athlete; the 1,000-yard run, the javelin throw and the quarter mile run. The fact that Runyon, Curtis and Caldwell, all crack vaulters, are going to contest in that event does not disturb Fritts as he believes that he can, at least, place.

The big meet at Celtic Park, to be held September 18, will attract athletes from all clubs in the metropolitan district. Ralph Runyon and Jack Fritts will enter from this city, but will, as usual, sport the colors of the Pastime A. C. The all-round championship contests will be run off and Fritts makes no secret of the fact that he thinks he can, at least, place in the decathlon section. The decathlon consists, as its name implies, of ten events, some of which are javelin and discus throwing, vaulting, jumping, 100 and 200-yard dashes in addition to mile and quarter mile runs. The winner will annex a valuable prize and a neat little title. The sport scribes of the country pick Platt Adams as the sure winner, but Fritts figures that Adams is weak in the pole vault and the track events and declares that there are others much better than Adams entered in the competition. He is modest enough not to mention whether he is among the others or not.

SPORT BRIEFS

Sam Agnew, catcher of the St. Louis Browns, has been sold to the Boston Red Sox. The purchase price is said to be $8,000.

Third Baseman Jones, of the Columbus American Association team, has been sold to the Chicago American League Club.

Pitcher Herbert, of Toronto, has been purchased by the Giants.

Tom Fogarty, president and secretary of the Harrisburg Internationals, announced his resignation yesterday. He will be succeeded by Frank Degnan, of Jersey City.

Alf Grenda, of Australia, broke the half-mile record at the Newark Velodrome last night, negotiating the distance in 53 1-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second faster than the old record.

Jimmy Clabby, of Hammond, Ind., has been matched to meet Les Darcy, at Sydney, Australia. Clabby will sail from San Francisco August 31.

JUVENILES TO BATTLE.

The Queen City baseball team will meet the All-Stars, a team composed of City Leaguers, on Emerson Oval, Sunday afternoon, at 1:45. Sidney Butler and Cohen will be in the points for the Queens, with "Babe" Gleason and Campbell as the All-Star battery.

GIANTS BUY SCHANG.

Robert Schang, brother of Wally Schang, of the Athletics, was purchased yesterday by the Giants from the Pittsburgh Club. This adds another catcher to the New York Club. Schang was on the Giants' bench yesterday.

ADAM BLAIR ENTERS "KID KELLY" AT WAVERLY

"Kid Kelly," Adam Blair's new trotter, has been entered in the 2:25 event which will be run off at the old Waverly track, Weequahic Park, Newark, Saturday. The last time "Kid Kelly" raced over this course he entirely outclassed all his competitors and won for himself a name in racing annals. Among the horses entered in the 2:25 class, the following are the most formidable: Captain Speir, Kid Kelly, Jane Todd, Jacob Roth, Johnny Harvard, W. H Armstrong, Bincetta and Maboo.

The starting judge will be James M. Beldon.

BEES' BASEBALL BATTLE.

The Michelin A. A. will engage the Bound Brook Bees in a diamond tilt at the latter place Saturday afternoon. Deinzer and McFadden will be the opposing hurlers.

Rent one of your rooms and reduce your own rent materially. It's a simple and sensible plan—and it works.

LINCOLNS WANT ANOTHER SHOT AT "CLIFF" RANDOLPH

One of the best proofs of our recent statement that "Cliff" Randolph has, by his splendid pitching ability, got more games for the Amboy Pacers than any other factor, is the announcement that Rod McMahon, the Lincoln Giant manager, has arranged a return game between the two outfits. The match will be played September 12, and ought to attract a large crowd from this city. Last Sunday fully twenty-five local fans went over to the metropolis to watch Cliff pitch, and each and everyone of them had nothing but praise for the calibre of ball he twirled.

The Saint Anthonys and the Pacers will clash Sunday, Neider and Randolph being the opposing flingers.

"RUBE" MARQUARD IS RELEASED TO MINORS

The Giants released Rube Marquard yesterday to the Toronto club of the International League. All of the major league clubs waived their right to him, and McGraw made a deal with Bill Clymer, the Toronto manager, whereby he was to go to that club. The latter was at the Polo Grounds yesterday and said that no contract had been signed as yet, but that he would talk with Marquard this morning.

It is understood that Marquard has declared his intention of retiring from baseball rather than go back to the minors. He has asked the Giants for his unconditional release, and is confident that he will find a place with one of the major league teams. There was also a report that the deal with Clymer involved a trade of one of the Toronto pitchers to the Giants, but John B. Foster, secretary of the Giants, made no mention of any such condition attached to the transaction.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP

It appears to us that Jim Savage, who was one of Jess Willard's sparring partners previous to the big fight with Jack Johnson, is a mighty confident pugilist, especially for one who has absolutely nothing about which he can safely boast. Sacage, through his manager, Martin Julian, declares that he is going to knock the "block" off Charley Weinert when the two meet in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night. Time will tell. Meanwhile Weinert is saying naught.

The fight bugs around this part of the country are just now busily engaged in picking out a likely opponent for Jess Willard. It seems that Jim Coffey, Frank Moran, Jim Savage and Charley Weinert, not to speak of Gunboat Smith and a cluster of rank third-raters are all after his scalp. To tell the truth, but two of these have any kind of a chance with Jess. Any fight fan will tell you who the two are.

When Packey McFarland and Mike Gibbons clash next month one of the most scientific matches ever staged will be pulled off. There never was a cleaner duo of boxers in this country, and it is a known fact that Packey, at least, has no peer when craft is employed. They tell us Gibbons is of the same type.

Jack Johnson goes on the stage. One more ring wonder has retired.

About three hundred Union county fight followers will take in the McFarland-Gibbons match at the Ocean A. C. next month, and not a few of the crowd will be from this city.

Pugilism has resolved itself into a decent game during the past few years. Much of the rough stuff has been eliminated, and scientific handling has developed several classy fighters.

FRANK H. SMITH HONORED

And with its glory still undimmed,
Lead the world to peace."

Accepting the two gifts, Exalted Ruler A. A. Prudhon thanked the women for their help and co-operation in the various enterprises of the lodge. "Your efforts have been rewarded with success unqualified, and in your action tonight, the bestowal upon us of this flag, this banner, the members of this lodge recognized your crown of victory. It has well been said that without the women no organization nor government can long endure. To the committee who so thoughtfully, so unselfishly and so modestly arranged the several entertainments by which the needful sinews were raised to purchase these emblems of unity, patriotism and fraternity, we owe all the gratitude that is in our power to bestow upon them. They are the bright and lustrous flowers of this order, and as in their smiles lie our sunshine, so in their tears is our anguish. Rest assured, dear friends, that time shall never banish the memories of this night, and that no effort on our part shall ever be wanting to repay you in some small measure for these magnificent gifts, symbols of the basic and cardinal tenets of Elkdom. They shall be ever revered by us as the consecrated offerings of those whom, from childhood's days to sere and yellow leaf of old age, we all love and bless—the ladies."

Probably the biggest surprise of the evening came when Mrs. Robert Gow, chairman of the card party committee, presented to Past Exalted Ruler Councilman John H. Cose, $87.50 in gold, the balance of the receipts, as a present to the brothers to dispense as they saw fit on their trip to Atlantic City, and as a memento of the work accomplished by the women, requested that the case bearing the gold inscription, "B. P. O. E." be placed in the curio cabinet as a remembrance of the initial efforts of Elks' wives. "Their request and their wishes will be carried out," said Mr. Cose, in acepting the gift. At the same time, the latter took occasion to outline the program of the reunion in Atlantic City. He urged as many of the women to accompany the local organization as possible, inasmuch as the lodge having the greatest number of women registered at headquarters would be offered a silver loving cup. A cash prize of $50 will be given to the lodge having the best band in line. In the latter competition the local Elks promise to be hot contenders, having secured the famous Allentown Band to lead the Plainfielders.

Characteristically eloquent, Past Exalted Ruler William N. Runyon made the presentation speech of the solid gold life membership card to Past Exalted Ruler Frank H. Smith. At the same time he took the opportunity to review the work of the latter during his membership in the lodge. "The past three years have meant much to this lodge; they have been years of achievement, years of progress and years of development, and as we see the lodge today it is in all its beauty. Through all these features there has ever been one personality dominating it. Through his efforts this temple has become a reality. Years of faithful perseverance, through rising obstacles, firm in his trust, he has truly been a helper. He has done his work at all times wholeheartedly. I believe no member of this lodge would acknowledge the erection of this great building were it not for his efforts. He conceived the idea of its erection in its infancy and cherished the possibility until its completion, even though there were those of us "doubting Thomases," he persevered through all. Realizing what his membership has meant to us, this meeting tonight is arranged to render honor where honor is due. I want to say that it is with the utmost pleasure we come to honor you, Past Exalted Ruler Smith. We realize that nothing that we may give, no gift, can with true and full merit answer the requirement of the action. No lodge has ever bestowed a life membership where merit was more emphasized. You have, indeed, proven yourself worthy of the highest gift, and you were at no time found wanting. In order to show our love, loyalty and devotion to you, we enroll you as a life member of this lodge. You are welcome to it, and in the years to come will you remember that it comes from brothers who wish you all possible success in all your achievements?"

The card was passed around the room and was a source of keen admiration from all attendants, being of solid gold, suitably inscribed with the membership. A photograph of Mr. Smith is inscribed in the gold, while the sentence of appreciation of his services during his three years of rulership is written on the back.

Mr. Smith responded in an appreciative vein, summarizing the work of the building committee of the temple, of which he was chairman. He excluded the idea that he alone was the principal instigator of the erection of the handsome home on Watchung avenue, and warmly praised the entire committee, as well as the members of the club, through whose united efforts the building became a realization.

Following the presentations the entire assemblage enjoyed a dance until 11 o'clock.

VANDERHOEF THE CHOICE OF CAUCUS

Borough Council Expected to Appoint Him Tax Collector Tonight.

MANY BALLOTS TAKEN

Four Candidates Considered at Lengthy Conference — Appointee Will Succeed the late George F. Brown.

J. V. E. Vanderhoef will be the choice of the Borough Council for tax collector when that body meets tonight to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of George F. Brown, who held the office for many years. This decision was reached at a caucus of Mayor Clark and the Council held last night. The session lasted from 8 o'clock until nearly midnight, during which time many ballots were taken.

Former Councilman James K. Arnold, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, W. O. Worth, a brother-in-law of Mr. Brown, and W. A. Cochran were the ones considered at the caucus. On the first ballot Mr. Arnold had three votes, and each of the other candidates received one vote. The balloting continued with varying results until the matter was finally settled on the last ballot, when Mayor Clark anounced that he would lend his support to Mr. Vanderhoef, thus giving that candidate four of the seven votes. It is expected that when Mr. Vanderhoef's name is presented tonight that he will receive the unanimous vote of the Council. His term will be for four months, and should he desire to continue in the office he will be obliged to enter the primary for the nomination. In this case he would probably have lots of opposition, for a number have already declared their intention of seeking the office.

Mr. Vanderhoef has been a resident of the borough for many years and has been active in its affairs. He is secretary of the Union Building and Loan Association, a director of the State Trust Company, an executive officer of the Improved Order Heptasophs, president of the Borough Board of Health, and for the past sixteen years has been connected with the Woodhull & Martin Co. in an executive capacity. Mr. Vanderhoef is also a member of the First Baptist church.

Mr. Vanderhoef is more or less familiar with clerical work, especially in matters of finance, for the reason that for several years he has held the responsible position of secretary of the Union Building and Loan Association. This has given him excellent training in the handling of money and compilation of detailed reports.

ANOTHER NEIGHBORHOOD ROW.

Judge DeMeza settled another neighborhood row this morning, at police headquarters, without taking a complaint. Two women living on West Third street, of different nationalities, appeared before the judge, and both started to tell their troubles at once, so that those near them had no idea what it was all about. The judge finally managed to understand the drift of their talk, and decided that the woman living upstairs in the house in question was apparently at fault, and he told her to move.

ARREST TRAIN JUMPERS.

Two young men were arrested yesterday at Roselle Park, by Detective Lohman and arraigned before Judge Trimmer for riding freight cars. William McInnis, eighteen years old, of New Haven, Conn., was held to await the arrival of his father from Plainfield. It is said that he induced William Gray, seventeen years old, of Plainfield, to run away from home. Sentence was suspended in Gray's case.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET.

The Republicans of the Fourth ward will meet tonight in the law offices of Codington & Blatz for the purpose of organizing for the fall campaign and considering such other matters as are likely to come up. It is quite likely that the Republicans will endorse Councilman C. C. Graves for a re-nomination and election and a similar endorsement of Councilman Juan A. Babcock is expected.

HAD TO SHOOT HORSE.

A horse belonging to Lewis Kopf fell yesterday afternoon at the corner of West Front street and Compton avenue and broke his leg. Patrolman Welsh went from headquarters and shot the animal.

TEMPERATURE REPORT.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 61 degrees; 11 a. m., 63 degrees; 1 p. m., 63 degrees.

FAVORS G. O. P. LOCAL OPTION NOMINEE

W. J. Trembath Urges Republicans to Support Such a Candidate.

William J. Trembath, of Chatham street, has suggested that the Republicans of Somerset county nominate a man for Assembly who is known to stand firmly for local option. Samuel S. Swackhamer, of the borough, whose petition for the nomination on the Democratic ticket is now in circulation by Freeholder George Kirch, stands firmly on that plank in the Democratic platform. Said Mr. Trembath in an interview with a Daily Press reporter:

"As the only candidate coming forward for the nomination for the Assembly on the Republican ticket is one who stated on the floor of the House that he was opposed to home rule and was for the centralization of all power in the hands of the State, and who voted against local option, which is truly a home rule measure, I thing another man ought to come forward. I believe that an overwhelming majority of Republicans in the borough and Somerset county are expecting some one to step forward and represent their views. As the time for filing petitions is short, at the request of many prominent Republicans I suggest immediate action to secure a suitable man for the office.

"The Republican party in Somerset county since 1912, when Senator Smalley and Assemblyman Anderson were elected, has stood for these principles of home rule and these men were elected on them. We want a man who is in sympathy with them."

Hand, in the borough police court. The complaint was made by Health Officer Louis Olliff, who charged him with filling up a cesspool with decayed fruit, paint cans, etc., at 62 Somerset street.

ADVANCED VAUDEVILLE WILL BE SHOWN HERE

Management of Proctor's Theatre Announces a Change of Policy.

Plainfield is to have advanced vaudeville within a short time. The new feature will be introduced at Proctor's Theatre, on West Front street. The popular playhouse will close tomorrow night for one week, during which time extensive alterations will be made by the management for the initial production of advanced vaudeville, which will be greater and better than any ever staged here before. Motion pictures will still occupy a prominent place on the program, only the best in the "movie game" being offered to the patrons.

Every possible advantage will be taken of the facilities offered through the United Booking Office of America, an organization of which Mr. Proctor is vice-president. The U. B. O., as it is generally known, books every vaudeville act of merit and high standards from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts. Plainfield will receive twice a week the same vaudeville programs which are presented at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York city, and theatres in Albany, Troy, Schenectady, Mt. Vernon, Yonkers and Elizabeth.

Careful attention will be paid to the calibre of vaudeville presentations also, only the newest and best photoplay features, including the up-to-date topical review culled from such well-known weeklies as the Pathe, Animated, Hearst-Selig, Mutual and others, will be shown. These photoplays will be changed entirely every day while the entire vaudeville bill will be changed on Mondays and Thursdays.

The performances will commence at 1 o'clock each afternoon and terminate at 5. Between 5 and 6, the playhouse will be closed and sharp at 6 the evening program will start, with vaudeville. For a period of fifteen minutes, from 6 to 6:15, matinee prices will be charged. The latter offer is made for the sole purpose of encouraging early attendance. The last show will begin at 8:30 and continue until 11 o'clock. All performances will be identical so that the patrons have a choice of three different hours to suit their convenience. As in the past, in the future it will be the aim of Messrs. Proctor and Sanderson to give full value and look to the comfort of each patron.

DON'T LEAVE YOUR AUTO IN FRONT OF A FIRE HYDRANT

Determined to stop the practice of leaving automobiles and other vehicles standing in front of fire hydrants, the police yesterday made the first arrest in a crusade. Judge De Meza let the car driver go this morning, but in so doing he said that the law on that score was to be enforced and that he would not be so lenient in the future. In the opinion of the court, most of the violations are unintentional and thoughtless, and the police have been instructed to watch the cars, especially in the business section of the city, giving warning to move when they stop in front of a hydrant, and making arrests in the case of persistent violators.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES ENDORSED BY FEDERATION

Assemblymen William N. Runyon, Charles L. Morgan and Arthur N. Pierson, Republicans, who have announced their intention of seeking renomination, have received the endorsement of the Union County Federation of Patriotic Societies because of their record at Trenton. This action was taken at a meeting of the federation on Wednesday night.

The federation, which declares that it is absolutely non-partisan, states that other candidates may be endorsed as they announce themselves, but that it finds itself unable to endorse for election the candidates for Assembly thus far announced by the Democrats.

REMOVED DEAD HORSE.

A dead horse was removed yesterday from a vacant lot on Mountain avenue, near the Hyde estate. The animal had been lying there for several days. Chief Marshal Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, made the necessary arrangements to have the nuisance removed.

MILLER SUCCUMBS TO HIS INJURIES

Victim of Automobile Accident Passes Away at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Remaining in practically the same condition since his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital two weeks ago, Amos S. Miller, aged twenty-seven, of 567 Bradford avenue, Westfield, died in that institution at 3:54 this morning, as the result of injuries sustained in the automobile races at the Flemington Fair on Thursday, August 12.

The mishap, which resulted fatally, happened on the last lap of the last race run in connection with the program of auto events that day, the accident occurring when the left rear tire of the car blew out, causing the machine to leave the track below the grandstand and crash into the infield fence. Miller was the mechanician in the car, and when it turned turtle, it pinned both Joseph Lambert, the driver, of Brooklyn, and the Westfielder, underneath. Lambert, who was at the wheel, had a miraculous escape from serious injury due to the fact that the high steering gear protected his body as he slid underneath to the floor of the machine. When Miller was rescued from the overturned vehicle, he was unconscious, and after being rushed to the local institution, injuries composed of a severely fractured backbone, three broken ribs and numerous other hurts were revealed on examination.

Miller is well known in this city, and the sad culmination of the race is deeply mourned by his hosts of friends, who extend to the bereaved widow and child heartfelt sympathy. Mr. Miller was conected with the firm of H. B. Miller & Sons, electrical contractors, of Westfield.

Beside his widow and child, Mr. Miller leaves a mother, Mrs. M. J. Miller, and three brothers, Frank, Raymond and Kenneth Miller, all of Westfield. The funeral service will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home, and interment will take place in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

CLAIM MACHINERY WAS USED WITHOUT AUTHORITY

A question whether the officials of one township in this section of the State has the right to loan township machinery and other paraphernalia to another township without the consent of all the parties concerned in the ownership of the articles loaned, is to be discussed at a meeting of citizens of Warren township tomorrow night at Mt. Bethel. The necessity for discussing this matter has arisen through the actions of John Gunton, chairman of the Warren Township Committee, who is alleged to be using machinery belonging to Warren township in work he is doing as a private contractor in the township of Bernards.

The work which Mr. Gunton is doing is on the road from Mt. Bethel to Bound Brook and will cost about $800. The road being repaired lies all in Bernards township. George Freiday and Frank Ralph, other members of the Warren Township Committee, disclaim giving Mr. Gunton any permission to use the machinery.

Preceding the call for the meeting, an injunction was obtained by Hiram Tunison and Frederick Wiggins restraining Gunton from furtner use of the machinery in completing his contract. Then followed the call for the special meeting tomorrow night, when the subject will be threshed out at length.

FELL FROM BICYCLE.

Harry Kress, of Central street Brooklyn, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, Wednesday, suffering from an injury received as the result of a fall from his bicycle on Duer street last Saturday. After being removed to the home of his aunt, Mrs. George Newman, of Duer street, the lad continued to get worse and his removal to Muhlenberg Hospital was ordered by Dr. A. H. Dundon. An X-ray was taken of the injured limb and it is feared that a broken hip bone resulted from the accident.

BURIAL IN ELIZABETH.

The funeral of Harry Dzendzell, whose death occurred on Wednesday night at his late home on Grove street, was held at the late residence this morning at 7:45 o'clock and at 10 o'clock in the Greek Catholic church, Elizabeth. Burial was made in the Rose Hill cemetery, Elizabeth.

LESSON IN JITNEY BUS DRIVING COST $5

Max Cohen Got Rattled at the Wheel and Injures Borough Woman.

A lesson in automobile driving the other day cost Max Cohen, of West Front street, five dollars in the North Plainfield police court this morning. The money had to be paid because Cohen got rattled while at the wheel of his jitney bus, crossed over to the left side of the street to avoid a trolley car and two wagons, and injured Mrs. Emile Lacours, of 229 Somerset street. The fine was made ten dollars at first, but in response to a plea on behalf of his client by Martin B. Stutsman, his lawyer, Recorder Hand cut it in half.

The trial consumed quite a little time of the borough officials this morning. The testimony of Mrs. Lacours was to the effect that while sweeping her sidewalk Tuesday morning she was struck by the automobile driven by Mr. Cohen, knocked down, and injured so badly that the services of a physician were required. Mrs. Lacours was merely a witness in the action brought this morning, the complaint being made by Chief Marshal Weiss. Mrs. Lacours may be the plaintiff in a civil suit for damages later.

According to her testimony and that of two other witnesses, the automobile dashed across the street on the morning in question, ran up on the sidewalk, knocked her down and then continued on until its front wheels were half way up the terrace.

Cohen's story was that he was learning to operate the car under the direction of Roland Jones, an experienced chauffeur, who sat by his side, and that when about opposite the Lacours residence he got excited because a trolley car was approaching and two wagons were in his way ahead of him, and the car skidded and ran over to the sidewalk, stopping with the front wheels at the edge of the curb. Jones corroborated his employer in everything except the statement concerning the car's position when it stopped. He agreed with Mrs. Lacours that the car passed all the way across the sidewalk and ran part way up the bank.

Recorder Hand made the fine ten dollars. Cohen's counsel presented the financial condition of his client in such a light that the recorder consented to make the fine five dollars instead of ten, although he stated that the occasion was the first in which he had ever reduced a fine once it was imposed. Cohen offered to defray any expense to which Mrs. Lacours had been put because of the accident, but the proposition was refused.

ELKS AND THEIR FRIENDS ENJOY "SHIRTWAIST" DANCE

A substantial sum was added to the Atlantic City fund from the receipts of the "shirtwaist dance" given at the Elks' clubhouse, on Watchung avenue, last night, a large number of members and their friends attending the affair which was one of the usual enjoyable kind run by the local organization. Professor Scott, the well-known pianist, furnished the dancers with a number of selections on the piano while the remainder of the music for the evening was furnished by an Edison disc phonograph. Dancing continued until 2 o'clock this morning. Refreshments were served.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of the Atlantic City committee: John Cose, chairman; Chauncey Stout, C. L. Crist, William Mulvey, George Pope and L. A. Bellis.

Y. M. C. A. OFFICERS WILL HOLD A FALL GET-TOGETHER

The officers and directors of the Young Men's Christian Associations of New Jersey, will hold a fall "get-together" or week-end retreat in Lakewood, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 10, 11 and 12.

The experiment of holding such a gathering was tried in 1912 and again in 1914 with such good results that the State office has sent out a third call.

The "get-togethers" are a little out of the ordinary in association circles. New Jersey is practically a pioneer in this direction, although Ohio first tried the experiment. The "get-together" is not a convention, neither is it exactly a conference, but a gathering for fellowship and acquaintance.

Among those who will participate in the program are H. E. Parker, of Passaic, formerly of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., and William D. Murray, of this city.

BERLIN TO MAKE FULL AMENDS IN ARABIC CASE, VON BERNSTOFF TOLD SECRETARY LANSING TODAY

COMPLETE BACKDOWN IF LINER WAS SUNK WITHOUT WARNING—OUR GOVERNMENT DETERMINED TO PROTECT AMERICANS.

RUSSIANS LEAVE GRODNO AS GERMANS ADVANCE

Paris Reports Great Raids By Aerial Squadron On Several German Points—German Submarine Destroyed By British Aeroplane—Rumanian Army Officers Ordered to Report—Oppose Ceding of Territory By Greece.

Washington, Aug. 27—It was learned from the German embassy that Ambassador Bernstorff, acting on direct instructions from his government, notified Secretary Lansing today that full satisfaction would be given the United States for the sinking of the Arabic, in case the liner was found to have been sunk without warning. Ambassador Bernstorff, it is said, assured Mr. Lansing that the German government would immediately disavow the action of the commander of the submarine, and take precautions that ae repetition would not occur in the future.

Ambassador von Bernstorff held a fifteen-minute conference with Secretary Lansing today, concerning the Arabic case. While neither official would discuss the conference, the complacent attitude of the German ambassador gave the impression that administration officials and the German government were in full accord as to the trend of negotiations. Although Ambassador Bernstorff has, through the known attitude of the German government in respect to the sinking of the Arabic, composed the strained relations between the two countries, it is not the purpose of Secretary Lansing, it was learned today, to allow diplomacy to interfere with the determination that Germany protect the lives of Americans on the high seas. To this end full reparation will be demanded of Germany with assurances that such acts as the sinking of the Lusitania and Arabic will not be repeated. A full explanation of the sinking of the Arabic from the report of the submarine commander when available, will also be insisted upon.

Petrograd, Aug. 27—Grodno is being evacuated. Only sufficient troops to delay the German advance are now in the fortress. Military property has been removed.

Berlin, Aug. 27 (by wireless)—Olita, a Russian fortress guarding the Nieman River between Kovno and Grodno, has been captured by the Germans, the general staff reported today. The fall of this city opens the way for another drive toward Vilna to the northeast and Grodno to the south. In the fighting on Wednesday and Thursday, General von Gallwitz captured 3,500 Russians and five machine guns, while in the operations east of Kovno by the troops advancing on Vilna, 2,400 Russians, four cannon and three machine guns were taken.

Paris, Aug. 27—Today's French war statement says:

"In the sector to the north of Arras the cannonade was less violent during the night. It was very sharp in the region of Roye, and on the plateaus between the Oise and the Aisne. In Champagne before Auberive Sur Suippe, a German offensive reconnaisance was repulsed. In the Argonne were reported only incidents of mine warfare in which we held the advantage.

"In the Vosges, south of Sondernach, we straightened our front and pressed forward the occupation of the position held by our troops. On the crest between Sondernach and Landesbach we captured many German trenches. A counter attack was repulsed.

"During the day of August 26 our aviators bombarded St. Baussant, in the Woevre and Essey in the Argonne. The stations of Ivoiry and at Sierges were likewise bombarded following an attack by German aeroplanes on Clermont, in the Argonne, where bombs resulted in neither death nor damage. During the night of August 26 and 27, one of our aeroplanes threw ten shells on the asphyxiating factories at Dornach. This morning a squadron bombarded the station at Mulheim, in the Grand Duchy of Baden. All the aviators returned safely."

A despatch from the front in Flanders states that in a recent engagement in which Germans attacked French positions near Soissons a German brigade was c

Borough Council Will Hold An Important Session Tonight.

The Borough Council will hold an important meeting tonight, when $35,000 worth of sewer collecting bonds will be sold. The bids will be opened in the presence of the entire body present, and the successful bidder will probably be announced at once, although the Council retains the right to reject any or all bids. The bonds will be gold bonds of the denomination of $500 each, dated April 1, 1914, and maturing $1,000 annually on the first day of April in each of the years 1918 to 1943, inclusive, and $1,000 annually on the first day of April in each of the years 1945 to 1953, inclusive. They will be coupon bonds, with the privilege of registering the same, either as to principal alone or as to both principal and interest, and will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent., payable semi-annually, both principal and interest payable in gold. Inquiries concerning the bond issue were received by him from all sections of the East, some of the inquiries coming from as far away as Cleveland and Chicago. Whether these parties will submit bids is not known.

MRS. CHRISTIE, JERSEY SUFFRAGE PIONEER, DIES

Mrs. Isabella M. Christie, pioneer Suffragist, wife of Alexander Christie, formerly park commissioner, died at her home, No. 802 Avenue C, Bayonne, Wednesday night. She was seventy-four years of age and was born in Glasgow, Scotland. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay, who came to New York in 1850. In 1860 Mrs. Christie married and she and her husband moved to Bayonne seven years later. They lived for thirty-two years in the house in which Mrs. Christie died.

Rev. Dr. Anna M. Shaw, president of the National Woman's Suffrage Association, will conduct the funeral service tomorrow afternoon. Interment will be in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Tarrytown.

SHARP WORK BY POLICE.

Chief of Police Kiely was indignant this morning, because of the method used to get Frank Caruso out of the State, and into Connecticut. The man was wanted there on a charge of desertion, according to a complaint presented at the local police headquarters by a New Haven officer, who asked the local authorities to pick him up. When Caruso was apprehended one day last week, his wife appeared in court, and a supposed reconciliation was affected, and he agreed to go back without making any further trouble. Getting him in Connecticut, he was immediately placed in jail, and the chief said this method of extradition was little short of kidnapping. He has written to the Connecticut city for an explanation of their action in the matter. Caruso's brother is employed by Richard Haden Hood, and Mr. Hood promises to make trouble over the matter, also.

It is expected that the celebration being arranged for Labor Day by the local Italians in honor of St. Nicholas will be held in the large field between Park avenue and Forest road and bordering on Greenbrook. It will be the fifth annual affair of a similar nature.

The spoms held their regular meeting last night at the home of Miss Sadie Manning, on King street.

Rev. Raymond E. Marshall will be in charge of the prayer meeting in the Methodist church tonight.

After being pastor of All Saints Episcopal church, Rev. Oscar Stuart Michael has been offered a parish in New Castle, Pa., but has not yet announced his intention of accepting the call.

The members of the Fanwood Rifle Club, at a meeting on Wednesday night, decided to keep the organization going if possible and try to revive the interest that has declined recently. A meeting will be held as usual, tomorrow afternoon, and will be followed by target practice. Captain Louis Tuzo, who is very much interested in it, is trying to secure an allotment of rifles discarded by the United States Army that are being issued to clubs and rifle associations all over the country.

Mrs. Oscar S. Michal and son and daughter, of the township, are spending a few days at Atlantic City.

As the graduates of the local schools are now sent to Westfield High School, the local schools will open on the same date as those in Westfield, which this year will be September 13. It is likely that the new school in the Graceland section will not be completed at the opening of the fall term and it may necessitate the holding of two sessions in School No. 1 until it is complete and the pupils can be transferred.

Robert Anson has returned to his position in New York after enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Sarah Heaton, of Monroe, N. J., is visiting her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Wescott, of Marine avenue.

Rev. Thomas Houston, the "Blind Evangelist," has resumed his tour of lectures after spending a few weeks with his family on Mountain avenue. Of late he has been speaking at tent revival meetings in Philadelphia.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Two excellent feature films have been scheduled by the management of the Proctor Theatre for the last two days of the summer season of the house. The production for this evening is Raymond Hitchcock, America's foremost comedian, in "The Ring Tailed Rhinoceros," a farce comedy in four parts. Where it is mentioned that this is a Lubin photoplay, enough has been said.

The closing program of the season to be given tomorrow is headed by the big feature play, "The Stolen Voice," in which Robert Warwick plays the leading role. This production is a World Film Corporation play. The story of the film tells of the human attribute of jealousy, and is true to human nature. A little touch of romance and love adds to the interest in the plot. The star, Mr. Warwick, needs no introduction to the motion picture patrons of this city.

Announcements concerning the policy of the Proctor Theatre for the fall and winter seasons will appear in these columns next week, during which the house will be closed.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Some motorcyclists might as well be piloting aeroplanes for all the consideration they apparently pay to the traffic rules applied by New Jersey law to all vehicles. It is not unusual to see a motorcycle traveling at reckless speed on streets where traffic is heavy, although it is rarely that a motorcyclist is arraigned in court for speeding.

Latitudinally, a motorcycle does not take up a considerable amount of space on a highway, even when conknown as side cars, or bathtubs. But longitudinally it is surprisingly effective. When a flying vehicle of this class strikes something or somebody, the results are disastrous. Nothing but a motorcycle can catch a motorcycle, owing to its speed, its ability to keep on a three-inch path and its way of dodging through tight places. But most police departments have men equipped with fast motorcycles, and the catching of other motorcycles would seem to be one of their most conspicuous fields of usefulness.

If there is any reason why motorcycles should travel any faster than automobiles are allowed to, supporting evidence is lacking. There is no apparent reason why police departments and State officials should make fish of automobiles and fillesh of their small but speedy cousins. Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Dill is administering his comparatively new office intelligently, and when he is able to devote a little extra thought to the motorcycles, both as to speeding and open mufflers, he will be performing a public service that will be appreciated.—Newark Evening News.

Passing Show.

The decision made by the management of the Winter Garden to play "The Passing Show of 1915," the present attraction there, in Cuba, for six weeks, beginning next February, has met with a great deal of enthusiasm in the Cuban press and from the Cuban public. The Havana newspapers which have just reached here, comment at great length on the pleasure in store for them. A letter from Dave Echemendia, the director and business manager of the Gran Teatro Nacional, addressed to the Messrs. Shubert, contains an idea involving further plans, suggesting that the Shubert circuit might be extended from New York to Cuba. Mr. Echemendia points out that an excellent route could be arranged by sending a company from New York to Havana, then back to the United States via New Orleans, all the attractions of average size being able to play one week in Havana. Mr. Echemendia is sending a special representative, H. W. Dearborn, of New York, who will arrive here next week to take up the scheme in detail. The Messrs. Shubert consider the idea very practical, and will not be averse to sending their regular list of attractions to the Cuban capital, where during the next winter it is expected that there will be thousands of Americans who cannot go to Europe because of the war, and who are forced to spend the winter in a milder climate.

"House of Glass" Soon.

"The House of Glass," a new play by Max Marcin, will be produced by Cohan and Harris, at the Candler Theatre, beginning next Wednesday night. Seat sale is now in progress. The cast of "The House of Glass" includes Mary Ryan, Ada Gilman, Lila Rhodes, Florence Walcott, Frederick Burt, Harry C. Browne, Thomas Findlay, James C. Marlowe, William Walcott, Frank Young, Sam Meyers, John Fenton, E. J. McGuire, Frank M. Thomas and others.

Strand Theatre.

At the Strand Theatre Hazel Dawn, a prominent member of the Famous Players' galaxy of stars, will be seen in a new photo-drama, entitled, "The Heart of Jennifer," by Edith Bernard Delano. Probably the greatest incident in the strong story is the scene in which Jennifer, prompted by an unusual degree of love for her husband, accepts the guilt of his sister's crime in order that he may not know of the other's disgrace. From this point until the culmination of the thrilling, absorbing plot, Jennifer becomes the object of the suspicions and even the hatred of her husband and the strong sympathy of her audience. In the end the real situation comes to his knowledge, and with his realization of his wife's sacrifice and sufferings comes a love for her as strong as is hers for him. Some new colored scenic and scientific studies brought to this country by the Pharos Film Company will also be shown. The Topical Review contains the latest American and European news pictures. A new comedy and a short dramatic subject completes the screen entertainment. Katherine Irving, soprano, and Vernon Dalhart, tenor, will be heard in favorite operatic arias, and the concert orchestra will render a program of classical and popular selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph O. Martin will be at home to their friends at 120 Madison avenue on and after Sunday, August 29.

Professor J. C. Evans was a guest of honor at the Governor's reception in Boston, Tuesday evening, he being an acquaintance and school friends of Governor Willis, of Ohio, both having attended the Ohio Northern University.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church, of Dunellen, will have charge of the service at the Rescue Mission tonight. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

H. C. SMITH MEETS WITH ACCIDENT IN NEW YORK

While moving a side frame of a Hall printing press Monday evening from an elevator which had been hoisted to the fourteenth floor of the Robert Teller building, in New York, H. C. Smith and one of the men who was assisting him had a narrow escape from death when the elevator without any apparent reason rose about ten inches. A consulting physician has advised Mr. McDonough that it will be some time before he can resume his duties.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

London—Happiness has come at last to a beautiful English girl, who was the widow of George Joseph Smith, the famous "brides in bath" murderer, who was hanged at Maidstone prison two weeks ago. It is a romance of America, for she has married the man whom she met in far-away British Columbia, whither she had gone to drown her sorrows. Caroline Beatrice Thornhill married Smith, who was known as Love. She escaped the death in the bathtub that was the fate of three other brides of Smith. But she was deserted and heartbroken, and only seventeen. Out to the new world she bravely set forth to start life anew. At New Westminster, B. C., she met Thomas J Davies, now a member of the Royal Engineers. They fell in love, and planned their wedding, which was to take place when the deserted bride was freed by the hangman's rope. On Friday, August 13, Smith went to the gallows, and on the following day his pretty widow was married in Christ church, Leicester. Among those who attended was the bridegroom's father, George Davies, who had traveled across a continent and an ocean to be present.

Chicago—After a chase through many States and into Canada, Mrs. Matrovski rounded up the man who "jumped" his $2,000 bail bond which she had signed. Rather than lose her property she became a man-hunter. Her return in triumph ended the hunt, and in a taxicab she took her prisoner to the jail. Benjamin Bealik, who weighs at least twice as much as the nervy woman, meekly submitted. Into Canada, then to New York's Tenderloin, down into New Jersey and back to New York, Mrs. Matrovski pursued her quarry, among pickpockets and white slavers. By sleuthing she located her quarry and secured police aid.

Washington—Women's sphere in affairs of state extends into one of the most important offices of the government. Especially important at the present day is the library of the State Department, where are kept the treaties, records and valuable data that determine the American policy in world affairs. Miss Stuart Fitzhugh, who has catalogued and classified the library, is the expert clerk of the library, and cares for its precious documents. She takes the place of the honored "keeper of the rolls," who ranks as a high dignitary in foreign governments. "We have here a great many publications and documents which are to be found nowhere else in the world," she says. "Among our most precious documents are the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States in the originals, with the articles of confederation, the emancipation proclamation and other papers vital to our country's history." Miss Fitzhugh is a Kentucky girl. She taught school in Pennsylvania, Georgia and Michigan, and won her present office through the civil service. Dr. Eugene Wambaugh, of Harvard, who was special counsel for the State Department when the European war broke out, remarked that the government had at least one employe well placed. She translates foreign languages, and knows the contents of treaties like a book.

New York—Mrs. Maud Brevoort Barclay, who was once known as the Six Million Dollar Widow, is bankrupt. Her vast fortune, which was represented in real estate, has disappeared, and her present holdings are worth hardly $30,000. Her lawyer told the court that Mrs. Barclay, like many other social leaders, had entrusted her business affairs to agents and servants. The agent paid exorbitant bonuses for loans and made unbusinesslike concessions to tenants. She inherited her fortune from her first husband, Augustus B. Prentice.

Amboy, Ill.—The venture of Mary A. Smith, of Chicago, a pretty typist, who quit her good position, her city friends, her theatres, operas and dances, and her lover, to become a housekeeper on a farm and care for an elderly couple, is being watched by sociologists. She is known as the "Ten Thousand Dollar Housekeeper," for she will inherit this fortune from the Pankhurst family with whom she is living. But more than the money which will come to her, the fair stenographer values the country air and simple ways of country life. Born in the city and left an orphan, she has always wanted a home, and another thing she never had, a family. She has been two weeks on the big farm, and says she is the happiest girl in the world. Farmer James Pankhurst and his wife are frowing old. They asked an immigration officer at Chicago to get them a daughter. Mary Smith was picked from the hundreds of girls who wanted to go. Some shook their heads when it was learned that a young and pretty typist was chosen. But Mary is happy, and says "a million horses couldn't drag her away."

RECREATION NOTES

The Dunbar dance will be held this evening in the Washington School Auditorium. Over one hundred of the colored people of the city attended this gathering last week and it is expected that there will be as many or more tonight.

The Dramatic Club is to have a reception this evening in the kindergarten room at Washington School. An hour of games will be followed by dancing. Refreshments will be served.

LITERARY

"Billy" Sunday's Ten Commandments."

1. Thou Shalt Not Gossip—There are three ways to spread the news—telephone, telegraph, and tell a woman. The devil is so afraid of some of you women he wouldn't get within twenty feet of you.

2. Thou Shalt Not Covet—Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's cook, nor his automobile, nor his rubber-tired carriage, nor his private yacht. Many a man would like to have his neighbor's wife. You let her alone.

3. Thous Shalt Not Tango—I'm against that rotten, licentious, hell-begotten dance that sends more girls to hell than anything else. I'm in favor of everything that the devil is against, and I'm against everything the devil is in favor of.

4. Thou Shalt Not be Stingy—Some would-be Christians are so stingy that they would steal flies from a blind spider. There are others so mean that they sing through their noses to save wear and tear on their false teeth.

5. Thou Shalt Not Have Too Many Beaux—It's hard to fool a real suitor, and a man doesn't want to marry a girl that's been pawed over by every young buck in the community. The fizzle-headed girl that sits up in a dark parlor with one buck after another is on the way to perdition.

6. Thou Shalt Not Be Conceited—A conceited man is like a cheap-skate restaurant where everything is in the window and nothing on the table but hot air. Self-conceit will always be a millstone around your neck.

7. Thou Shalt Not Drink—The man who says he can drink and leave it alone, lies. No man ever intended to become a drunkard. Every drunkard started out to be simply a moderate drinker. If you believe you can leave it alone, why don't you?

8. Thou Shalt Not Cuss—One of the things that show the foundation of a man's character to be rotten is to hear him cuss and vomit out oaths. I would not trust a profane man any too far in any transaction.

9. Thou Shalt Not Dodge Thy Debts—Some haven't religion enough to pay their debts. Would that I might have a hook and for every debt that you left unpaid I might jerk off a piece of clothing! If I did, some of you would be left with only a celluloid collar and a pair of socks.

10. Thou Shalt Not Flirt—Society takes no note of the flirtation on the street. It waits until the girl has lost her virtue and then slams the door in her face. I wish I could make a girl who flirts see herself as others see her. If you make eyes at a man on the street he will pay you back.—From the Strand Magazine.

Famous Walkers.

"There have been some famous pedestrians, with the emphasis on the word famous. Charles Dickens was a great walker. 'Twelve, fifteen, even twenty miles a day were none too much for Dickens . . . swinging his blackthorn stick, his little figure sprang forward over the ground, and it took a practical pair of legs to keep alongside of his voice.' He once did 'a special feat of turning out of bed at two, after a hard day, pedestrian and otherwise, and walking thirty miles into the country for breakfast.'

"Sir Walter Scott 'walked twenty or thirty miles without fatigue, notwithstanding his limp.' Browning, when past seventy, could take long walks without fatigue, and Wordsworth, at three-score, did twenty miles a day. DeQuincy considered fourteen miles a day necessary to his health, and Lamb, notwithstanding his 'almost immaterials legs,' could walk during all the day.' Brahms was a tireless pedestrian, and Beethoven always took his daily walk, or 'run,' of five or more miles in all manner of weathers, while Turner traveled twenty miles a day, sketching as he walked. Herbert Spencer, at thirteen, in a fit of homesickness, walked forty-eight miles one day and forty-seven the next; but was probably injured in so doing. Tolstoy, at fifty-eight, walked a hundred and thirty miles in three days.

"Great men are usually of powerful physique, and many of us would suffer if we emulated their walking habits, but they have not all been so vigorous. Immanuel Kant walked for at least an hour every day, but doubtless Bacon or Locke, Chopin or Weber, Spinoza or Calvin, who were none of them in good health, would have found a walk of a mile or two quite sufficient, or even too much."—Dr. James Frederick Rogers, in the September St. Nicholas.

Former Governor Edward C. Stokes, in a letter to a prominent Hudson county Republican, expresses gratification at the spirit of harmony which has been created in the Hudson county ranks. Mr. Stokes terms Hudson county an important section and the need of harmony and co-operation among the Republicans there as necessary as in any other section. Mr. Stokes' estimate of the importance of Hudson county harmony is believed to be the general sentiment of the State committee.

Latest advices in the Passaic county State Senatorial contest indicate that a hard fight will be made by the old line Republicans to defeat James G. Blauvelt, the Progressive candidate, for the G. O. P. nomination. Rumor has it that former Speaker Thomas McCran will withdraw from the contest, in order to throw his weight to former Assemblyman Edmund G. Stalter. Stalter has already refused to withdraw and it is believed with both Stalter and McCran in the race, Blauvelt would be sure to win out in the primaries.

The "Anti-Dal" Assembly candidates from Essex county, have made public a platform on which they will make their run for the nomination. Among the more important planks are ones which advocate greater measure of home rule for cities, election of Assemblymen by districts, instead of by counties, and permission for people in municipalities to change their charters from time to time, by special elections, without recourse to the Legislature.

Leading a sort of general advance movement on Washington, Sheriff Kinkead, of Hudson county, has been congratulated by President Wilson upon his conduct of the Bayonne strike trouble recently. Sheriff Kinkead was received by the President along with State Chairman Grosscup, State Commissioner of Banking and Insurance George M. LaMonte, Internal Revenue Collector Samuel Iredell, of Camden, and Commissioner of Charities and Corrections Richard Stockton. There was no chance to talk politics since the New Jersey men were all received at once, and as a result many well-laid plans had "gone agley." Sheriff Kinkead, who, it is believed, wanted to get the President to come out in favor of woman suffrage, had his disappointment assuaged in large measure by the admiring throngs who listened breathlessly to his tales of encounter with infuriated strikers and cold-blooded strike guards in the wilds of Bayonne.

HEALTH OFFICER STARTS "CLEAN-UP" IN BOROUGH

Following out the general clean-up scheme in vogue in other parts of Somerset county, Health Officer Louis Ollif, of North Plainfield, has directed property owners and the borough officials themselves to cut down weeds and brush along roadsides and is urging property owners to do the same where growths of such vegetation are found within the boundaries of their places, in an effort to lessen the mosquito pest.

Alleging that such spots are mosquito breeding places, a determined effort is being made to do away with them. Streets which are little used have rank growth of weeds and bushes coming up at the edges and even between the wheel tracks, which are supposed to harbor mosquitoes. Where these growths are in the streets, the street commissioner has been directed to move them, while private property owners are expected to do their share. Dr. Arthur H. Dundon, of the North Plainfield Health Board, has received the borough's share of the recent appropriation from the Somerset Board of Freeholders to defray the expenses of an inspection of alleged mosquito breeding places, the data to be tabulated for use in the campaign next year.

EXHIBIT CLOSES VACATION DAYS

Climax of Playground Work Witnessed By Many at Bryant School-yard.

Under the Direction of Miss Harriet Moe the Children Present An Attractive Program—List of the Events.

The final exhibit, as well as the climax of the playground work conducted in the city this summer, was held in the Bryant School yard, yesterday afternoon. Fully four hundred visitors witnessed the handiwork, drills, dances and sports shown by the children and all were unanimous in proclaiming it the best ever. Begun six years ago, the innovation into Plainfield of the summer playgrounds for children has indeed proven a helpful solution of the problem, "what shall we do with our children during the vacation days?" Each year brings a larger registration and the success of the enterprise is unquestioned.

It may well be said that the popular playground on East Fifth street is the initial beginning of the great work in this city. Begun six years ago, under the able supervision of Miss Harriet Moe, of New York city, the children's yard has expanded more and more until nearly every school yard in the city is equipped with necessary paraphernalia and competent instructors. Much of the success of the former and its later growth is due to the untiring efforts of Miss Moe, who has given her entire time to the instruction of her pupils, who find her interesting and a warm friend. The Bryant School is the only playground in the city which is in charge of but one supervisor, and it may well be said that it occupies a high rank in the rating of local grounds.

Although the displays of sewing, basketry and other handiwork, vied with the exhibits of drills, dances and games, the latter proved the drawing card of the attendants at the grounds. The principal feature of the afternoon was a Colonial Maypole dance executed with dainty grace by twelve girls, gowned as Daughters of the American Revolution. The little misses who took part in the dance were Eupremia Gullberg, Lois Lord, Ruth Nellis, Isabel MacGillvray, Winifred Scribner, Edna Nellis, Ruth Scribner, Eleanor Sminck, Emma Nellis, Daisy Hile, Dorothy Adelberg and Viola Bicknell. The following participated in other dances: Martha Berse, Frances Mango, Myrtle McLean, Ruth Mutnick and Betty Price. The "Hungarian Dance" and the "Norwegian Mountain Climb" also came in for a large share of the applause.

In the organized games the following boys won prizes: 50-yard dash, tie between Harold Wilson and George Reed; three-legged race, Kenneth Wilson and Philip Wintrob; fireman's race, Harold Wilson, who carried John Kiely; potato race, George Reed, and sack race, won by Robert Shephard; the 50-yard relay race was won by Herbert Price, Harold Wilson, Donald Wilson, George Reed and George McGoldrick. Beside those named the following boys took part in the different events: Ralph Kennett, William McGoldrick, Percy Marangelo, Percy Terry and Charles Clarke.

Viewed by Harry W. Marshall and John Zerega, the commissioners of the local playgrounds, the children seemed inspired to do their best. The former were enthusiastic in the showing of the young people and pronounced it the best they had seen yet. Following the completion of the afternoon's program, ice cream cones were served each attendant. Miss Jennie Bremble assisted in various capacities throughout the afternoon.

Completing six years of faithful work, Miss Harriet Moe, was the recipient of scores of congratulations from parents and friends of the boys and girls and a cordial invitation for her return next summer was issued. Perhaps the secret of her success in playground work lies in her extremely pleasing personality. She is especially popular among the children and each one has some tale to tell her each day, they know that they will have ready and willing ears to listen to their tales. Asked if she would rather consider the idea of resuming her work in this city next year, Miss Moe hesitated in answering. Although there is a lure in the work for her, she has not had a prolonged vacation in six years and it would not be surprising if she decided to spend next summer elsewhere. Miss Moe will leave Plainfield next Tuesday, going to New Hope, Pa., where she will spend two weeks before resuming her teaching in Public School No. 8, New York city. During the winter months she will be found in the latter school actively engaged in teaching English to foreign-lit of her sixth annual his city, she has made host of friends and is roughout both local She is a member of Golf Club and is an t the game and whenever she has a spare hour or two is found trailing over the smooth grounds of the local golf course. Beside being an excellent elocutionist she has written the larger portion of the plays and dramatic presentations staged in the New York school. Yes, indeed, she is a Suffragist, and looks forward to the day when she will have the privilege of the ballot.

PANIC KILLS THREE AT WALTHAM CARNIVAL

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 2.—Panic, it was established today, caused the deaths of three men who were drowned during the carnival on the Charles River last night.

The dead, William Chase, John Caine and Joseph Maguire, together with eleven other men and one woman, had parts on a float symbolic of charity, contributed by the local lodge of Elks to the carnival held in honor of the conference of Governors, now in session at Boston.

The float began to ship water, and thinking the craft was about to sink, some of its occupants jumped into the water. The three dead men sank immediately, as they wore suits of armor. The others were fished out.

CONGRATULATIONS.

It had been a night of triumph at Capua—New York. As the little band of workers gathered around the box-office receipts, Mrs. G. S. Pubbleby (the defeated candidate for chairman of the Entertainment Committee) raised her voice and spoke substantially as follows:

"Well, it was just grand — just grand; You girls that got it up ought to be proud of yourselves! It was a credit to the First Combined church; you cert'nly couldn't have done it better; the talent was just splendid.

"That skinny little pianist from Syracuse was simply perfect— simply perfect! She didn't look as if she could play a bit, and nobody expected anything of her, but my! she did make those keys travel! I thought she was a perfect wonder, especially in that piece where she broke down —you remember!

"And that awfully good-looking soprano! Weren't you lucky to get her? I never saw a more stunning creature in my life—such a pity that she flatted all her high notes! They say she comes originally from New York, and wore tights in a comic opera till some broker—but that's the way it goes; you can't pick and choose the past life of your talent. It's too bad that Mrs. Brown—the Baptist Mrs. Brown, I mean—knew all about this creature.

"But naturally the prize of the evening was that impersonator. Wasn't he funny? And how did he think up all those jokes about Capua people? I just laughed myself sick when he told about George Moore being so absent minded that he put his umbrella to bed and stood up himself all night in the hall. And that joke about Mr. Hinkly, the constable—no use to vaccinate him—he couldn't catch anything! But I thought the best joke of the lot was the one he sprung on fat old Mr. Simms. You remember that—don't you? Why, the young fellow said that Mr. Simms came down to his bank one morning and was taken sick with appendicitis, and the doctors had to hold a consultation—they didn't know whether to operate or to blast. I thought it was a shame when Mr. Simms got up and went out mad and said he wouldn't contribute a blessed cent to the building fund.. .....Well, good night! Splendid success, wasn't it?"—Horatio Winslow.

TO AN INAMORATA.
(A Translation.)

Say, if thou wilt, that one can hear the sigh
Breathed, 'mid the flowers, by the butterfly;
Say that it s no tale of fairy land
That tells us how sweet Cinderella's hand
Was won; that never thorn on rose-bush grows;
Or laugh if I should say the blushing rose
Is red; the modest lily white; and I—
I will believe thee dear, O foolish I!
Tell me the stars that shine, serenely bright,
To gazing poets owe their joyous light;
Tell me the radiant Sun is but a gem
That sparkles in the Night's fair diadem;
Tell me the lightest feather far outweighs
A heart bowed down by grief of many days;
Tell me—whate'er thou wilt, and I—and I—
Will never doubt thee, dear, O foolish I!

Thy voice dispels all doubt. Facts fances seem.
Tell me that happiness is not a dream!
Tell me thou lovest me, and I—and I—
Will trust thee ever, foolish, blissful I!

WAR NEWS

fall back after losing three-fourths of its effective fighting strength.

Seven Germans, one said to be a member of the crew of the Emden, have been arrested at Barcelona on a charge of having false passports, says a despatch from that city.

London, Aug. 27—Official announcement has been made here that a German submarine had been destroyed near Ostend, Belgium, by a bomb dropped from an aeroplane. It says:

"The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that Squadron Commander Arthur Bigsworth, R. N., destroyed single-handed a German submarine this morning by bombs dropped from an aeroplane. The submarine was observed to be completely wrecked, and sank off Ostend.

"It is not the practice of the Admiralty to publish statements regarding the losses of German submarines, important though they have been, in cases where the enemy has not other source of information as to the time and place at which these losses have occurred.

"In the case referred to above, however, the brilliant feat of Squadron Commander Bigsworth was performed in the immediate neighborhood of the coast in occupation of the enemy, and the position of the sunken submarine has been located by a German destroyer."

The British steamer Palmgrove, 3,100 tons, has been sunk by a German submbarine. The crew was saved.

Despatches from Berlin and Washington stating that Germany will modify her submarine policy were hailed by evening newspapers today as a notable victory for the United States, and a decisive defeat for Armiral von Tirpitz.

The American steamer Sirius from New York for Narvik, carrying resin consigned to Petrograd, is still detained by the British authorities. They insist she must be taken directly to Archangel, unless the owners secure a guarantee from Sweden that trans-shipment of the cargo will be permitted.

Milan, Aug. 27—A Zurich despatch says that all Roumanian army officers in Switzerland have been ordered to report to the Roumanian war office as soon as possible.

Athens, Aug. 27—Ex-Premier Gaunaris announced today that he would continue to oppose territorial concessions to Bulgaria. He said that he expected the support of some Venizelist deputies who were elected to aid the policy of the present premier.

SETTLING HAITIAN TROUBLE.

Washington, Aug. 27.—A treaty between the United States and Haiti, establishing a financial protectorate for the island republic will be ratified shortly by the Haitian Government, Charge d'Affaires Davis, at Port au Prince, informed the State Department today.

Bismarck's Appetite.

Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor, had an enormous capacity for eating and drinking. He once told a friend that the largest number of oysters he ever ate was 175. He first ordered twenty-five; then, as they were very good, fifty more, and, consuming these, determined to eat nothing else and ordered another hundred, to the great amusement of those present. Bismarck was then twenty-six and had just returned from England.

MINERS ORDERED BACK.

London, Aug. 27.—Miners on strike in South Wales and Monmouthshire were ordered by their leaders today to return to work immediately. The government is believed to have promised further concessions, as the executive committee of the Miners' Federation has been summoned to London for a conference with Walter Runciman, of the Board of Trade.

MIKE GIBBONS PREDICTS KNOCKOUT FOR MC FARLAND

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 27.—For the first time since the consummation of his match with Packey McFarland, which will be staged at the Brighton Motordrome on September 11, Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phantom, has ventured a prediction as to the outcome. After boxing ten rounds yesterday with his sparring partners, Gibbons declared that he would knockout the Chicago wonder. It is quite the usual thing for boxers to issue pre-battle statements of this nature, but coming from Gibbons, who is not given to boastfulness, it carries more weight than if it emanated from another ringman. Gibbons will leave here tomorrow (Saturday) with his brother, Tom, and a staff of sparring partners and a trainer. He will finish his training at the New Polo A. A., in New York.

SPORT BRIEFS

Walter Merrill Hall, W. W. Washburn and T. R. Pell, of New York, and B. M. Johnston, of San Francisco, won their brackets in the semi-final of the cup singles in the tennis tournament on the turf of the Meadow Club, at Southampton, N. Y., yesterday.

At Brown's Far Rockaway Club tonight Frankie Burns, the New Jersey featherweight champion, boxes Benny McCoy ten rounds. Several first-class preliminaries will be carded.

President Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh National League Club, has signed a three-year contract with his star twirler, Al Mamaux.

The "turnit-instinct" in people makes the "For Sale" ads interesting to them.

ROD AND REEL

Some day there is going to be a member of the Legislature who will agree with the late Senator Sewell when he said that the best asset of the State of New Jersey is its fishing grounds. In a statement made before a committee he estimated the money spent on the pastime in the State at $3,000,000 annually. When a member of the Legislature agrees with the Senator he will come forward and champion the cause of the rod and line fishermen who are seeking to keep the fishing grounds free of pollution, but who get no help from the State. Year after year the fishing resorts grow less because the pollution is driving the fish away. Year after year the oyster acreage in North Jersey is growing smaller because of the pollution, but not a finger is raised to prevent it. Everybody seems to be afraid of hurting the big corporations or large industries by interfering with their manner of disposing of their sewerage and waste. No one wants to interfere with them, but if they interfere with others then they can only expect to have a come-back—Every factory sending waste into Staten Island Sound or the waters adjacent thereto knows that it is being done unlawfully, and as soon as they are taken to task they will find another way to dispose of it, but as long as the waters of the State can be turned into a sewer at no cost to them they will keep up the pollution.

The open season for shore birds begins Wednesday. The shore bird list is made up of black-breasted plover, jacksnipe or Wilson snipe, yellow legs, rail birds, coots and mud hens. A license is required in order to legally hunt or shoot them. The license this year is a combination one, good for both hunting and fishing, and must be in one's possession when hunting. During the past ten days a number of yellow legs have been seen on the Newark-Elizabeth meadows, but mud hens are not as plentiful as heretofore.

The Staten Island fishermen are much elated over the number of weakfish in the bay, and all they want now is a whack at the blues. Great Kills boats are sticking close to home, as they are bringing in enough fish to satisfy their parties.

We are promised a run of clear weather by the weather sharps, which will mean good saltwater fishing if the promise holds good. There is a large school of pound bluefish reported coming this way from the Boston fishing waters, and they should strike in here some time this week. Kingfish are plentiful in the surf, and the lifeguards along the coast report weakfish moving in shore.

The discovery of the new croaker fishing grounds in the lower New York bay has been the cause of arousing new interest among the fishermen.

Fishing enthusiasts have had species of tuna shipped to the East from Block Island.

Weakfish are biting unusually well at Sewaren.

FARMER A. C. TO MEET ST. JOSEPH'S ON HYDE OVAL

According to information given out today the St. Joseph baseball team will attempt to revive the old-time "pep" tomorrow when the fast Farmer aggregation is encountered on Hyde Oval. For some time the Saints have been inactive, and the announcement that they are again going to grace the diamond comes as a sweet surprise.

The Farmers will present their usual line-up, with "Iron-man" Kachelries on the mound. The Saints expect to nail his shots for tallies every time they get the chance, but "Kach" says they will have a hard time getting the chance. Although Eddie Conshay, the leader of the Canadian forces, has not given out his line-up, it is thought that he himself will pitch, and that Harry Molton will do the catching. The infield will be composed of Miller, Meade, the McDonough brothers and Johnny Connolly, while George Howe, Jones and Carney may be seen in the outer works.

The Farmer list includes the names of all those who will play in the game with the Highlanders on Emerson Oval Sunday.

MARSTON ENTERED.

Max Marston, the crack Union county golfer, will be among the ten players who will represent the East against the West for sectional honors at the Detroit Country Club tomorrow. Marston is practicing hard for Saturday's play, which is to be the qualifying round in the amateur championship of the United States.

GENERAL'S WIFE BURNED.

San Francisco, Aug. 27—Mrs. John J. Pershing, wife of Brigadier-General John J. Pershing, was burned to death, with three or four children, at her quarters in The Presidio, San Francisco, early today. Explosion of a night lamp is believed to have caused the tragedy.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

CAMP WAWAYANDA CLOSES FOR SEASON

Plainfield Boys Return With Additional Honors In Athletic Events.

Camp Wawayanda closed yesterday for the season and the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. boys who went to the lake with the last section of campers have returned to their homes, bringing with them additional honors in athletics and aquatics.

Harold Zeek won the silver medal offered for the greatest number of points in athletics in the unlimited class, which means that Zeek won out over all the competitors who engaged in the athletic contests at the camp this season. His record was 207 points.

The Plainfield boys also brought home with them the silver cup offered the branch winning the greatest number of points in aquatics. This cup has been in competition five years already and will eventually become the property of the association winning it three times in succession. This is the first time the cup has been captured by the Plainfield association. One association won it two years in succession, then failed to keep it the third season. The Plainfield delegation of boys failed to capture the athletic cup by 70 points, Passaic winning that.

Following are the boys who returned yesterday: Harold Zeek, Martin Snyder, Ralph Faga, Walter Brown, Parker Newell, Allan Mogenson, Harold Allen, Laird Hiberger, Alfred Smith, Dorchester Walsh, John Endress, Max Fullerton and Walter McGee.

DOPESTERS PREDICT SOME STARTLING SURPRISES IN CITY LEAGUE STANDING

As the Season Draws to a Close Each Team Is Taking On a New Lease of Life—New Faces to Be Seen In Tomorrow's Contests.

Startling surprises, it is predicted, will be given City League fans tomorrow, according to the advance information. Of course none of the teams is going to "pad up," but a few of the outfits may present some of the unusual talent that have already listed. Frank Conti is the authority for the statement that his brother, who has been already listed by the Hopes, will pitch for them tomorrow, when the Tabs are the hosts. According to Frank, his brother is a big husky fellow, with plenty of stuff which he knows how to use to good advantage in the coming tilt. Some say that Jack Thoney, the "Fed" star, will hurl for the Abstainers, but this is not likely.

Regarding the league standing, some changes are sure to be registered and they will not be of the ordinary variety either. Dopesters are of the opinion that the Netherwoods cannot beat the Saurers. Of course, they base their assertion on the result of last Saturday's Clinton-Netherwood argument. Other sages say that Hope Chapel is going to take an awful fall out of the Monahans, but the fans fail to see where either team has any advantage over the other. Both are fast and both will have to contend with the aid of two or three stars. With Patterson on the mound the Baptists ought to put one over on the Apgar boys, even though Benny Rosencon does his best to prevent such an occurrence.

Friend fan, you will have to just watch the battle. Favorites may fall but that cannot be helped.

SPORTING NOTES

St. Augustine, Fla., is laying out a $100,000 golf course and clubhouse.

The University of Chicago baseball team has sailed for Japan to play the three great universities there.

Sportsmen of the Northwest are gathered in Minneapolis today to talk conservation of big game. A shooting and fly-casting meet will be held next year.

Charles White and Milburn Saylor are picked by most sport authorities as the best contenders against Freddie Welsh. A half dozen other aspirants are in the field.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have annexed a pitcher who sounds good to the ear. His name is Gary Fortune, and comes from Asheville.

The championship tidewater swimming race in New York from the Battery to Sandy Hook is set for Sunday, September 5.

Goulding, the Canadian walking champ, has taken up swimming. He was originally a good middle-distance runner.

Frank Kramer, who has held the professional cycling title for 14 years, says he will retire at the end of the present season.

Next Monday the national lawn tennis championships will begin at Forest Hill, L. I. Some exciting contests are expected.

Honus Wagner, while making good on the ball field, has established records in other things. He is a chicken fancier, a dog breeder, fisherman and basketball player. However, his mighty club is not overshadowed.

The three-cushion billiard title held by George W. Moore will be defended by Moore against William B. Huey, of Chicago, next month. De Oro will meet the winner.

Yachting is the costliest of American sports. It is figured out that $2,500,000 is required each year to support the different clubs.

MORE ENTRIES.

Both Harry Terhune and John Janovisk, of Michelin, and St. Peter's, respectively, who finished first and second in the five-mile race at Keansburg last Saturday, have entered the coming New Brunswick meet, and expect to make a creditable showing. So far as is known, there are no five-milers entered from this city, but Joe Carner may decide at the last minute to compete.

VAN DEVENTER BROTHERS MAY ENTER TENNIS TOURNEY

Many class racquet wielders will be entered in the open men's doubles tennis tourney to be staged on the courts of the El Mora Country Club beginning Saturday, September 4, and ending Labor Day. The doubles contests staged last September resulted in some thrilling play, and as the committee is arranging to bring out the best talent hereabouts there should be class tennis throughout the entire tourney.

Special efforts will be made by the committee to have Harold Throckmorton and Lindsay Dunham, of the Ilderan Club, of Rahway, and the Vanderventer brothers, Lud and Gus, of this city, compete. The first matches of the doubles will start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, September 4. Matches will be played in the morning and afternoon of Labor Day.

ANDY COAKLEY THINKS RANDOLPH NO PUZZLE

Andy Coakley, who recently pitched a no-hit game, but who has not been pitching any remarkable ball during the last few years, is authority for the statement that "Lefty Joe" Ritter, the Perth Amboy pitcher, would fare much better with the Lincoln Giants than Cliff Randolph did. According to Andy's dope Ritter, who is a southpaw, could easily retire six of the Lincoln batsmen, who are also left handers. Randolph, in Coakley's estimation, could be and was slammed all over the lot by the McMahon boys, but Ritter would fool them to a frazzle. Imagine that! Ritter, who was a dead cinch for the Empire City A. A., and whom the Brooklyn Suburbans are "dying to mee," would have no show at all against the heavy-hitting combine of Wiley, Poles, Forbes, Pettus, Williams and Johnson.

If Cliff beats the Lincolns on September 11, Ritter is going to twril in the other Lincoln match, scheduled for September 12.

LOCAL BOYS TO TRY.

Jesse Harper, athletic director of Notre Dame University, today announced the football schedule for the coming season. It follows: Alma at Notre Dame, October 2; Haskell Indians at Notre Dame, October 9; University of Dakota at Notre Dame, October 23; University of Nebraska at Lincoln, October 30; Army at West Point, November 6; Creighton University at Omaha, November 13; University of Texas at Austin, November 23; Rice Institute at Houston, November 27. Marty and Packey McDonough, of this city, are students in Notre Dame, and may try for a berth on the pigskin outfit.

GOLF ENTHUSIASTS READY FOR TOURNEY

National Amateur Championship Opens Today In Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27—Golf enthusiasts are gathered here today in unusual numbers for the opening tomorrow of the national amateur championship. The clash of the "Big Three," Travers, Ouimet and Evans, promises to make golf history. Never before have these stars of the game been so well fortified to wage desperate war for the crown. Also blossoming in the background are many contenders who are playing first-class golf and any one of whom may upset the stars and romp away with the honors.

The weeding out process will be under way bright and early tomorrow at the Detroit Country Club. The qualifying round will be of 18 holes, 64 to qualify. On Monday, 32 will qualify at 36 holes. Match play at 36 holes leads up to the finals on Saturday, September 4.

Early in the summer many golfers figured that Ouimet stood alone, that the Boston star would have no great trouble defending the title he won so gallantly at Ekwanok a year ago. But this situation has undergone a change. When Travers suddenly conquered his weakness with the wood and landed the open championship at Baltusrol, the "walk over" for Ouimet began to be doubted.

Back in 1913, when Ouimet won the open and then beat Travers at Brookline, Baltusrol and Ekwanok at their next three meetings, it was generally conceded that Jerry had met his master. But Travers has learned his lesson, has retained his courage, and improved greatly in his skill. Travers vs. Ouimet means a different thing than it would have meant last year.

The adherents of Chick Evans as the favorite in the coming tourney believe that this seems to be his best chance. Chick has complained of the tricky Eastern greens. This time he is playing upon a Western course where the greens are of the type of which he has been accustomed. Evans is one of the great shotmakers of golf. From tee to green, he has no superior in America. He is fine with the wood, very good with the long irons and a wonder with the mashie. But he hasn't shown sufficient edge over Travers and Ouimet up to the green to beat either unless he can master his putting weakness.

Many pick Evans for the title this year. He is due for a win, unless an unusual streak upsets, for he has played wonderful golf for many years. The first championship is the hardest to win. It came near breaking Travers, a marvel in nerve control. It came near getting Ouimet last fall.

A big gallery will follow each of the three favorites.

LOCAL ANGLERS BOOMED.

"John Doughty, the Plainfield tackle dealer, fished at North Branch early in the week and caught all the black bass the law allowed him to have in his possession," says the Newark Eagle. "The largest one weighed three pounds nine ounces and was some fighter. While we are talking about Plainfield folks, and there are some great fishermen in the berg, let us say that Dr. E. A. Giddes and Assistant Corporation Counsel Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of Plainfield, and their families, have gone to Budd's Lake for a prolonged vacation. Doughty replenished their tackle supply before they left and, as the doctor and counselor (and, we might say, their friends) are ardent disciples of Isaak Walton, it is expected that there will be some doings at Budd's Lake, especially in the fishing line."

NATIONAL TOURNEY READY.

Officials of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association have practically decided upon Frederick B. Alexander, formerly national champion in the doubles and Davis Cup player, opening the thirty-fifth annual national championship tournament against Nathaniel W. Niles, of the Longwood Club, when the meeting begins Monday on the turf of the West Side Tennis Club, at Forest Hills, L. I. As a secondary match on the stretch of turf between the big grand stand on which four courts have been pitched, Harold A. Throckmorton, of the Ilderan Club, will meet Edward H. Whitney, formerly Harvard captain.

CALEDONIAN GAMES.

The fifty-fifth annual games of the New York Caledonian Club will be held at Washington Park, Grand street, Maspeth, Long Island, on Labor Day. The program consists of thirty events, of which twenty-five are open to all. In addition to the usual field and track events, there are Highland dress, Highland dancing and bagpipe competition.

BENEFIT GAME FOR INJURED BALL PLAYER

Plans Underway to Help Frank Brennan, Who Broke His Leg.

The many admirers of Frank Brennan, the midget T. A. B. "phenom," who broke a leg sliding to second in last Saturday's tilt with the Baptists, have suggested that the game between the Clinton Avenues and the Abstainers, which will be played on Avon Oval one week from tomorrow, be staged for the benefit of the unfortunate youth. The idea is considered a splendid one, and the teams think it ought to meet with the approval of all local fans. All of the T. A. B. players are glad to be able to be of service to their mate, and while the society itself pays sick benefits, the money derived from an event of this kind would be very acceptable to the lad. Of course, before any direct action can be taken in the matter, the Clinton Avenue manager must be consulted.

Brennan, who has been one of the most consistent players in the T. A. B. S., is now resting comfortably, but his leg is so badly broken that it will be some time before he will be able to get around again. Just a week before the accident happened the boy secured a clerical position in Spicer's, and was just beginning to get in touch with the work. However, when he fully recovers he will find his old job waiting for him, if he does not decide to accept one of the two offered him by admiring friends.

Several citizens of Plainfield signified their intention of rendering aid in whatever was his friends proposed, and it is hoped that all followers of local sports will make the affair a grand success.

MARQUARD THREATENS TO JUMP TO THE FEDERALS

When John McGraw yesterday refused the request of "Rube" Marquard for an unconditional release and insisted that Marquard must play with Toronto in the International League, the pitcher said he would again jump to the Federal League. Marquard said he had two offers from the independent organization and that he would immediately close with one of them.

Marquard asked McGraw for an unconditional release, asserting he could join another National League club if he was not hampered by his present contract with the Giants. McGraw refused this, telling Marquard that he was through with the pitcher and that he did not care to discuss the matter further.

Marquard said that McGraw told him he would not give him an unconditional release because he had been blamed for letting Snodgrass and Murray get away. Marquard also said he positively would not play with Toronto.

WILL HE SHINE NOW

William Wortman, the American Association's crack shortstop, and Jack Martin's rival for honors, is mixed up in a lawsuit between the Feds and "O. B." It is alleged that Wortman attempted to jump to the Feds.

TUTTLE THE LATEST.

Former Congressman William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, is being seriously suggested as a possible Democratic candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination next year. That party might look well before finding a better man for the place. His record for faithful, painstaking work at Washington shows that he would make good in any office to which he might be elected. Mr. Tuttle has the advantage of not being a lawyer, and it is very evident that the Republicans realize that the people want some one other than a lawyer, from the names that have been suggested in that party.

In discussing the matter, the Trenton Times says that Colonel Austen Colgate is easily the leading candidate of the G. O. P. at the present time. He is a manufacturer and has a large following in Essex and Hudson counties. Then Walter E. Edge, who has been acting Governor two or three times, and occupies that place now, is mentioned prominently, and he has had enough experience lately to help him if he should get the job. He is the head of a big advertising agency, and formerly owned two newspapers at Atlantic City. There are others, but only one, Vice Chancellor Vivian M. Lewis, is a lawyer, and he says he will not be a candidate.

On the Democratic side, State Comptroller Edwards now apparently has a lead by reason of the fact that the Hudson and Essex county organizations are lined up solidly for him. He is a banker in Jersey City. Sheriff Eugene F. Kinkead, likewise a Hudson aspirant, is in the advertising business. H. Otto Wittpenn, who is regarded by his friends as still flirting with the Governorship, is in the brick business and holds a government job; State Banking Commissioner LaMonte, of Bound Brook, is a manufacturer of high grade bond paper, and State Treasurer Edward E. Grosscup is a big real estate operator.

Up to this time there does not seem to have been much centering on any particular Democratic candidate, but the primaries are still fourteen months away and there may be many shifts in that time.

A FINE (?) PLATFORM PLANK.

Newspaper reports regarding the Democratic outing on Wednesday have the following to say as to William A. Leonard, who was selected to be one of the three standard-bearers of that party for Assembly honors in November:

Leonard, who is known as "Bill" to every man, woman and child in Union county, is accepted as the strongest aspirant for the honor he seeks. "Bill" is one man who is against prohibition and everybody that knows him is acquainted with his fact. Although he does not indulge in alcoholic beverages himself, Leonard believes in letting those who want a drink have it, he explained to a crowd yesterday who questioned him on this particular point. Leonard served two terms in the Legislature.

That's a fine platform plank for any man who seeks the votes of Plainfielders, or the people of any other place in the county, possibly excepting Elizabeth. We suppose that is his way of asking the support of those interests which will oppose Assemblymen Runyon, Morgan and Pierson, because of their position on local option at the last session of the Legislature.

"Our Jim" Martine can appreciate a good joke as well as any man. Here's the latest dig at his prediction of war with Mexico, taken from the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph "Senator Martine predicts that we will soon be at war with Mexico. As a prophet Senator Martine is an experienced hand. Being a farmer he always lays in an extra supply of turnips when the goosebone is dark. He likewise starts to dust his underwear at the sound of the first katydid, and by the same rule he hustles for an umbrella when the tree toads chirp. Therefore, assuming that Senator Martine has seen an army worm standing on its hind legs looking toward Mexico his latest prognostication is a matter of easy understanding."

In expressing their great confidence in President Wilson, for his handling of the delicate situation with regard to Germany, the Governors of the various States in conference at Boston on Wednesday merely reflected the sentiment of the people of the United States, except, of course, those who are outspokenly in favor of Germany. The President has work before him that would have tried Washington and Lincoln, but up to the present time he has kept us out of war. Many another President, not excepting a recent one, would have rushed the nation into the conflict.

George L. Record is considered a crank and political turn-coat by a lot of Jerseymen, but it is noticed that in every fight for the people he occupies an important place. His work in sustaining the ninety-cent gas rate is so well known that explanation is unnecessary. That was done while employed by the city of Passaic. Now Trenton has retained him to make a fight against the abolition of six-tickets-for-a-quarter by the trolley company there. Record is cordially hated by the corporations, and he seems to have given them good cause for such hatred.

Sherlock Holmes, Jr., better get on the job and find out why a certain local paper took eight days after the Press to wake up to the appointment of a local member on the National Defense Committee of the Woman's Section of the Navy League of the United States, which was printed in the other paper last night with all the ear-marks of news. At this late day it was merely ancient history.

Dr. Alfred F. VanHorn, school physician in Plainfield, has prepared the contributed editorial for tomorrow's paper. His subject is "Medical Inspection In the Plainfield Public Schools," and the advantages of this work, which he so well does, are set forth as they have never before been presented to the local public.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS MET

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 27—State superintendents of schools from many States attended the annual meeting which opened at the Municipal Auditorium yesterday. Thomas E. Finnegan, of Albany, N. Y., presided. The National Association for the Study and Education of Exceptional Children also opened its annual session.

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

Off Again On Again

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

In A Village Hotel

The man in that next room is shooing flies—
I hear his febrile language and his step—
I am a sherlockholmes, and might surprise
This shooing gink should he know I am hep!

Though not a blacksmith, yet he shoos them still—
He hopes he may exterminate their race.
I have no grudge against my neighbor, till
With his new shoos the flies walk on my face.

I have a swatter, which I use with vim—
My swats sound like the thud of muffled drum.
But every time I hiss "That settles HIM"—
A score unto the dead one's funeral come!

Cantaloupes

About one cantaloupe out of every so many is edible.

It is harder to tell a good cantaloupe, from looking at its weather-boarding, than it is for a green hand to tell a toadstool from a mushroom.

Cantaloupes would come under the head of games of chance were it not for the fact that there is so little chance.

When a cantaloupe is good, it is a dream.

When it's bad, it's a nightmare.

There is an old proverb about something's depending "on whose ox is gored."

But you can tell by studying the faces of any herd of breakfasters, whose cantaloupe is gourd.

We once saw a grocery sign in Memphis, "Roquefort Melons."

And when we stopped and guffawed loudly at it, an anxious clerk came out and made inquiry as to our merriment.

Next time we went by, it said "Rockyford."

The Rockyford melons raised on clay soil in Indiana from squash seed are of a different flavor from those raised in Colorado.

Kansas City cantaloupes assay a very high percentage, also.

We are a good cantaloupe soloist, and are the guy that put the sob in casaba.

Can Give No Enlightenment

If you had a young lady daughter with a tendency to beat the whey out of a harpsichord that needs tuning, and if the people who lived below stairs, in the next netward flat, were to leave a large six-pound double-bitted Lippincott axe beside your door, said axe bearing a card reading "Try This on Your Piano," what would you think?—A. P. L., Dubuque, Ia.

The Change

A Rip Van Winkle of to-day awoke and said: "I am in luck! When I dropped off to my long sleep, the magazines were raking muck!"

O You Judd!

Our old friend Judd Mortimer Lewis of the Houston Post once perpetrated this:

"I wish I were a wooden pier
A-stretching out to sea.
For then a lot of pretty girls
Would come and sit on me."

Yeah, Judd. You'd be stretching out so see all right!

Scripture Reversed

Suggested sign for a fashionable tenement:

"If Ye Become as Little Children, Ye Cannot Enter." That's one reason why such places are so much less like heaven than like the other place. The legitimate business of the present generation is to supply and to rear the next one.

No Outdoor Or Indoor Sports Left?

With the Czar cutting off their vodka-drinking and von Hindenburg restricting their retreating, the Russians bid fair to be left none of their popular pastimes with which to amuse themselves.

The Young Lady Across The Way

We asked the young lady across the way if her father was employing more men as business improved and she said she guessed he was, as she overheard him say that it looked as if he'd have to have an assignee appointed for the first time in his life.

HEALTH TALKS

by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Why Fumigate?

EIGHT or ten years ago Dr. C. V. Chapin, Superintendent of Health, Providence, R. I., concluded that fumigation after contagious disease was useless, and he discontinued the practice in Providence. Without going into statistics we may simply add that the rite has never been resumed.

In October, 1914, the practice of fumigating premises after contagious disease was discontinued in the boroughs of the Bronx, Queens and Brooklyn, in New York City, with the exception of smallpox. And it has not been resumed to date.

The truth of the matter is, that if cases of contagious disease receive ordinarily good nursing and medical treatment, as the community is bound to supply for its own welfare, then there is no good reason why the premises should require fumigation. Indeed, actual tests have shown that the customary method of fumigating rooms with formaldehyde vapor fails to kill known cultures of disease germs placed in the rooms. If that is true, what a futile effort fumigation must be.

But even if the horrendous odor of formaldehyde were enough to kill disease germs in the room, there is no good evidence that there are any disease germs left in the room to be killed, if the patient has been properly cared for. Thousands of bacteriological tests of wall-paper, furniture, draperies and other articles (excepting personal and toilet utensils), failed to demonstrate the presence of diphtheria germs in the room after diphtheria. Of course, articles which the patient had touched with his mouth or fingers occasionally did have diphtheria germs still on them, but ordinary washing or boiling or disinfecting would take care of such germs, all right.

Why fumigate, then?

Because we haven't the moral courage to discontinue the venerable rites of our empirical fathers. We know very well that the convalescent patient, and not his living apartment or bed chamber, is the germ carrier, if there are any germs left.

And then, besides, fumigation is offensive to one's olfactory organ, and somehow we doctors always have enjoyed dispensing odoriferous agents to our friends, the public.

But anyway, dear reader, just between you and yours truly, don't imagine for a minute that fumigation terminates the risks of infection, for it doesn't. Fresh air, sunshine, soap and water and elbow grease are indispensable disinfectants, no matter what perfume the health department prefers.

PONDEROUS PERSONAGES—HENDRIK HUDSON

HENDRIK HUDSON was a fearless navigator who sacrificed his life in the interests of geography and died a disappointed man because he wanted to find a northwest passage to China which wouldn't have been worth anything, and instead only succeeded in discovering New York, which teaches us that we should never be dissatisfied with our failures until we have had them assayed by posterity.

Hudson was an Englishman and was known as "Henry" and "Hank" by his boyhood playmates. He prepared himself to be a discoverer but the discovery business was slow in England, so he went over to Holland where they changed his name to "Hendrik," taught him to wear eleven-ply pants and gave him a life job roaming around the Arctic regions with flimsy ships manned by dissatisfied crews.

Hudson made four trips to America while hunting for the northwest passage. On his first trip he accumulated a vast assortment of frost bites and chilblains, consumed all his provisions and returned home empty-handed.

On his second trip he landed in a fine harbor and ascended a broad river for a long distance. However, when the river petered out he was still several thousand miles from China, so he named it the Hudson and departed. He mentioned his discoveries casually on his return home and the Dutch built New Amsterdam in consequence. If they had not relied so implicitly on unpreparedness as a defence the English would not have taken it from them and the colonists would probably have had to whip two nations to be free.

In 1616 Hudson sailed on his fourth trip. He forced his little ship into the vast and silent north with a daring only equalled by the motor boat cranks of the present, and after great hardships entered an immense sea. Round and round this sea he sailed, trying to find the way to China, until his impatient crew dumped him into a small boat, together with his son and seven sick sailors, and went home.

Hudson was never heard from again, but he has survived in history very tenaciously. He has had a bay, a territory, a river, a vast steamboat, a tunnel, seventy-nine apartment houses, a county and an automobile named after him—all because he died rather than to give up. In order to become immortal it is necessary to be tolerably contemptuous of life and comfort and financial returns.

Views Of The Press

Religion In Russia

WE HAVE looked upon the Russians as, generally, an ignorant people, hard-drinking, subject to being stirred to such enormities as the massacre of Jews, slow in modernizing their farm and industrial activities, slow in making practical application of the results of scientific inquiry, and with an exceptionally corrupt high society. It is possible that the last fact may go far towards explaining the recent reverse of Russian arms; for the endurance and bravery of the common people, and their effectiveness when well led, is not called in question.

It is a curious paradox, yet not an unparalleled one, that, with all their ignorance and the vices that naturally accompany ignorance, the Russians are very religious. The country has magnificent cathedrals and churches: there are shrines without number, and before these the Russian habitually uncovers and crosses himself; icons, symbols of the saints and of God, are in every home, in every room in the hotels, and in the waiting rooms of stations, and people at their devotions are among the most common sights in the country. In one of his most interesting descriptions in "Anna Karenina," Tolstoi presents the picture of an old laborer turning toward the east and giving himself to prayer before beginning his rude meal in the field, and again offering prayer when he had finished it.

While perhaps the great majority of people have the conviction that "pure religion and undefiled" is of one sort, yet religion as we see it practised is of many sorts. Great variety is here presented, and we have one in the generally well-disposed, but ignorant, often intemperate, and sometimes atrocious, Russian peasant. To make use again of "Anna Karenina," Tolstoi, in developing a transformation in the secondary heroine of that remarkable book—which really contains two romances—says:

She learned that beyond the instinctive life that had been hers there existed a spiritual life, into which one penetrated by means of religion, but a religion that in no respect resembled that which Kitty had practised since infancy, and which consisted in going to mass and to vespers, to the Widows' Home, where one met acquaintances, and to learn by heart Slavonic texts with a priest of the parish. It was a religion elevated, mystic, united to the purest sentiments, and in which one believed, not through duty, but through love.

Whatever is or has been the religion of the Russians, therefore, it is clear that they have not been wholly without a sharply contrasting type, one that, to say the least, seems closely to approach that spoken of as "pure and undefiled."

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND

by E. R. BRANSON

The Wily Agent

Q. A man with whom I have had dealings represented himself as the agent of a certain corporation. I rather doubted whether he was really employed by the company, but I have reason to believe that the company knew he was so representing himself. As he was supposed to be acting for the company and the agreement I made with him was intended to be binding upon the company, I want to inquire whether it will really have that effect.

A. If the corporation knowingly and voluntarily permitted this man to hold himself out as its agent, it will be bound as principal to those dealing with him in the belief that he was, in fact, the company's agent.

Don't Let Him Bully You

Q. I am running a small boarding-house. I seldom have more than six or eight boarders and in fact do not care for a greater number. A man recently came to me and asked for lodging and board. I put him off till the next day, so that I could learn something about him. He came back the next day and in the meantime, as I had heard some things that were not altogether favorable, I told him I could not take him. He then informed me that I would be required to do so under the law. Is this correct?

A. No.

Just Plain Farming

Q. I rented a farm and the lease contained a condition that I should "cultivate and farm the land in a workmanlike manner." I have since been wondering what "in a workmanlike manner" would be considered as meaning. Can you tell me?

A. The phrase should be understood as meaning that the duty is imposed upon you, by the lease, to cultivate and farm the land in such a way as good farmers usually do.

Payment Of Taxes

Q. Where a man pays personal taxes in a certain town, is such town to be considered as his place of residence?

A. It is not necessarily his place of residence. The fact that he pays personal taxes in a particular city or town is to be taken into consideration, however, together with other circumstances, as tending to show that such place is his domicile. It is one of the evidences or signs of domicile, but is not conclusive proof.

Hadn't You Better Hide The Axe?

Q. I am a landlord and have recently given a man a lease for a small tenant-house. He has entered into possession and I find that he is doing certain things which are injurious to the property. The lease does not say anything about using the premises in a careful manner, but I should think he ought to do this anyway. What is your opinion?

A. Regardless of the written lease, the tenant is required to use due care in the preservation and protection of the property. If the premises are injured in any substantial manner, so that the building cannot be restored at the end of the demised period in as good condition as would have been the case except for the tenant's wilful or negligent act or conduct, the tenant will be liable in damages.

They're All In It

Q. A merchant built a hatch door on the sidewalk next to his place of business. The door seems to have been defective and a man who was passing by fell through it and was injured. He brought suit against the city and was given damages. The city authorities are now contemplating a suit against the merchant. Would the merchant be liable to the city?

A. Yes. The city was liable for failure to keep its streets and sidewalks in good repair and in a safe condition and the merchant was guilty of a neglect of duty in failing to keep the hatch door in proper repair and in a safe condition. As the city was made to respond in damages, it may maintain a suit against the merchant and compel him to answer over.

A Non-Clerical Marriage

Q. I have been informed of a marriage ceremony that was performed by a man who claimed to be a minister, when, as a matter of fact, he was not. Is this marriage valid?

A. The statutes of the various states usually authorize certain persons, such as ministers and justices of the peace, to perform marriage ceremonies, and as a general rule prescribe definite formalities as to the manner of obtaining the license and as to the return to be made by the person solemnizing the marriage. In these states, a marriage of the kind you describe would be void unless it is specifically recognized by the statute. In some states a common law or informal marriage is given recognition by the law and in this event a marriage of the kind mentioned by you would be valid.

Pepper Talks

To-Morrow

To the fellow who never accomplished anything To-morrow is what happened yesterday, but which he seeks to make happen to-day.

Nothing ever put off until To-morrow was ever done To-day.

The great Task FINISHED is always the task done To-day, while yet there is Time, while yet there is inclination, while yet there is life and health—while yet there is Chance.

Nothing ever put off until To-morrow was ever done To-day.

Some of the biggest things ever accomplished were done in a day. Napoleon was banished to a living Hell—on a lonely rock with armed watchers hedged about him—for the simple reason that Blucher decided to do his part with Wellington without any courting with To-morrow. To-morrow for Grouchy meant Defeat for Napoleon; for Blucher "made good" To-day.

Nothing ever put off until To-morrow was ever done To-day.

It may be easier to do things To-morrow than To-day, but if you take the Chance, the one best bet is that they won't get done. Money earned To-day represents Dividends for you To-morrow. Work entered into and done To-day renders back Ease and Satisfaction To-morrow. Records made To-day inspire and lead great armies of fighters To-morrow. But—

Nothing ever put off until To-morrow was ever done To-day.

Poor Hippo Had a Hard Time.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—What Made the Hippo's Hide So Thick.

"THERE'S a reason for everything," declared daddy, beginning the evening story, "but we have to guess about many of them. For instance, whatever in the world made the hide of the hippopotamus so thick?

"You have seen the hippopotamus in the menagerie of the circus, kiddies, and you have noticed how altogether thick his hide is. It is just like an armor, isn't it? Any mosquito that tried to sting through the hide of the hippo would have to wear his stinger in a sling for some time, I fancy.

"But we will assume, just for the sake of the story, that this was not always so. You know the hippopotamus lives in Africa, where it is very hot, and there are no end of mosquitoes that sting and flies that bite and every naughty thing like that, and we will go away back to the time when there were many animals and just the first of the black men who now overrun Africa, and some of the animals looked quite differently then from what they do now, and I think perhaps the people looked differently too.

"Well, anyway, let us take a look at the poor hippopotamus. Do you know, kiddies, that poor creature suffered—actually suffered—from mosquitoes and flies and gnats, for you see in those early days he was the thinnest skinned of the jungle creatures, and how those insects used to enjoy picking on him!

"It was nothing less than a shame. A naughty mosquito would come buzzing up out of the swamp and call to the other mosquitoes, saying:

"'Oh, come on, folks; here's one of those thin skinned hippopotamuses, just the meat you've been waiting for. His skin is just as soft and tender as a baby's, and it's a lovely pink, and I just know he's all full of blood underneath.'

"It was the same way with the flies and gnats. So between them all the poor hippo had a hard time. And he would go into his wallow of water and mire to get away from them and to drown them if possible, and he would stand there and cry because of his melancholy fate.

"But one day, while the hippopotamus was journeying through the jungle, he chanced to encounter—what do you think? Why, a puddle of the thickest, stickiest mud you ever saw!

"The mosquitoes had been stinging him badly that day, and so now he had an inspiration. He lay down and rolled in that sticky mud that was like mucilage. It stuck fast to him and caked on, and when he got up he could laugh at the mosquitoes, for they broke their stingers on him, and from that day to this the hippopotamus has had a boiler plate hide."

"Oh, daddy, what a funny story!" cried the children.

"Well, it might have happened," said daddy.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD.

"Oh, I wish he wouldn't hold his breath. It frightens me dreadfully." Nell's voice sounded teary.

"Holding his breath!" Dick came to the bedroom with a bound. "We've got to stop that; it's dangerous." He disappeared and Nell still bent over the child anxiously. He was nearly black in the face when Dick returned from the kitchen with a cup of water and with scant ceremony dashed it in his face. As his mouth was wide open, a goodly portion of it went inside and met the surprised yell the water brought forth. A frantic gasping and sputtering ensued, followed by terrified screaming. Dick had promptly seized the youngster and was pounding him on the back to introduce air instead of water to his lungs.

When the first terrifying struggle was over Nell sank down on a chair, trembling violently.

"Dick Morton, how can you be so brutal?" she sobbed. "You almost choked him to death."

"You notice he stopped holding his breath." There was a satisfied smile on Dick's face as he administered comforting little pats to the crying baby.

"There now, daddy's boy will learn better than to hold his breath like that again. Eh?" He laid his cheek on the child's tumbled hair.

"I suppose what he suffers is nothing to you so long as you carry your point," said Nell bitterly.

"Carry my point! What in creation are you talking about, Nell. The point being to keep him from suffocation from holding his breath, I was rather anxious about carrying it. Would you have me let him die rather than surprise him with a little water?"

"Oh, he wouldn't die." Nell looked tearfully into the baby's face.

"Wouldn't he. Then what was worrying you, if holding the breath is a harmless pastime?"

"But you nearly strangled him to death," she objected.

"I own I might have been less clumsy and selected some other part of his face besides that yawning chasm to receive the water, but I was rather hurried in my selection. It seemed to me he hadn't breathed for half an hour." He kissed the baby's wet cheek. "Next time I'll let you pour the water, provided you do it quickly enough."

"There isn't going to be any next time." There was sullen defiance in Nell's tone.

"See here, little wife, I love this boy too well to see him hurt himself in any way when I can prevent it." All the laughter had gone from Dick's face. "I hope you are not one of those namby-pamby sentimentalists who prate of love and show it only by weakly yielding whenever a child cries. This boy has got to do the thing that is right as nearly as I can make him and there is no surer way to spoil a child than for one parent to try to have him mind and the other weakly indulge him."

"I haven't weakly indulged him," blazed Nell. "Your definition of weakness seems to be any expression of disapprobation of your course."

Dick went over to the crib and gently laid the sleeping baby down and pushed the tangled hair from his flushed face.

"Come here." He helped his wife to rise and putting his arm around her led her to the morris chair and sitting down drew her to his knee.

"Nell, I believe this is a crucial time in our lives. We both love that baby better than our own lives. Our best judgments may differ as to the course that should be pursued with him. We must thresh that out between us, getting all the light possible on the situation, but one thing we must do: we must stand together, and neither one must object to the course of the other before the boy, don't you see? That is a vital point."

"Yes," breathed Nell.

"And will you solemnly promise to keep this contract?"

"Yes."

He folded her in his arms and kissed her to seal the vow.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"The Captice," with charming Blanche Sweet in the leading role, will be the chief attraction at the U. S. Astor Theatre this afternoon and tonight. This time Miss Sweet is cast as Sonya, a Montenegrin peasant girl of an elementary, subdued nature, but underneath the rather course surface there lies a vein of feminine tenderness and plenty of fire and passion, once they are aroused. Much of the interest in the picture centres in the expresive work of Miss Sweet and House Peters, playing the Turkish captive, a man of noble birth who at the point of a pistol is forced to do the bidding of an ignorant girl. The humor arising out of the odd situation is natural, as is the gradual alteration in the attitude of Sonya toward her prisoner.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

After washing the hair a good way to rinse it, fill a sprinkling can with water, suspend it on a nail above the head over the sink or bathtub, the water comes with force enough to thoroughly rinse all soap from the head.

Use for old tacks and broken or rusty needles, pins, etc.—Place them in layers in soil when you transplant a fern or plant of any kind; then take a match, put sulphur end down and you will have a green, rich, beautiful plant; never fails.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

Preserves—Pare and slice a pineapple (canned pineapple may be used if the fresh fruit cannot be had); then dice the same amount of watermelon rind by weight and allow measure for measure of sugar. Add sugar to make a rich sirup and when it begins to boil, add the fruit. Cook about forty-five minutes. Seal while hot. The watermelon absorbs so much of the pineapple flavor it is difficult to detect the difference between the two.

Jelly Bag Rack—An easy way to make a rack to hold a jelly bag is to take an old kitchen chair and saw off the back, then turn upside down; take a square of cloth large enough to reach to all four legs and tie to legs. Put a pan under this stretched cloth to catch the juice.

ICE CREAM.

Vanilla Ice Cream (This makes three quarts)—Two quarts sweet milk, one pint sweet cream, two to two and one-quarter cups sugar, two egg yolks, a little cornstarch (make a paste of it with milk, then thin and add to rest), vanilla extract, two egg whites. Take milk, cream and sugar, bring to boil, add cornstarch and egg yolks. Take off stove, cool and add vanilla. When cold freeze partly, then add beaten white of eggs; finish freezing. If you desire to add fruit, add it when first part is half frozen. A very cheap but delicious ice cream.

THE TABLE.

Ham Canapes—Cream one-fourth cup butter; beat into it a canned pimento, washed, dried and chopped fine; half cup chopped ham, teaspoonful grated onion, a little cream to make it moist. Press in a sieve. Have bread toasted, cut triangular-shape or heart-shape; pipe ham onto the edge of toast, place a sardine in center, fill one side with chopped white or sifted yolk of egg and the other side with chopped pickled beets.

Butterfly Salad—This is a very pretty salad and can be used at most any time of the year. Remove all skin from two grapefruit and three oranges, cut into uniform slices across the fruit, then into halves. Drain juice from a small can of pineapple and cut slices also in halves. Make individual nests of shredded lettuce on serving plates, place two sections of grapefruit in center with the curved edges together; on these put two slices of pineapple, and above that two of orange. Place a strip of pimento down the center and a nut meat at one end, and cover all with French dressing, or serve mayonnaise separately.

Blackberry Shortcake—Three cups flour, butter size of egg, two tablespoons sugar, yolk of one egg, two teaspoons baking powder, salt; enough sweet milk to make a soft dough. Roll one-half, place in pan, spread with butter; roll other half, place on top and bake. Take one quart berries, mash half, sweeten place between layers. Place the other half on top.

Leftover Pie Crust—Roll out and cut with cooky cutter; prick each one several times with a fork, put in the center a teaspoonful of jelly or any cooked fruit, or cinnamon and sugar rubbed together; bake, and you have fine tarts for the children (or grown-ups as well). They are especially nice to put in a lunch box.

A MENACE TO THE POCKETBOOK.

An uninsured automobile is considered a liability rather than an asset in banking circles. When one goes to a bank to borrow money, he is quite likely to be asked whether he owns a car and if it is insured. If the car is not covered, the banker will point out that it is a menace to the pocketbook as the owner may be forced to pay $10,000 to $20,000 damages to some one. We can remove this obstacle. Auto fire at 1%.

COMMUNITY HARVEST HOME IS PLANNED

Annual Affair to Be Held At Old Piscataywaytown On September 1.

The harvest home at old Piscataywaytown is probably unlike any other in New Jersey. It is not for the benefit of any church or private organization, but for the good of the whole community. At the first one held last year over one hundred persons of all religious bodies united enthusiastically in its promotion, and even the most hopeful were amazed at its success. Nearly 1,000 persons were provided with suppers and about 3,000 were present during the evening on the brilliantly lighted grounds.

It seems strange that the old grant of the Commons by the Board of East Jersey Proprietors in 1695 should have waited until 1914 for its full adoption and use by the community. The Raritan Civic Association was organized on July 29, 1914, after two meetings held in old St. James' Episcopal church, known as "The White Church," on June 21 and July 5, when "community service" was strongly advocated from the ancient pulpit.

The year's work has been full of interest and value. The $350 earned by last year's harvest home has not all been expended, for about $100 remains for further park improvement. Nearly $200 has been used for clearing up the grounds, providing a 75-foot encased well, with an abundance of pure cold water, and the rest for park seats, tennis court, piano for Town Hall, etc.

During the year a Christmas treat was given for the children of the neighborhood, four social events were provided and two great outdoor celebrations on Memorial Day and July 4.

Eight popular lectures have been given without charges as follows: "Our Foreign Population," by John Manley; "The School Question," by Supervisor Charles Runyon; "Wireless Telegraphy," by H. E. Campbell; "The Home Orchard," by Professor Oley; "Farm Dairying," by Professor Geldister; "Home Gardening," by Professor DeBaun; "The Care of Poultry," by Professor Aubrey; "Woman Suffrage," by Miss Elizabeth Hill, and an illustrated lecture by Professor Maurice A. Blake on "Beautifying Parks and Home Grounds."

The park will be developed by plantings, walks, flower beds, etc., under the direction of Dean Lipman and Professor Blake, of the Experiment Station. Professor A. R. Johnson and students of Rutgers College have made a careful survey and a blue print for this purpose. Several demonstrations on canning fruits and vegetables have been conducted under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Home Economics. F. L. Owen, farm demonstrator for Middlesex county, has been enlisted in the development of the park. Next year the 250th anniversary of the township is to be celebrated, and a full week of events is anticipated.

The second harvest home is to be held on Wednesday, September 1, on the park grounds, and the proceeds are entirely for the development of the public park and playgrounds. The Middlesex and Trenton trolleys stop at the grounds at the station known as "White Church."

Excellent roads from New Brunswick, Metuchen, Perth Amboy, etc., lead to the park, and, as last year, no doubt many will be pleased to visit the old Commons and assist the community in its endeavor for public improvement. There will be a country store, ice cream, soda, novelties, large dancing platform, and the Union Band, of New Brunswick.

PLAINFIELDERS AT THE SHORE.

Among the visitors sojourning in Asbury Park are the following Plainfielders: Mr. and Mrs. John Gaffney, of Westervelt avenue; the Misses Helen and Ida Hummel, of Duer street; William Peacock and family, of Putnam avenue; Misses Marguerite and Edith Arnold, of First place; Miss Edna Enander, of Watchung avenue; Pierson Bailey, of Summit avenue; Ralph Seals, of North avenue; James J. VANDERHOEF IS MADE COLLECTOR

Borough Council Unanimously Appoint Him to Succeed George F. Brown.

TERM BEGINS AT ONCE

Resolutions On the Death of Late Official Are Presented and Adopted—Tax Books After Approval Turned Over to New Collector.

As announced in the Plainfield Daily Press, of yesterday, J. V. E. Vanderhoef was appointed borough tax collector and treasurer by the North Plainfield Council at the adjourned meeting of that body last night, there being no opposition to his appointment. Councilman Allan Cowperthwaite, chairman of the finance committee, nominated Mr. Vanderhoef, the nomination was concurred in by all the members of Council present, Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., appointed him, and upon resolution introduced by Councilman Alexander Milne, he was unanimously elected, his term beginning August 28 and running until January 1 next. In the resolution was a clause authorizing Council to dispense with Mr. Vanderhoef's services at any time prior to January 1 upon resolution of Council.

While this appointment, it is believed, gives Mr. Vanderhoef the advantage in the coming election of a tax collector and treasurer for one year, the unexpired term of the late George F. Brown, whom he succeeds, he will no doubt have plenty of opposition at the primaries, for there are several petitions out for the nomination already, and probably many more will spring up before September 8, the last day for filing petitions for borough offices.

Mr. Vanderhoef is a resident of the borough of many years' standing, and has been active in its business and political affairs. He is secretary of the Union Building and Loan Association, a director of the State Trust Company, an executive officer of the Improved Order of Heptasophs, president of the North Plainfield Board of Health, and is an executive of the Woodhull and Martin Company.

Following the selection of Mr. Vanderhoef for collector, Councilman Milne moved that a committee from Council be oppointed to draw up a suitable set of resolutions on the life and death of the former collector, George F. Brown, and Mayor Clark named Mr. Milne and Councilman Cowperthwait. The committee reported the following resolutions, which were adopted, ordered them spread on the minutes, and a set engrossed and sent to Mr. Brown's family:

Be it resolved, by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, that:

"The Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield desire to express and put on record their sincere sorrow and sense of bereavement in the loss by death of their highly-esteemed associate and friend, George F. Brown, the honored collector of the borough.

"In the death of George F. Brown the borough has lost an honored and esteemed citizen, a wise, judicious officer, who has for sixteen years as borough tax collector and treasurer, given his best thought to its interest, and by his wisdom promoting its success.

"The Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield have each lost a warm personal friend, and cannot see the long and friendly association broken without great pain.

"We desire to testify to his Christian character, his sterling integrity, and that his personal character has elevated him far above the average, and we appreciate that our loss is the loss of the whole community.

"Be it further resolved, that these resolutions be communicated to the family and published."

It was reported that the books of the former collector had been examined by an expert accountant from the office of Suffern & Loomis, and were in shape to be turned over to the new collector.

The salary of the office of collector and treasurer of North Plainfield pays $1,200 a year. In addition to this sum there is an annual allowance of $250 for clerk hire, something for the rent of an office and a fuel allowance, bringing the total sum handed over to the collector up to between $1,500 and $1,600.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

The preacher at the morning service in the First Methodist church tomorrow will be the Rev. Dr. McDaniels, of Pennington Seminary. He is a strong speaker and is in great demand as a lecturer and preacher. Edgar A. Cole, baritone of the church quartet, will be the soloist at this service. The congregation will unite in the union service in the First Baptist church in the evening. Dr. Anderson is expected to occupy the pulpit at the services on Sunday next.

BASEBALL CONTEST TO FEATURE MEET

Business Men and Physicians Will Meet In a Royal Diamond Battle.

Further arrangements are being made daily for the big feminine athletic meet to be held on Parker Field, Labor Day afternoon. Every consideration has been given in order to provide an afternoon of fun and enjoyment in combining sport with pleasure. Many field and track events have been scheduled, introducing several events which will help keep the crowd in good humor. The meet will start at 2 p. m. sharp and the best way to secure a good place of view will be to be there early when the gates open at 1 o'clock.

The events include a 50 yard dash, 50 yard back walk, running high and broad jump, standing high and broad jump, baseball and basketball throwing, potato race and obstacle race, and baseball game.

Miss Lillian Lamson, supervisor of the local playgrounds, has secured the services of George W. Wriston, of this city, as official for the afternoon, and he is selecting an able corps of timers, scorers, starters, etc. The registration committee is kept busy, entries still coming in, any girl being eligible to enter. A number of the young women who participated in the "Community Picnic" meet in Franwood recently, have entered their names and will give the locals a hard run for the honors.

Members of the secret committee report that not a few back yards and vacant lots are being utilized these nights, by the fair sex, who may be seen by pedestrians, stretching their muscles, hopping, jumping and running. Many have been humoring brothers to aid them and give them pointers on the race track and field events. At any rate each of the young women who has entered her name has done some practice more or less and is quite ready for the first crack of the pistol.

Promptly after the athletic events the feature of the afternoon will be staged, namely, a baseball game between the doctors of the city and local business men. Dr. William H. Anthony has secured a nine which he feels proud of and which "will put it all over" the business men, while the latter, who will be under the direction of William L. Smalley, promise to come back in equal style. At any rate, it is expected there will be a record crowd of rooters on hand and rumor has it that several heavy bets have been cast on both sides.

To encourage local athletics the Public Recreation Committee has offered a handsome silver loving cup to the young woman who garners the highest number of points in the different events.

PRELIMINARY MEETING TO BE HELD SEPTEMBER 14

J. E. McLoughlin, one of the organizers of the International Typographical Union, visited this city yesterday afternoon and held a conference with Walter I. Firstbrook, a local reporter and promoter of the Newspaper Writers' Union in this city. A meeting to discuss the advisibility of such an organization was called for September 14, in the Building Trades' Council Hall, at which time Mr. McLoughlin will present the plans relative to the union. In New York and Boston and other large cities of the country, newspaper men belong to such unions, only those being eligible who have done at least four years of newspaper writing.

PLAINFIELD TRUST GET SEWER BONDS

Borough's $35,000 Issue Purchased By Local Institution For $36,435.00.

SIX BIDS WERE RECEIVED

Bonds Are of $500 Denomination Each; Dated April 1, 1914, and Interest Will Be Used to Pay Off That on Those Due October 1.

The prospect of an amicable settlement of the differences between Germany and this country undoubtedly had a healthy effect upon the sale of $35,000 worth of five per cent. collecting sewerage system gold bonds by the borough of North Plainfield, last night, for all six bids received at the adjourned meeting of the Council were satisfactory ones. The entire issue was sold to the Plainfield Trust Company at a good price. Its bid of $36,435 (104.07) was the highest received and a resolution authorizing the sale of the bonds to the company was immediately adopted.

The bidders and their offers were as follows: Plainfield Trust Company, $36,435; J. S. Rippell & Co., $36,410.50; R. M. Grant & Company, $35,745.50; Harris, Forbes & Company, $35,731.85; State Trust Company 35.724; Ludwig & Crane, $35,714. The certified checks for two per cent. of the par value of the bonds accompanying the bids, as required by the advertisement, were returned to the unsuccessful bidders. The Plainfield Trust Company will be required to take up and pay for the bonds next Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the office of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, New York.

The bonds are of the denomination of $500 each, dated April 1, 1914, having been dated back so that the accrued interest may be used in the payment of the interest on the bonds which will become due October 1. This was a fine bit of financeering on the part of Mayor Robert Clark, Jr. The bonds will mature $1,000 annually on the first day of April in each of the years 1918 to 1943, inclusive, and $1,000 annually on the first day of April in each of the years 1945 to 1953, inclusive, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually. They are coupon bonds and may be registered either as to principal alone or as to both principal and interest.

The sale of bonds last night brought within tn one-hundredths of the price paid at the last sale in December, when $100,000 worth of sewer collecting bonds and $50,000 worth of joint sewer bonds were sold to the State Trust Compnay, of this city, for 104.17. The borough has the right to issue $200,000 worth of collecting sewer bonds and $150,000 worth of joint sewer bonds. So far $135,000 worth of collecting bonds have been issued and sold and $80,000 worth of the joint bonds.

COST HIM TWO DOLLARS TO KNOCK DOWN TRAFFIC POST

One of the new traffic posts has already been the cause of police court action. Ludlow Frazee drove his horse into the post at Eighth street and Park avenue last night, and overturned it, putting out the lamp. Then he drove away and left the dark post lying on its side in the middle of the road. Judge DeMeza told him that he would give him a week to make good the $2 it will cost to repair the post.

PINTO AT U. S. ASTOR.

Friends of Effingham Pinto, of Eighth street, this city, prominent actor of the William A. Brady forces, and who has appeared here frequently in drama, will have an opportunity to see him in photoplay at the U. S. Astor Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, when he will portray the role of Don Jose in "The House of a Thousand Candles." Mr. Pinto's latest appearance on the legitimate stage was in the melodrama "Life," presented by Mr. Brady last season at the Manhattan Opera House, in which he gave a clever performance in the role of a society thief. Mr. Pinto has also shown marked ability in female parts, having appeared several times in such roles at performances given by the Lambs Club, of which he is a member.

SMALLEY, WILSON AND MC GEE FILE PETITIONS

Three petitions for borough offices were filed with Borough Clerk Charles M. Dolliver today, that of William L. Smalley, for Mayor, and the petitions of J. A. Wilson and Clifford McGee for Council. All three are Republicans.

Mr. Smalley seeks to succeed Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., and Messrs. Wilson and McGee, Councilmen Edwin S. Boyer and Allan Cowperthwaite.

Both Councilmanic aspirants are well known in the borough, where they have always resided. Mr. Wilson is a grandson of Colonel Wilson, and Mr. McGee's father and grandfather were both prominent in business and political affairs of the borough. Mr. McGee has already served the borough as a Councilman, having been elected to that office for a term six or eight years ago.

COMMITTEE ACCEPTS BID OF INTERNATIONAL MOTOR CO.

At a meeting of the councilmanic fire and buildings committee last night, a bid from the International Motor Company, of this city, to furnish a combination hose and chemical wagon for the West End fire house was received and a recommendation that the bid be accepted will be made at the next meeting of the Council. The bid was for $3,800.

The truck will be a three-ton affair, of 60-horse power. As the chemical tanks on the old apparatus will be used quite a saving will be made in that way.

WILL PROVIDES FOR CARE OF PET HORSE IN THIS CITY

Elizabeth, Aug. 28.—The will of Thomas O. Bell, of Westfield, who died leaving a large estate, provides that a pet horse owned by Mrs. Bell shall be maintained at the Netherwood Farm, owned by William Lindsay, in Plainfield, while the animal lives. It also provides an income for Mrs. Bell, the testator's widow, of $1,200 annually, and at her death the residue of the estate is to go to Rutgers College for the establishment of a Thomas Outwater Bell scholarship for students intending to enter the Dutch Reformed church ministry.

MRS. HENNESSY'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Hennessy, wife of Edward H. Hennessy, of Oakwood avenue, Netherwood, was held at the late residence this morning at 8:30 and later at St. Mary's church. Rev Father MacDonald conducted the service which was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The flowers were especially beautiful, many coming from relatives and out-of-town friends. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: James Donnelly, Patrick Diskin, John Hurley, Christian Warbach and James Coughlin.

HERR'S SCHOOL OPENS SEPT. 1.

The Plainfield Business College will begin its fall term Wednesday, September 1, with a large attendance. The improvement in business conditions in Plainfield and vicinity has given employment to all Herr School graduates, and the calls for office assistants exceed what this school can supply. Opportunities for young persons who will acquire now a first-class business training are most promising, and now is the best time to take a business course.

DEAD HORSE REMOVED.

The dead horse belonging to Winfield Conover, that died on the Peter Emmons place on Mountain avenue, has finally been removed and evidences of the disease of the animal are rapidly being obliterated. The horse was being pastured on the land and died from old age. It lay where it fell for several days before the borough authorities were notified of the nuisance and got busy arranging for its removal, and the stench was almost unendurable for a time.

DONATED USE OF ROOMS.

At a meeting of the Building Trades Council, last night, the body donated the use of the rooms to the newspaper men of Plainfield and vicinity when they meet to form a reporters' union on the evening of Tuesday, September 14.

BOROUGH COUNCIL ADOPTS BUDGET

Determines $41,677 As the Amount to Be Raised In 1916 By Taxation.

AN INCREASE OF $5,657

Interest On Sewer Bonds and Redemption of $2,000 Issue Responsible For the Extra Money Needed For Coming Year.

The North Plainfield Council adopted a budget for 1916 at the adjourned meeting last night, which shows the amount to be raised by taxation to be $41,677. The 1915 budget was for $36,020, making the increase for 1916 just $5,657.

The increase is due to the fact that interest on a large amount of sewer bonds will have to be met and four bonds, of the valuation of $500 each, will have to be redeemed next year. No idea of the coming tax rate could be obtained. Following are the figures:

Borough unexpended balance, $1,283.71; borough appropriation, $4,500; police, $6,912; fire, $4,300; street, $8,000; light, $5,880; water, $1,440; poor, $3,000; Board of Health, $1,000; interest on notes, $1,470; shade tree, $250; hospital, $500; contingent, $500; interest on firehouse bonds, $450; interest on joint sewerage bonds, $30,000 at 4½ per cent., $1,350, $50,000 at 5 per cent., $2,500—$3,850; collecting system interest, $100,000 at 5 per cent., $3,125; bond firehouse, one bond $500 January 1, 1916, $500; bond joint sewerage, two bonds, $500 each, April 1, 1916, $1,000; bond, collecting system, two bonds, $500 each, April 1, 1915, $1,000; total, $47,677; amount raised by licenses, $6,000; amount to be raised $41,677.

Besides voting to transfer certain moneys from one account to another, a warrant was ordered drawn for $4,958.49, that being 25 per cent. of the sum of $19,833.97, the total amount paid at the meeting of the Joint Sewerage Commission last Wednesday night. The warrant represented the borough's share of that amount.

JAIL SENTENCE FOR SILVER ANNIVERSARY PRESENT

When Sheridan Jones, colored, next appears in court for being drunk and disorderly, it will be the twenty-fifth time that he has been before a local magistrate, and he has been promised a silver anniversary present of a term in jail. For the twenty-fourth time Judge DeMeza this morning was compelled to give him a lecture, and Sheridan promised that he would keep straight, calling the court's attention to the fact that once before he had kept on the water wagon for a full year, and he could do it again. This is the second time within a week that he has been picked up by the police. He does not get boisterous, but merely seems to lose all control of his legs as soon as he takes a few drinks, and the police have to pick him up from various and assorted public places where he chooses to take a rest.

JUDGE DE MEZA SCORES MAN AS MEAN AND CONTEMPTIBLE

"Your plea of guilty has saved an exposure of your mean, contemptible, underhand methods," said Judge DeMeza to George Alexander, an Assyrian, who was arraigned before the court this morning on the charge of Charles Bicknell, a local contractor. Bicknell accused Alexander, who was nearly twice as big as the complainant, with using vile and indecent language, and with threatening his life, and John P. Owens, counsel for Alexander, promptly entered a plea of guilty, informing the court that his client had moved from Lake street, near Bicknell's home, to North Plainfield.

According to those familiar with the case, and as the result of a personal investigation made by Judge DeMeza since Wednesday, Alexander has done much to make Bicknell's home life unpleasant, the latter being a hard working man. Alexander was given a sentence of a $50 fine and sixty days in the county jail, and the sentence was suspended over his head, to be enforced the first time he speaks to Bicknell.

Following the hearing of the case a charge against Bicknell of disorderly conduct made by his wife, was called, but the woman, scenting trouble because of the lecture given Alexander, did not appear in court, and the Judge dismissed the case.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Goff, of Duer street, left today by boat for Boston, where they will spend two or three weeks with their daughter.

HERMAN SCHWED AND A. E. FORCE MANAGERS

Will Have Charge of Business Men's Team In Labor Day Game at Parker Field.

Information given out today states that A. E. Force and Herman Schwed have been delegated as managers of the business men's baseball team for the Labor Day afternoon attraction at Parker Field, and that they expect to round up an aggregation that will put it all over the medical men headed by "Doc" Anthony. Although no official line-up has as yet been given out it is understood that the members of the team will be picked from the ranks of the business men of this city and vicinity.

Already various merchants of the city have signified their intention of donating various prizes to the man who makes the least errors, the first home run, the most hits and the biggest "hit" with the spectators. Samuel Rothberg will give a derby hat to the man who first makes a home run. According to the dope handed out by the doctors Sam will be forced to part with several lids.

Perhaps some kind merchant will donate a suit of armor to the poor umpire.

FOURTH WARD REPUBLICANS ENDORSE CHARLES GRAVES

An enthusiastic meeting of Fourth ward Republicans was held in the offices of Codington & Blatz last night, when Councilman Francis J. Blatz was elected president of the ward club, and Charles L. Kling was made secretary-treasurer. The meeting was quite largely attended considering the fact that a number of people are still out of the city on vacations.

The most important action taken last night was the endorsement of Councilman Charles C. Graves for a re-election. Other matters of interest to the party in the ward were discussed and will be presented at a meeting of the City Republican Executive Committee to be held soon.

RUBIN BROTHERS' CASH REGISTER IS ATTACHED

Constables Frank Niblett and Charles Salmons served an execution on Rubin Brothers, druggists, of New Point Comfort Beach, Keansburg, Wednesday night, in the suit against the former by John Pier, of Keyport. Following an exciting argument between the proprietors and the officers, the latter attached the cash register and contents. During the mixup that followed it is claimed that the money in the register was secreted by the owner's wife. Later the officers returned to make a levy and finding the drawer empty of cash they seized the register, which will be sold at public auction to settle the claim.

ATTRACTIVE SPEAKERS WILL ADDRESS SUFFRAGE MEETING

The suffrage street meeting tonight at the postoffice corner will be addressed by four speakers, two men and two women. R. F. Nichols, of Roselle, will be one of the speakers. He is known among Suffragists for his excellent presentation of the cause and as a New Jersey man, he speaks in favor of what seems to him for the good of his own State. R. A. Claybrook, a member of the Plainfield Council, and president of the local Democratic Club, will also speak, giving briefly his reasons for believing that woman suffrage is good for the city and State.

The two women speakers are both trained sociologists. Miss Eva Ward, although now working for the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage, is an authority on labor legislation and will take up her work with the National Labor Legislation Association on October 19. Miss Harrietta N. Dill, a professor in the Indiana Woman's College, has made a survey of penal institutions in New Jersey. She worked in the Ohio suffrage campaign, but now offers her services to New Jersey, realizing that in the fight for equal political rights, the important place at this time is the State of New Jersey.

KAISER FORCED YIELDING TO U. S.

Washington Hears That War Party Had to Give In to Ruler.

U BOATS DESTROYED

Recent Bombardment at Zeebrugge, Amsterdam Hears, Was Disastrous to Naval Base—French Continue Attacks From Air.

Washington, Aug. 28—Fearing that the breaking point has been reached and that even the suggestion of another defiant atitude would cause a severance of diplomatic relations, the Kaiser compelled submission to President Wilson in the Arabic disaster, diplomatists here heard today.

The military party represented by Admiral von Tirpitz wished to uphold the sinking of the Arabic as a necessary act of war, while the chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, and the foreign minister, Herr von Jagow, sought to influence what would amount to disavowal. In the crisis which developed between the two parties, military and diplomatic, the Kaiser intervened in favor of the diplomatists.

Washington is not completely satisfied that the Lusitania incident will be amicably settled, although there is no doubt now that the Arabic tragedy will be disavowed entirely by Berlin.

It has been reported that the Lusitania matter has not yet been taken up officially, but in some quarters it is thought that the stand taken by the Kaiser and his desire to avoid a rupture with the United States may lead to a settlement of that controversy also.

The order which was issued to German submarine commanders not to sink passenger ships without visit and search and providing for the safety of passengers has been placed on file at Washington, but will not be disclosed by the United States, at the request of Germany, for military reasons.

This order was supposedly issued after the sinking of the Lusitania and naturally would give the Berlin government every opportunity to disavow the sinking of the Arabic if the commander of the submarine disobeyed instructions. But what stand will Germany take regarding the Lusitania, which was destroyed before the order was issued? Washington is asking.

It is stated on excellent authority that Germany has again informed President Wilson of her willingness to abandon her attack on pasenger ships, providing England modifies her embargo on foodstuffs.

Germany wishes President Wilson to take up this issue with England, but it is understood here that he will not act in any way until Germany disavows the Lusitania and the Arabic disasters and gives the United States information of its proposed methods of submarine warfare in the future.

Amsterdam, Aug. 28.—The Telegraf announces it has received confirmation of reports that the submarine shelter under the canal bank at Zeebrugge was badly damaged in the recent bombardment by British warships, and that some of the German submarines were destroyed.

Paris, Aug. 28.—The French war statement issued today says:

"There were some artillery combats in the course of the night around Souchez and Neuville, as well as in the region of Roye. On the plateau of Guennevieres and at Nouvron a conflict with bombs occurred. In the Argonne our artillery arrested numerous attempts by the enemy to bombard our trenches. The night was without incident on the rest of the front. Our aeroplanes bombarded the station of Chatelin, in the Argonne, during the night."

Berlin, Aug. 28 (by wireless).—An official statement issued by the Admiralty today charges that a German submarine was fired upon by a large passenger ship in the Irish Sea on August 15, though the U-boat had made no attack upon the steamer.

Today's Admiralty statement denies the assertion of the English press that the U boat bombarded the open towns of Harrington, Parton and Whitehaven, England. The English announced that on August 27 that a German U boat had been completely destroyed by an English naval aeroplane off Ostend. This also is denied. The statement saying that it is true that a U boat was attacked, but it was not hit and returned to the harbor undamaged.

THE TEMPERATURE.

WM. HAMILTON SEEKS TAX COLLECTORSHIP

However, William La Rue, Present Incumbent, Promises to Wage Campaign.

The political situation is becoming more tense in the township with the passing of each day. In the Republican ranks, William Hamilton, of South Plainfield, is opposing William B. LaRue for the nomination of collector. Mr. LaRue, who is the present incumbent of the office, has performed the duties of his office in a perfectly satisfactorily manner, it is said, and having many friends it is believed he is going to be a hard man for Mr. Hamilton to defeat.

From present indications either Mr. LaRue or Mr. Hamilton will be opposed on election day by William H. Thornton, of South Plainfield, who is generally conceded the Democratic nomination for the office of collector.

Assessor Coriell will probably receive the Republican renomination for the assessorship. Mr. Coriell's opponent on election day will probably be Charles M. Kelly, who is out for the Democratic nomination. A nomination paper which is being circulated for Mr. Kelly is receiving many signatures.

That there is discussion among borough residents about the way certain things should be done is evident from the way candidates for several public offices are springing up. Thomas Norton, a member of the Council for six years, has announced his intention of not being a candidate for re-election this fall. Albert Ribolet is now spoken of by some as his successor, and a petition is being circulated in his behalf. A petition is also being passed around for Augustus Sheelen, who has been a member of that body a like number of years, but Mr. Sheelen says that he may not be a candidate unless conditions change. The office of Mayor still needs a candidate. William Hoar the present executive, has not yet announced his intention of running, and although A. I. Nichol, at present a Councilman, is spoken of for the place, he will not come forward until the present Mayor declines the candidacy. It will have to be decided by September 7, or Fanwood may find itself without several of its public offices filled, positions which do not often go abegging.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Slocum, of Lower Martine avenue, are entertaining the Misses Brummer, of New York.

The Rev. Dr. Calvin A. Hare, of Harrisburg, Pa., who is visiting his brother, the Rev. J. Madison Hare, will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church at the 10:45 morning service tomorrow. Bible school will meet in session at 9:30, and in the evening at 7:45 the monthly missionary meeting of the Young People's Society will be conducted by Miss Marguerite Jahn.

The Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Baptist church, returned home today from Denville, where he has been for the past week in charge of the local Boy Scouts, who have just rounded out their second week of their second annual camping trip. The twenty odd boys are expected to return from their outing some time today, but may delay until Monday.

The monthly meetings of the Ladies' Missionary Society, of the Baptist church, which have been discontinued during July and August, will be resumed next month, the exact date to be announced in these columns some time next week.

Miss Harriet Reeder, of Martine avenue, left this morning on a three months' trip through the West, which will take her through the majority of the States in the Union and all of the important cities.

John Smaltz has returned to his home in Stroudsburg, Pa., after spending several days with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clifford, of King street.

Representatives of the Union County Mosquito Commission have about finished digging several thousand feet of ditches in the township and borough in an effort to make local residents as free as possible from the pest. They are greatly handicapped by reason of the system of sewer disposal, which is vested in cesspools and surface drainage. The underbrush along Green brook has been cleared away and oil spread generously about.

A committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, including Burton P. Hall, of North avenue, paid an inspection visit to the Bonnie Burn Sanatorium yesterday afternoon.

Charles Sheelen has added another item to an excellent record obtained in serving Fanwood borough as tax collector for over sixteen years by collecting every cent of taxes for the year 1914. As he expressed it, 'it was a close squeeze to keep from holding a tax sale," as the property of the one delinquent had been advertised two out of the necessary five times. After considerable persuasion Mr. Sheelen got the taxpayer to settle up yesterday, but a few days before the property was scheduled to go under the hammer.

Buyers Are Found by Advertising—Because They Are Opportunity-Hunters!

If you have something to sell—real estate, personal property of any sort—there's a buyer for it. You don't know who he is, or where he is. You'd be helpless in trying to locate him—but for the fact that he is trying to locate you!

For buyers are opportunity-seekers. And they have learned that the Plainfield Daily Press classified columns are 'the Happy Hunting Grounds' for opportunities. Thus, when your "ad" starts upon its quest it meets the man for whom it was written—also upon his quest. And that's how "results" follow classified advertising.

Health Character Happiness

Bulletin No. 8.

Rev. E. M. Evans, of Trinity Methodist Church, Des Moines, got a letter booming "Old Bob Adams" whisky. His reply should interest every intelligent man whose talents are being misused in the booze business:

"I note you pay the freight on returned empties. I would like to send you a full carload of empties if you will honor your agreement. I suppose the freight will be much cheaper on full carload lots? To be honest with you, the empties are not in first-class condition. They consist of empty men—empty of manhood, energy, ambition, prospects, self-respect, and necessaries of life—empty head, empty heart, empty soul, empty stomach. Also empty women, empty of womanhood, refinement, modesty, and hope. Will it be worth while making the return of this carload of empties? Will this carload of empties be worth the freight to you?"

These advertisements appear Wednesdays and Saturdays. Watch for them.

Tommy.—What yer going to Sunday school fer all the time? 'Tain't no use.

Willie.—Huh! I'm going to get a good place in the line to Heaven, and maybe I can sell it to somebody.

WHEN WOMEN VOTE.

Mere Man.—What are those little statues in front of the ballot boxes?

Poll Clerk.—Those are reproductions of the various candidates. A woman couldn't think of ordering anything, except from a pattern, you know.

BEEN LOOKING FOR HIM.

Stranger. — Officer, I'm — hic—an Elk, an Eagle, a Buffalo, and an Owl.

Officer.—I want you; I'm a Barnum, a Forepaugh and a Sells.

THE OFFICIAL STRAP-HOLDER.

When mother was a little girl,
So young she wore her hair in curl,
It happened that her father gave,
Each Sunday morn, his face a shave;
And when he had his lather made,
And then prepared to whet his blade,
He put the tools in Mother's lap,
And let her hold the strap.

As years went by, it may seem strange,
But Mother never seemed to change;
And when my sister was at play,
And I would take her doll away,
Or put a can on pussy's head,
Ma would invite me to the shed;
And then I knew I'd get a rap,
For Mother held the strap.

And since I've grown to be a man,
I go with Mother when I can
To shop and buy herself a gown,
Or visit friends about the town;
And when we board a crowded car
The men stay seated where they are,
And e'en recline to take a nap,
While Mother holds a strap.

HE SAW DAD.

Willis.—Great Scott, man! You don't mean to say you can't do anything with that son of yours who is reported to be doing such awful carousing at college?

Gillis (sadly).—I haven't the heart to say a word. You see, I was foolish enough to take him with me to the national convention of my lodge last summer.

DELICATESSEN ITEM.

Pigs' feet to-day!

NEIGHBORLY INFERENCE.

Stranger (to Mrs. Rooney).—What beautiful children you have, ma'am!

Mrs. Hogan (from the floor above) —Phat's thot slob sellin', Mrs. Rooney?

NEVER.

Cashier.—But you must be identified. Isn't there someone here in the bank who knows you?"

Mr. Jaggs.—'Course not. 'Spose I'd come in here drunk if there was?

THE ESSENCE OF LUXURY.

"Yes, I welcome the era of high prices—one may live so much more luxuriously."

"Just how do you make that out?"

"Why, there are so many more things that one cannot afford."

A GLEAM OF HOPE.

"I hear that Bilter's daughter eloped with his chauffeur."

"Yes, and Bilter wired his forgiveness."

"What did he do that for?"

"He said he thought now there might be a chance for him to use his car."

ALWAYS.

The Cop.—Which of these houses do you live in?

Mr. Jaggs.—Take me all along the street, lemme try ev'ry door, and the only one I can't open ish mine.

Mrs. Flint (severely).—Do you ever drink intoxicants?

Soiled Spooner (at the door).—Before replyin', maddim, permit me to ask if dat is an invitation or merely an inquiry?

HISTRIONIC.

"By some she is considered the leading emotional actress of the day."

"And she has never married, you say?"

"A little, I believe—in the amateur way."

Until September 11 the Daily Press will go to press on Saturdays at 1 o'clock.

THE SCHOOL PLANT AND RECREATION

Destined to Purify and Popularize Amusements, Says Dr. Clarence Perry.

Men will not tolerate in a public school building a performance they might witness without protest in other places, says Clarence A. Perry, in a bulletin just issued by the U. S. Bureau of Education. For this reason Dr. Perry thinks the movement to use the school plant for social and recreational purposes is destined to purify as well as popularize amusements.

"The teaching staff and other machinery of the public schools are dedicated by the people to a betterment service," says Dr. Perry, "therefore society will not permit the building erected solely for that purpose to be put to a contrary use."

Statistics gathered by Dr. Perry from forty-five leading cities in the United States show that in one month there were over 800,000 attendances upon evening functions in the public school buildings of these cities. The bulletin declares that these figures mean so many evenings spent in wholesome activity by persons, many of whom would otherwise have spent that time in less beneficial or in positively harmful pastimes. "These 800,000 instances of the influence of the school in one month, whether scattered over many persons or concentrated upon a few, indicate the tremendous force for righteousness that was extended by one month's extension work in these forty-five cities."

"The public character of all functions held in the school buildings has the effect of censoring those functions," asserts Dr. Perry. "The activity which a group heartily, publicly and unshamedly seeks, affords the kind of expression that the members need. When youths and maidens consort in the public school building in social life we may be certain that instincts of racial importance are being cherished instead of exploited."

"Unfortunately," says Dr. Perry, "a large number of young people, in the heydey of life, are devoting their ample margins of energy to passive amusements and degenerating satisfactions. What holds these young people back from profitable pastime is lack of meeting places and of leadership. Suitable meeting places and wise leadership would, for a vast majority of them, change the evenings of waste and drifting into times of upbuilding and character strengthening. The oportunity which society needs for this purpose it possesses in the vast equipment of the public school which lies idle otherwise during the period of popular leisure."

DR. MONTESSORI'S METHOD DESCRIBED

Summed Up As a "Freedom For Development of the Child."

The Montessori movement, considered by many a radical departure from traditional educational methods, is reviewed by Miss Anne E. George, in the annual report of the United States Commissioner of Education recently issued. The method is summed up as "freedom for development of the child under best conditions, disturbing as little as possible but helping by every means this development."

Dr. Montessori's particular contribution to the world, according to Miss George, has been that of applying the methods of experimental science to the study of man. The Montessori "didactic material," it is explained, tends to replace the teacher at the earliest stage of education and to make it possible for the child to accomplish his first work independently of a mature mind. "Out of such experiments and the environment that Dr. Montessori establishes," declares Miss George, "she confidently expects others to bring fresh facts, and to build up the content of scientific pedagogy through a method of research, limited by no personality, allied solely to human beings who develop in liberty."

As an instance of the crystallization of sentiment and effort in connection with the Montessori movement, Miss George describes the organization in May, 1913, at Washington, of the Montessori Educational Association, formed "to promote and develop in America the educational movement based on the principles and theories of Dr. Montessori, and to assist in the establishment and maintenance of schools for children, and schools of observation and practice conducted according to these principles." This association now numbers approximately 700 members.

The review of Miss George's is the third publication issued recently by the U. S. Bureau of Education on the Montessori system. Within the past two years the Bureau has published a bulletin on Montessori's characteristic teaching as set forth in her book (Bulletin, 1912, No. 17); and also a bulletin containing a comparison between the Montessori method and that of the kindergarten (Bulletin, 1914, No. 28).

HIGH SCHOOL SWIMMING POOL TO CLOSE SEPT. 4

The High School swimming pool will close for the summer on Saturday, September 4, remaining open one week longer than was originally intended. After the closing minor repairs and alterations will be made in preparation for its use during the school year. New doors and a vacuum cleaning system will be installed and the interior of the room largely repainted.

In spite of the cool weather during August the attendance at the pool has been very good, especially among the boys who seem to have thoroughly appreciated the opportunities offered.

The last of the weekly races for boys was contested yesterday. The result: 140 yards handicap, first, Fullerton (scratch); second, Brownlee (scratch); third, Marshall (.. seconds).

J. V. E. VANDERHOEF TAKES CHARGE OF TAX OFFICE

J. V. E. Vanderhoef, newly appointed collector and treasurer of North Plainfield, has assumed nominal charge of the office and will take full charge of moneys, etc., as soon as bonding arrangements are made.

Speaking to a reporter for the Daily Press, Mr. Vanderhoef expressed his deep appreciation of the appointment and wished to assure the public that he will execute the affairs of the office in a straightforward, business-like manner. His appointment was for about four months or until January 1, and he is already arranging to file a petition for the nomination at the primaries for the three year term for which a collector and treasurer will be elected this fall.

FAILS TO SUSTAIN CHARGE, RECORDER DISMISSES CASE

Mrs. Mary Jerolaman, of 9 Steiner place, made a non-support charge against her husband, Matthew Jerolaman, to Fred Becker, overseer of the poor for North Plainfield, which she was unable to sustain in the borough police court this morning, and Recorder Hand promptly dismissed the case. Jerolaman testified that his earnings are $8.25 a week and his employer corroborated this when questioned by Recorder Hand. Five dollars of his wages Jerolaman had been in the habit of paying his wife's mother, with whom they lived, for the board of himself, wife and child.

Jerolaman, charged that his wife and her mother spent the money for drink, and both Recorder Hand and Overseer Becker appeared to be convinced of the truth of the allegation and dropped the case at once. Jerolaman was evidently willing to provide for his family, and the borought authorities ordered all the parties out of court and advised them to settle their differences privately.

CONFEDERATE VETS HAVE BEEN INVITED

Staff Officers to Be Guests at the 49th Annual Encampment of the G. A. R.

Washington, Aug. 28—As a courtesy to the men who wore the Gray during the Civil War, the citizen's committee of Washington has decided to extend an invitation to the staff officers of the Confederate Veterans Union to attend the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic which is to be held in Washington, September 27 to October 3. This action has been taken with the full accord and approval of the officials of the Grand Army. The meeting of the blue and gray on the Gettysburg battlefield two years ago testified to the amicable relationship existing between the two organizations and the invitation to the Confederates at this time is in keeping with the spirit exhibited at Gettysburg.

In addition, invitations are being extended to the Governors of all States and members of their staffs as well as to a large number of other distinguished officials of the United States, including of course, the President, members of his cabinet and members of the Senate and House of Representatives.

General Nelson A. Miles has been selected as the grand marshal of the marching pageant which is to be held in commemoration of the grand review of fifty years ago. Secretary Garrison, of the War Department and Secretary Daniels, of the Navy Department, have designated officers to act as military and naval aides to General Miles upon this occasion.

The U. S. Grant Post, of Brooklyn has been selected as the special escort for David J. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army during the parade.

An unusual and interesting feature of the encampment week will be the "Dog Watch" of the Naval Veterans who are members of the Grand Army. The "Dog Watch" to the navy men is what the camp-fire is to the army men, but heretofore because of their much smaller numbers, the old sailors have not been conspicuous in Grand Army reunions. At the forthcoming encampment, however, they are to be given special attention.

TRAVERS, OUIMET AND EVANS APPEAR TO HAVE NATIONAL GOLF TOURNAMENT AMONG SELVES; OTHER CONTESTANTS SEEM WEAK

The golfer who climbs the watch tower and scans the horizon to find some figure that lifts itself above the common crowd of aspirants for the national amateur title in the championship at Detroit, August 28 to September 4, will be compelled to come sadly down and admit that he sees nothing new, only the same old three faces: the amateur triumvirate, Jerome D. Travers, the open champion; Francis Ouimet, the amateur champion, and Chic Evans, the western champion. It is not expected that the title will pass outside the trio.

FEES OF LAWYERS

Modern Legal Lights Would Scorn Webster's Retainers.

FORTUNES IN SINGLE CASES.

Many of the Leaders of the Bar of Today Receive For One Piece of Work Ten Times the Amount the Great Senator Made in a Year.

What is the biggest fee ever paid a lawyer?

There is nothing certain about it, but it is the opinion of some of Boston's most widely known lawyers that Robert M. Morse has received the largest fee ever paid to a Boston lawyer.

In the famous Wentworth will case of a dozen or so years ago he is reputed to have been paid $250,000, while on the opposing side Samuel J. Elder and John D. Long are generally credited with having added $100,000 each to their bank accounts.

Another big fee that almost staggers belief is one awarded by the courts of Massachusetts to Sherman L. Whipple in the Bay State Gas company receivership case, in which Mr. Whipple got $233,000, although he said it did not all go to him.

There is a tremendous difference between the fees which lawyers receive today and those which the legal lights of a generation ago were paid.

Daniel Webster is as good an illustration of this as any one, and Samuel J. Elder is authority for the statement that Webster's best year netted him only $18,000.

"I have seen Webster's books," Mr. Elder said, "and there was not a year that he earned more than $18,000, usually much less."

It has often been said that the great senator from Massachusetts did not average $10,000 a year, and yet today a man with his attainments and eminence who did not earn half a million dollars a year would have only himself to blame.

Rufus Choate, a very great lawyer in his day, practiced more than Webster.

His average receipts from 1849 to 1859, inclusive, were nearly $18,000 yearly.

The largest receipts in a single year during that period were a little more than $22,000 in 1856 and the smallest $11,000. His largest single fee was $5,000, and he had four more of the same amount. Once he had a retaining fee of $1,500. Choate was probably the equal in eloquence and learning of any lawyer living today.

Lincoln, a member of the Illinois bar, was another whose low charges have caused comment. Prior to 1840 he received two or three fees of $50 each. Trial fees were usually entered as $5. He sometimes took payment in trade.

The largest fee he ever received was $5,000 from the Illinois Central railroad, the richest corporation in his state, and he had to sue to collect that. Today he would get $50,000 or $100,000 for the same work.

Coming down to our present day, it is said that the late James B. Dill received $1,000,000 for his services in connection with the forming of the United States steel trust.

William D. Guthrie received $800,000 for his work in breaking the will of Henry B. Plant.

John E. Parsons' work in connection with the formation of the sugar trust is said to have enriched him $350,000.

Joseph H. Choate received many enormous fees. He is said to have been paid $200,000 for his argument before the United States supreme court successfully attacking the constitutionality of the income tax. His work for the United Shoe Machinery company also netted him large fees.

Samuel Untermyer has received at least one fee of three-quarters of a million dollars with the consent of both parties and with the approval of the court. Another fee of a quarter of a million dollars is also credited to him.

George W. Wickersham, Taft's attorney general, received a fee of $200,000 in 1909 as one of the attorneys who negotiated the Chicago Traction company settlement between the city and the companies.

William Nelson Cromwell is said to have made a million dollars in connection with the Panama canal business, but the truth or falsity of this statement probably never will be proved.—Boston Post.

Naval Gunners' Pay.

The chief gunners in the United States navy receive $1,400 a year; the gunner's mates of the first class, $40 per month; second class, $35; third class, $30. A seaman gunner is paid $26 per month. An electrician of the first class receives $50; second class, $40; third class, $30, while the chief electrician is paid $60 per month.

Rat Catching Paid Him.

The late John Dalton of England, a famous rat catcher, who made a fortune at the business, is supposed to have known a special process which had been in his own family for 200 years. He rode to his work in a coach and would hand the bag of rats to the coachman on leaving the place.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS LOOKING FOR CANDIDATES

The names of Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield; William de LaR. Anderson and William J. Trembath have been mentioned as possible candidates for the Assembly from Somerset county on the Republican ticket. These men stand for local option, and friends of that cause are casting about for a strong Republican to oppose Assemblyman Ogden Hammond, of Bernardsville, who will be seeking renomination, and who is said to be opposed to local option. The time for filing petitions is growing very short, however, and if a candidate is coming forward, they say he will have to do so very soon.

Some Stevenson Recollections.

Mr. Safroni-Middleton, in "Sailor and Beachcomber" makes several references to Robert Louis Stevenson, whom he saw on different occasions in Samoa. In one place he writes:

"Stevenson was one of those men with a keen face that made you feel a bit reticent until he spoke, and then you discovered a human note in the voice that put you thoroughly at your ease, and as he spoke to a German sailor he picked up my violin and started to try and play some old folk melody. * * * He seemed fond of looking over the ship's side, gazing out to sea, and up at the stars. He was very friendly with all the sailors, went into the fo'c'stle, talked to the crew and was greatly interested in ship life."

In another place he says:

"If I had seen and spoken to 'R. L. S.' without knowing who he was I should have thought he was a skipper or mate of some American or English ship. His manner was easy—in fact, almost rollicking at times."

Red and Green Lights.

It is strange how the color of a light makes it more or less visible, irrespective of his actual brilliancy. To test this place two lights of the same power—two candles of the same size will do—in two tin boxes and in each box perforate a pin hole. Cover one pin hole with green glass and one with red and place them in a perfectly dark room. To a normal person the green light will appear five times brighter when viewed obliquely than when viewed directly, but the red light behaves in the opposite way. Most people will pick up the green light when looking in some other direction and will be quite conscious of its presence, but when they turn their eyes directly toward it they will not see it at all. The faint red light, on the other hand, will not be noticed at all until looked at directly, when it appears quite bright, but the instant the eyes are turned away from it it is gone.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Lucky Thirteen.

Once there was a man who found the number 13 most lucky for himself. His name was John Hatfield, and he was a soldier in the army of William and Mary, doing guard duty at Windsor castle. One morning he was arrested on a charge of having fallen asleep at his post before midnight. The court condemned him to die in spite of—or possibly because of—the fact that he declared he had heard the great cathedral clock strike thirteen times when it tolled off the hour of midnight. After the death sentence had been passed a score of persons came forward with the statement that on the night in question the clock had actually blundered in its count, including the single stroke for the quarter hour with its hour stroke. It was reported to the king, upon investigation, that the striking apparatus was weak, and John Hatfield was promptly pardoned.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LIST NOT ADVERTISED.

Owing to the illness and death of former Collector George F. Brown, the list of delinquent taxpayers of North Plainfield for the year 1913 was not advertised, beginning in July, as was intended. One of the first duties of the new collector, J. V. E. Vanderhoef, will be to get this list in shape for advertising next Wednesday. Owing to the delay in advertising, many people were able to arrange to pay their delinquent taxes and thus saved the added expense of the advertisement.

WAGES INCREASED.

New York, Aug. 28.—The strike at the plant of the General Chemical Company is ended, an increase in wages having been granted the 900 men who quit Monday. The two hundred men who walked out at the Warner sugar refinery in Edgewater have also returned to work with a slight wage advance.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE.

Harry B. Stedman, Jr., has secured a position with the Herr School, of this city. He is the local representative of the institution, succeeding Hugh B. Sweeney, who held the position for many years. Mr. Sweeney is at present a clerk to the Board of Education at the Plainfield High School.

HELEN PETTREETE.

The funeral of Helen Pettreete, the sixth months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Perrette, of Hunter avenue, Scotch Plains, who died last night, will be held from the home of the parents this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will take place in St. Mary's cemetery.

MINERS DISOBEY LEADERS.

London, Aug. 28.—Disobeying the orders of their leaders, the 30,000 miners on strike in South Wales and Monmouthshire, refused to return to work today. Ten thousand more men also quit.

BUSINESS SHOWS AN IMPROVEMENT

Building Inspector Grants Six Permits During the Week.

VAL. ESTIMATE $54,500

Largest Contract Is That of the K. & G. (Inc.) For Six Structures to Be Built at Arlington Avenue and Randolph Road.

Business was better at the department of buildings in Plainfield this week as is shown by the number of permits issued and the estimated valuation of the work specified. Six permits were issued by Building Inspector T. O. Doane, representing an estimated outlay of $54,500. The largest job noted was that of the K. & G., Inc., for six structures to be built at Arlington avenue and Randolph road, at a cost of $50,000, mention of which was made on this page of the Daily Press last week.

Two of the permits were for the erection of dwellings, one was for combination stores and dwellings, one was for an alteration, one for a frame storage shed and one for a brick store. Altogether fourteen permits have been issued by the building department this month, including those issued this week. With one exception, all this week's permits were for work to be done in the Third ward. The permits, by wards, follow:

THIRD WARD.

Mrs. Rachel Kenyon, of 1,155 South Second street, was granted a permit for the erection of a storage building on the rear of the lot on which her residence is located, South Second street, near Clinton avenue. The building will be of frame construction, 17x28 feet in dimensions, one story in height, and will cost $250. H. Kenyon is named in the application as the contractor.

On Williver street, fifty feet east of Leslie avenue, Cornelius Wands, of 558 West Fifth street, will erect four buildings, two on the front of the lot and two on the rear. All will be single-family dwellings. The two structures to go up on the front of the lot will be 18x33 feet in dimensions, one story high, and will cost $1,200. The two to be built on the rear of the lot will be 12x20 feet in dimensions, also one story high, and will cost $200. All will be of frame construction. The owner is given as the contractor for all four structures.

David Steinman, of 314 Plainfield avenue, was granted a permit for the alteration of a barn at 315 Plainfield avenue. The alterations will be to the rear of the present building and will cost about $350. The owner is given as the contractor.

The permit issued to the K. & G., Inc., of 1,400 West Front street, calls for the erection of six buildings, and represents a total estimated cost of $50,000. The location is given as 1,094 to 1,098 Arlington avenue. The building to go up on the corner will be 29x65 feet in dimensions, two stories high, and will contain three stores on the ground floor and apartments for two families above. The other five will contain one store on the ground floor and a single flat above. Emanuel Kapelsohn is the architect, and the Anchor Construction Company, of Newark, has the general contract.

FOURTH WARD.

Samuel Schwartz, of 1,031 Arlington avenue, was granted a permit for the erection of a building at 13 and 15 Washington avenue to cost $2,500. The building will be 21x35 feet in dimensions one story high, of brick construction. It will be used as a milk depot. W. H. Clum is given as the architect.

FIRST STORY COMPLETED.

The first story of the Christian Glockler building, West Front and Somerset streets, is up and the building begins to show what the finished structure will look like. The pressed brick walls on the Somerset street side extends only a little more than half way to the front, giving plenty of room for expensive plate glass show windows across the Front street side and nearly half way up Somerset street. The metal cornice sets off the building to perfection.

TO OPEN PAVILION BIDS.

At a special meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Dunellen, to be held next Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Schenck, of that thorough, bids for the erection of a permanent pavilion in Washington Park, Dunellen, will be opened. All bids must be in the hands of the committee, of which Mrs. L. Clawson is chairman, not later than 5 o'clock on that day.

TO ADD BATHROOM.

J. L. Dolliver, of Summit avenue, will make improvements to his residence. Plans are out calling for the installation of a bathroom.

AUGUST WAS THE BANNER MONTH

Construction Work Will Exceed In Volume That For All New York Boros But One.

VALUE HAS INCREASED

Heavy Damages to Roads By Rain Has Resulted In a Big Demand For Cement—Material Prices Show Advance.

New York, Aug. 28—As far as the metropolitan district is concerned projected August construction work will exceed in volume that for all the borough of New York but one, when compared with July or June, and will about equal that for May, which was the banner month of the year. The backward borough is Queens, where the value has slightly increased at the expense of volume. Essex and Hudson lead the East Jersey counties in demand for basic materials. Dealers there say there is still a dearth of specification for finishing materials, however, indicating an increasing amount of municipal and county construction taking large quantities of common brick, Portland cement and wire concrete reinforcement.

Heavy damage to roads by rains this year has brought forth large inquiries for Portland cement. In Union county especially a considerable amount of roadway repair work is being done with Portland cement, both of a temporary and permanent character. Rains have, however, interfered with continuous building construction this year so that the drain upon the capacity of some of the cement plants has eased somewhat permitting at least one plant to close for needed repairs. This was a revival of the rumor in the trade that this plant found it a good opportunity to improve its equipment in line with other mills reported to be in negotiation with the Hager interests forming the country-wide chain of cement manufacturing plants, but officers of the Alpha Company explained the shut-down as being merely a matter of excess supply following the falling off in recent building work.

This company's action is said to reflect the future movement of prices. It was held by some to show that manufacturers are tired of selling their cement on meagre margins of profit and were planning to lay aside a reserve in anticipation of higher prices and better profits when the increasing inquiry for foreign shipments shall have developed into actual orders.

Since the first of April there have been inquiries of American cement. About 5,000,000 barrels have been contracted for, carrying deliveries well into the first quarter of 1916. The trade believes that sooner or later this demand will be considerably increased and if this buying movement develops the expected dollar mill base for domestic Portland cement in the Lehigh district will have become a fact. To this end some manufacturers are laying up a reserve for the first time so far this year.

Simultaneously dealers have been inquiring about deliveries in the last of the fourth quarter and have discovered that the price mastery has passed from them to the manufacturers. Current quotations covering 30-day deliveries range from $1.48 to $1.58 with $1.52 a barrel wholesale, practically the basic level for New York dealers.

Structural steel prices are $1.46 to $1.51 base level F. O. B. cars, New York, for beams and channels up to and including 15 inches. Common Hudson brick is now quoted by manufacturers' agents at $5.50 to $5.75, although some are selling at $5.87½ and $6. Twenty-seven barge loads came in since last Thursday of which twenty-five were sold up to Wednesday, showing that shipments are about equal to demand, which gives the seller a little advantage, so that prices are stiffer. If shipments are still held down the trade expects a $6 level within another fortnight. On Monday there were only three barges left in the market, which shows how closely the supply is following the demand.

Building money in New York is easier for good projects. Conveyances have become more numerous, showing that building improvements are being projected in larger volume, and plan filings show some tendency toward speculative construction, especially in multi-tenanted structures. This is considered to be a pretty reliable indication that interest rates are getting nearer within reach of the building investor of moderate means.

The best position now open to one of your ability and experience will be secured by a want advertiser.

BUILDING CONTRACTS FILED.

The following building contracts have been filed at Elizabeth:

John A. Josephson with Edward S. Reeves, entire work new building, Central avenue, Rahway, $3,980.

Joseph H. Manthome with Victor Renberg, entire work new building, Florence avenue, Westfield, $3,067.

Gustave J. Schmalling with Thomas R. Evans, carpenter work, new building, New Church street, Rahway, $2,325.

Sard E. Levy et ux. with George K. Levy, carpenter work, new building, Chestnut street, Roselle, $2,800.

Leah Welchek with Isidor Bass, carpenter and mason work, new building, Roselle, $3,500.

Alma B. Timms with Emil Lecureux, entire work new building, Rutherford street, Rahway, $2,100.

ANILINE CO. INCORPORATED.

Carl Marx, of Dunellen, is one of the incorporators of the Middlesex Aniline Company, which has just been incorporated in the office of the Secretary of State, to manufacture and deal in chemicals and dyes, principally aniline oils, acids and similar products. The concern may soon start the erection of a factory building somewhere in the vicinity of this city. The company has an authorized capital stock of $25,000.

BOROUGH SCHOOL MEETING.

The final meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education will be held inthe Somerset School building Monday night. It will probably be a busy session, as there is considerable business to be transacted preparatory to the opening of the public school and a custodian of the school funds will have to be selected to succeed the late George F. Brown.

OBTAIN PERMIT.

Samuel Schwartz has obtained a permit from the Plainfield building department for the construction of a brick building at 13-15 Washington avenue to be used as a milk depot. The building will be 21x35 feet in dimensions, one story high and will cost $2,500.

DUNELLEN DEVELOPMENT.

Contractor Raymond Whitford, of Dunellen, has bought several lots on the Equator Park tract, and will build a number of houses this fall and winter. Mr. Whitford's holdings lie along Sanford avenue.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

"Marse Covington," with a star cast to portray some of the finest characters ever seen in animated photography, will be the chief attraction this afternoon and evening at the U. S. Astor Theatre. This superb film relates a story that is bound to interest every lover of the dramatic, the artistic and the natural in photoplay and contains enough humorous incident to cause laughter at frequent intervals. In addition to "Marse Covington," there will be the usual program of star features presented with the artistry for which U. S. showmanship is noted.

The film feature Monday and Tuesday will be "The House of a Thousand Candles," with Harry Mestayer and Grace Darland in the principal roles. This picture is adapted from the stage play of the same title that scored a success in New York, and was seen in this city many years ago. It is replete with laugh provoking situations and dramatic climaxes and affords excellent summer entertainment.

Next Friday, Lois Meredith will appear with an all-star cast of the Lasky Stock Company, in "The Woman," based on the political drama of the same name which ran for many weeks at the Belasco Theatre, New York. "The Woman" lifts the curtain on political life at Washington and many of the scenes were photographed in the Government buildings. The action is swift throughout and the plot keeps the auditor interested until the final scene.

Next Wednesday, Miss Meredith will be seen in a comedy drama entitled "Help Wanted," also based on a dramatic success of two seasons ago. On Saturday, William Faversham, always a big favorite in Plainfield, will appear in the Metro production, "The Right of Way."

You May Find a Worker Trained and Fit to do Your Work.

A worker whose salary you will voluntarily raise in a short time!

"Getting along" with half-competent help, in home, office, store or factory, is a poor plan—a poor business policy.

The quest for the Competent Worker is important enough to justify a real campaign of classified advertising in the Plainfield Daily Press—although it does not often require a very long campaign.

DE PALMA ENTERS FAIR AUTO CONTEST

Most Popular of American Drivers to Compete on Track at Trenton Exposition.

Ralph De Palma, the most popular race driver in America, who averaged nearly ninety miles an hour for the 500 mile contest he won at Indianapolis last May, has entered the competition to be held this year at the Trenton Fair. The Fair will be continued from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1, and the last day, Oct. 1, will be devoted to one of the most exciting cards that have ever been arranged for an exposition.

Famous pilots are to guide their cars around the dirt track in their attempt to take the prizes that are offered, and a day of thrilling events is certain.

Jack LeCain, who met with an accident last year, will be back again. He is counting on winning this season.

Assurances have also been received from the following that they will try to take down the premiums:

Dickinson of Newark, Duray of Somerville, with a special Ford; Merchiot, with a Stutz; Theobald, in a Mercedes; Rollins, in a National; Ira Vail, with a Mulford Special; James A. Benedict, with an Isotta; Percy M. Lambert, with a Stutz, and R. G. Jackson, in a Correja.

The starter will be Fred Wagner, who has gained fame for his ability to handle the great track events.

Special precautions will be taken to protect the public from accidents, and a notable day is promised.

RUNNING RACE FOR GENTLEMEN RIDERS

Novelty Added to Program to Be Given at Trenton Fair. Daily Contests.

In addition to the regular running races at Trenton Fair from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1 this year, a novelty will be introduced in a contest for gentlemen riders. This event is expected to attract some of the most prominent riders in the east, as prizes will be offered to the winners.

The great sport of witnessing head and head finishes between thoroughbred running horses has been one of the attractions at Trenton Fair for years. Special attention, it is stated, will be given the feature this season.

Three running races are to be on the program each day excepting Friday, when the track will be given over to automobiles exclusively.

Purses of sufficient size to attract wide attention have been placed. Stables that campaign over the Metropolitan tracks enter at Trenton, and many of the runners which have been at the Havre de Grace and other Maryland tracks during the early fall also compete.

The running at Trenton is conducted under the rules of the Jockey club, and competent officials act as judges. A regulation barrier is used for starting, the same as on the metropolitan tracks, instead of the ordinary flag adopted at most fairs.

MOTION PICTURES TO BE GIVEN FREE

State Department of Health to Have Public Display at Trenton Fair—Forestry Show.

For the entertainment and instruction of the public different state departments will have exhibits at Trenton Fair, which lasts from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1.

The state department of health will give a free display of motion pictures on the grounds to instruct the public on means of safeguarding themselves from disease. An exhibit will also be arranged to show visitors how the spread of tuberculosis can be checked.

Successful results gained in the past few seasons from an educational display on the Fair grounds has led the department of conservation and development to further enlarge its work there. The protection and development of the New Jersey forests and the various forest products New Jersey can produce will be shown. There will also be on hand a collection of tools used in fire fighting and a miniature forest showing the effectiveness of fire lines in stopping fires.

The state experiment station will have prize products arranged to stimulate interest among the agriculturists, and representatives will be on hand to answer questions on improved methods of farming.

Monday For Children.

Children's free day at the Trenton Fair will be Monday, Sept. 27. Ladies' day will be Tuesday, Sept. 28, and special price tickets have been issued for the latter date.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, SATURDAY, AUGUST 28, 1915.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Dr. Alfred F. Van Horn, school physician in Plainfield.

MEDICAL INSPECTION IN THE PLAINFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The reasons for having Medical Inspection in the Public Schools are:

First. That contagious diseases may be recognized and stamped out before a whole class or school has been infected.

Second. That physical defects that handicap and retard the pupils in their school work may be discovered and recommendations made to the parents or guardians to have these defects corrected.

Third. That the retardation which is wholly due to lack or mental efficiency may be recognized, and the pupils thus affected be placed in special classes and given work that they are capable of doing.

The methods of doing the work of medical inspection are as follows: During the school year every pupil is carefully examined to ascertain the presence of defective vision or hearing, enlarged tonsils, adenoids, or other diseases or defects of the eyes, ears, nose and throat, diseases of the heart or lungs or any other condition that may handicap them or make them a menace to other members of the school.

If a pupil is found having any of the above-mentioned diseases or defects a notice is sent to the parents or guardian of such child stating the nature of the trouble and advising them to consult their famliy physician or a specialist at once that these conditions may be remedied. A list of these pupils is taken by the school nurse and she visits the homes to explain the necessity of paying attention to the notices that have been sent by the medical inspector. If those having charge of these cases are unable to pay a physician for the care and treatment of these children the nurse will, if so requested, accompany the child to the clinics at the hospital, where they can receive free treatment.

If a case of contagious disease is reported in any member of a class the other members of that class are examined daily until all danger of contagion is past. If the disease should be diphtheria and a second case appears in the same class cultures are taken from the throats of every other member of the class and examined by the pathologist of the Board of Health, and if diphtheria germs are found in any culture that child is excluded from school until such time as cultures from his throat show that there are no germs present. If any pupil shows the least sign of having contracted the contagious disease he or she is immediately excluded from school, and not allowed to return until it is shown whether or not the disease is of a contagious nature. After a child has recovered from a contagious disease he is not allowed to return to school until he has obtained a certificate from the medical inspector that he is in no danger of communicating the disease to others.

If pupils are found that continue to fall behind in their work they are repeatedly examined and if no physical defect or disease is present they are placed in the "opportunity classes" where they are given work that is suited to their development.

Before any of the pupils are permitted to play basketball, baseball, football or take part in any athletic contest they are specially examined as to the condition of heart and lungs and if any defect is found in either of these organs the pupil is not allowed to participate in any of these sports until such conditions have been relieved.

In addition to the medical inspector our schools have two dental inspectors who devote their entire attention to the pupils' teeth, recommending treatment when necessary and instructing the children in the proper care of these important organs standing in the gateway of the body.

As the benefits to be derived from the care of the children, of school age, are better understood and there is greater cooperation on the part of the parents with the department of school hygiene, we find that the number of children with uncorrected remediable defects is rapidly decreasing and that the general improvement, in physical conditions, is just as rapidly increasing.

Off Again On Again

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN

The Middle Path

Bill used to chase the girls a lot,
And didn't worry if or not
This thing or that was right and proper—
The folks all said he'd come a cropper.

John frowned upon Bill's awful ways,
And gave his night times and his days
To pious thoughts that were ascetic—
Bill's capers were, to him, emetic!

What of them now? You'd never guess.
Bill's life did not turn out a mess.
He wed a girl who gave him six
(Of which Bill's proud) good, lively chicks.

While John, who posed as ultra-saintly,
Who scolded Bill—and none too faintly—
That sanctimonious, slushy mut
Turned out to be a free-love nut!

Half-way, my lad, 'twixt Bill and John,

Editor—What's there in this row Bigwigg the scientist is making about your misquoting him?

Young Reporter—Him kicking? Well, I like his nerve! When he talked to me he seemed so absent-minded that what he said didn't impress me as being worthy of him. So, just to save him from his own carelessness, I fixed up a nice lot of things and credited him with 'em. And in spite of that, he kicks!

High Cost Of Leaving

A careful examination of the proceedings of the United States Supreme Court (or of any other court paid by the public) would reveal that the larger part of their duties is adjournment from one date to another. Often they make two adjournments of seven days each, in a fortnight. If day-laborers could be paid for leaving their job, when would any of the world's necessary work get done?

Houses

Houses are of every kind, most of which are ugly.

People who show only ordinary ability in other lines can go to work off-hand and build houses that contain so much genuine and original ugliness that you are impressed, in spite of yourself.

Many a boy with some architectural instinct and a touch of the innately aesthetic is cheered on in life by the sweet assurance that there is no place like home.

A Deep Quandary

The small son of Chaplain Kiplinger of the Michigan City, Ind., reformatory was with his proud parents recently at Elyria, O. While on the station platform waiting for the train, a stranger led past a little child in pink, pajamaesque rompers and long curls.

The Chaplain's son looked intently at the other child and asked:

"Father, is that a girl in pants or a boy in curls?"

And now Mehitable writes back and tells us we think we're smart, and doesn't explain her peeve.

HEALTH TALKS

by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Snap Diagnosis

A LADY consulted a physician or two about her ill health. The first physician, for some reason or other, measured her blood pressure, examined her heart, and tested the urine. He then informed her that she had a low-grade nephritis. He suggested certain precautions of diet, and prescribed some simple medication.

However, the lady soon tired of the treatment. She visited another physician. He examined her and informed her there was nothing wrong with her kidneys or heart; that she was just full of "toxins." Whereat she waxed wroth at physician No. 1, lost faith in the whole system of modern healing, and wrote us her troubles.

Of course we know as much about the lady's health or ill health as we know about the flora and fauna of the Neocene Age. But we can nevertheless point a little sermon in her experience.

The first physician, at any rate, endeavored to substantiate his opinion by cold scientific corroboration. Evidently he didn't divine what ailed her; he just surmised, and then carried out the tests necessary to confirm his tentative idea. But physician No. 2 was apparently more confident of his own second-sight, for he "pronounced" his near-diagnosis without bothering his head about the scientific tests. He could tell by divination just what didn't ail the patient.

That the second physician happened to be an osteopathic physician doesn't matter in the least; a doctor's pathy is of small moment in the question of diagnosis. Had he been a homeopath or an eclectic or a regular so-called allopath (a term which no licensing board recognizes), the fault would have been equally bad.

There are still some people, good souls enough, but not very circumspect, who imagine a physician can divine a diagnosis without exerting himself to any extent; and so he can, perchance. But as a general rule divination is a very disappointing method of determining what is the matter. It is no longer taught in any of the schools. The snap diagnosis, so termed, because it is a snap to make one—if the patient is one of the good souls above mentioned—is nowadays mainly employed by the London or Paris crook who reads your fortune from a lock of your hair and ten cents.

Rheum It Isn't

Why don't you give us some talks about rheumatism?—inquires Mrs. H. C. C. So many people have it in one form or another.

Answer—They have it in mind. They call any old trouble in or near the joints rheumatiz. We prefer to say rheum it isn't. Suggestions will be gladly mailed on receipt of stamped self-addressed envelope.

POLITENESS

POLITENESS is the lubricant which enables people to crowd past each other without friction. It was invented, when men were still savages, to cut down the death rate. People did not understand each other in those days and used to bash in the heads of strangers who jostled them, in an endeavor to find out what their intentions were. Later the apology, the amende honorable, the "After you, my dear sir," and many other useful forms of politeness were invented and warfare was cut down 75 per cent.

Politeness has now been developed into so fine an art that some people can get along entirely on politeness without the aid of any manners at all. But politeness still remains the language of strangers. The more intimately we become acquainted with a man the less polite we are to him. When two men salute each other as scoundrels and punch each other in the neck with fond smiles they are very close friends indeed and do not need to resort to politeness in their dealings at any time.

When people belong to the same family they understand each other very well and can not only lay aside all politeness but almost all consideration for each other. They may reveal their true selves without any patent leather conversation as disguise and can be as disagreeable as they please, knowing that the family tie can stand the strain and that there will probably be no murder in consequence. Whenever we hear two people talking to each other with comprehensive rudeness and no disorderly results, we may be sure that they are relatives and love each other so dearly that politeness would be as out of place with them as dress suits at breakfast.

Nations are ten times as polite as individuals because they only have one-tenth as much faith in each other. No mere man could use the kind words and gentle conversation with which the powers of Europe conducted the preliminaries of the big massacre last summer. Because of this fact we should not put too much faith in politeness. It is pleasant to the ear, but a rough tongued friend with a loving heart is worth a thousand well-bred conversationalists with beautiful manners and prospectuses for get-rich-quick companies in their pockets.

People used to bash in the heads of strangers who jostled them

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND

by E. R. BRANSON

A Mechanic's Lien

Q. I beg to inquire what is meant by a "mechanic's lien." Is this the same thing as a "materialman's lien"? What is the law governing this subject?

A. A mechanic's lien is a lien or legal claim which the law allows with respect to buildings and other improvements upon real estate and with respect to the land upon which such buildings or improvements are situated. Strictly speaking, a materialman's lien is a legal claim or charge against the property as the result of materials furnished. The general term "mechanic's lien" is ordinarily employed to denote all liens of this character, including a materialman's lien and a laborer's lien. The law governing this subject derives its force from legislative enactments in the various states. Although these statutes are more or less similar, the law of the state in which the work is done and the lien is claimed must be consulted and its provisions must be complied with in order to enforce a claim of this character.

Must Have Fire Escapes

Q. Is the owner of a tenement building required by the law to equip it with fire escapes?

A. Laws have been passed in many states requiring the owners of certain buildings, such as factories and tenements, to provide adequate fire escapes.

Meaning Of a "Deposition"

Q. I have often wanted to know the meaning of the word "deposition," so frequently found in reports of court proceedings. Will you kindly tell me?

A. The word "deposition" is used to denote all written evidence verified by oath. In a more restricted sense, it is the written evidence given by a witness in answer to specific questions.

Death Of The Principal

Q. Where a man appoints another as his agent, what will be the legal effect where the man so appointing dies a short time afterward?

A. The agent's authority is terminated.

Signature On Will

Q. Will you please inform me if, in the making of a will, it is necessary to have the signature of a justice of the peace, besides those of three witnesses? Also, is it legal to have man and wife as witnesses?

A. In your state (Connecticut), the statute provides that the will must be in writing and must be signed by the testator (the person making the will). It must be attested by three witnesses, each of them signing his name in the presence of the testator. There is no requirement that a justice of the peace must sign. With reference to the second part of your question, the statute provides further that every devise or bequest (that is, gift of real estate or of personal property) to a subscribing witness, or to the husband or wife of such witness, will be void unless the will is otherwise legally attested or unless the devisee or legatee (the person to whom such real estate or such personal property is given) is an heir of the testator, and the statute says that "such person shall be admitted as a witness in the same manner as if such devise or bequest had not been given."

Payment Of Stockholder

Q. In the payment of dividends by a corporation, kindly advise me whether the directors have any right to discriminate against a stockholder with reference to the time of payment?

A. Stockholders belonging to the same class should receive the same pro rata dividends from the profits. Discrimination is not permissible, either as to the method or time of payment.

Insanity Revokes Authority

Q. Some time ago, I appointed a man as my agent. Later on, this man became insane. Please advise me what effect this fact will have upon our relations?

A. The insanity of the agent will operate as a revocation of his authority.

Legal Interest

Q. What is "legal interest"?

A. The term is applied to the rate of interest fixed by law in cases where the parties have failed to specify the rate. In a larger meaning, it is such interest as is permitted and recognized by the law.

The Best Of Everything Is Good Enough For The Child

By WOODS HUTCHINSON, A.M., M.D.

HIS world is a nursery, not merely for immortal souls, but for flesh and blood babies. Growth is its business, growth the only thing that it insists upon. After we have done our own growing, our chief excuse for further existence is to make our babies grow. Grown-ups could get along in tree-tops and in caves, but for the shelter of the child, houses had to be invented. There was only one room in the primitive house and that was the nursery. And the modern one ought to be run on the same plan. Cities, on the other hand, were made to huddle in for shelter against enemies, or to do business in. Now the most urgent demand of thoughtful lovers of their kind is that they should be made places to grow children in. And the community would profit just as much by such a change as the children would. Any place which is not fit to rear a child in, is not fit for a man or a woman to live in.

The more thoughtfully we consider our children, the more deeply we will benefit ourselves. That one phrase, "and a little child shall lead them," sums up the millennium. The child not only has a right to the best that is in us, but he will bring out the best that is in us. The race has made us what we are—the child is the embodiment of the race, and the debt that we owe to the race, we pay to him. The highest debt, the most sacred obligation that any community owes is to its children. If business interests must suffer in order that the child may be provided with pure food, then they must suffer. If the growth of our cities will be interfered with by insistence upon playgrounds and breathing spaces and well-lighted houses and homes, then it must be interfered with. No matter what tax is necessary upon property to provide schoolhouses and parks and playgrounds, and a fair start in life for every child, it must bear it.

After all, these things are but the small dust of the balance compared with the child. It was the child in fact, and his care, that started us upward from savagery and has kept us from relapsing back into it ever since. Only in educating and training and improving its children can the race educate and train itself. All honor to old age and to authority, but it is the honor paid the child and the mother that stamps the rank of a civilization! Not only what the race will be in the next generation, but what it is in the present, depends upon its treatment of its children. Run your house in the interests of your children, run your business and see that everybody else runs his business in the interests of your children. Run your politics and your government in the interests of your children, and the world will become a Utopia within three generations. No sacrifice is too great to make, no sum too large to demand for the proper and intelligent care of children. That class of investments will return fifty per cent. every year, good or bad.

The supreme test of a civilization is the sort of men and women it breeds, and the time to influence men and women for better or for worse is in childhood. It costs far more to raise and educate a child than it used to; but if we are getting a better child for our money, it is money well spent. What else are we here for?

And we must spend more than money on our children—we must spend ourselves and our time. It is not enough simply to provide a good house and plenty of food and substantial clothing.

It is a particularly good thing for a child to have two parents, one of each kind. We fathers are far too apt to echo piously the Hindoo proverb: "God could not be everywhere, so He made mothers," and consider that we have done our duty when we have provided a place and means for our wives to take care of our children. Not only do we regard it as a waste of time to take an hour or a half day from our Sacred Business and devote it to the personal care of our children, but we have even come to feel that it is something undignified, almost unmanly, and a fair game for ridicule to play nursemaid to our own children in public.

By common consent we place the defense of our country and the call of her needs above all personal and financial interests, no matter how weighty and grave. And we ought equally to recognize our duty to the race as embodied in our children, as taking precedence over anything and everything else. Of course we work and slave largely that we may be able to give certain advantages, and a good start to our children. But in so doing we may be easily robbing them of things which are far more valuable to them than anything that can be bought with money. We should plan our engagements so as to devote a part of every day and a day or more out of every week to our children as regularly and as religiously as we do to our business, our committees, or our clubs. If this should involve a getting together and recasting or planning of the hours of work and of the days of work in the week, so much the better. It would profit business and the business man, work and the worker, almost as much as it would the child. A child has just as much right to and need of his father's companionship and help and influence, as his mother's.

The Monkeys Planned.

Daddy's Bedtime Story— How the Zebra Obtained His Stripes.

"THERE is in the jungles of Africa," daddy told his children, "a very beautiful animal that is called the zebra. He is something like a horse and has a stiff and bristly mane and tail, and his tail is something like a switching brush. You kiddies have seen him in the menagerie, and I'm sure you remember that he is adorned with beautiful stripes that go all around his body as hoops go around a barrel.

"I think I will tell you kiddies tonight a make believe story about how that zebra got his stripes."

"Oh, that will be fun, daddy," agreed the children as they settled themselves upon daddy's knees for the story.

"Well," said their father, screwing up his forehead the better to think of his make believe bedtime story, "in the first place, of course, the zebra hadn't any stripes. He had a dark colored coat, the same as he has now, but there were no yellow stripes running around it, and he pranced through the jungles and kicked up his heels and enjoyed life just like a horse that is out of the stable and is having a lot of fun out in the pasture.

"Now, in that zebra's wanderings around the jungle he chanced to pass a colony of young and mischievous monkeys, those little imps that are always making trouble for the other animals, and for no reason at all except for the mischief in their hearts these monkeys picked on the zebra and said the naughtiest things to him you ever heard, for you have noticed, my dears, in listening to monkey chatter at the menagerie that monkeys have a language all their own, and it's rather cross sometimes.

"At last one day, while the zebra was passing the tree where these monkeys sat up in the branches, they grew so impudent that he was just wild.

"He chased them, but they got away. Then the monkeys planned to secure revenge. They saw their big cousin, the gorilla. He beat upon his great chest and promised them the revenge they wished.

"He caught the zebra asleep one day and tied him fast with vines. Then he called the monkeys, and they came trooping. They got some paint from a paint tree—for I think there must have been paint trees in those days—and they used the end of the zebra's tail for a brush, and they painted all those funny stripes around the zebra that you find today.

"When the grinning gorilla undid the vines and let the zebra up he was very much ashamed at first and cried. But he soon grew to it and, in fact, was rather proud of himself, as he considered that he was prettier that way. And I think he is. Anyway, all the zebras since that day have had stripes."

Glimpses of Married Life

"Hurrah for the leader who successfully raided the camp of the Philistines and put them to flight. To you, mother, belongs the praise for our victory. I have just returned from the meeting of the stockholders of the Oil Development Company at Kansas City, and you will rejoice that the oily manager so lubricated himself that we slipped him out of office. The new incumbent seems honest, and all stockholders are to have the privilege of looking over the books at any time.

"I stopped off at Casey on my way back, and the well is producing a good flow of oil. I was glad I had not jumped out of the car window and offered my shares at par, as I was minded to do the night we came from the city together and the excitement was so high. It looks now as though we should have a good thing out of this, and father and I realize that we owe it to your initiative.

"You probably have noticed the card to the farmers in the county paper giving the price offered for beets. One wing of the factory is running. When the thing is completed, they estimate twelve hundred men will be employed. That should make business good here. Janes is a good sort and everybody likes him. If you have any beets, send them on. The old lady pushed her glasses up on the top of her head and meditatively rubbed the side of her nose with her forefinger.

"I'm glad they struck oil," he said.

"I believe I'll inquire among the neighbors and if we can make out a car load I'll ship them and go down and see the factory. We can find out then whether it will pay to put in a big acreage of them next year."

"Nothing will pay better than wheat with prices what they are now," announced the thrifty housewife.

"Yes, but it's better to have your eggs in more than one basket." He brought the front legs of the chair to the floor and placing his hands on his knees slowly rose. Going over to the telephone, he called up his neighbors one after another to consult with them on the beet proposition, with the result that at the end of the week a car was ready to be shipped to Fairport.

Household Hints

SIMPLE HOME REMEDIES

For Tired, Aching, Sweating Feet—Sometimes the bottoms of feet and between toes become tender and sore. Each night, before retiring, soak feet in hot water for at least five minutes, using plenty of pure white soap. Dry them carefully; then dust with fuller's earth; hold the toes apart and see that fuller's earth gets into every little crevice. In the morning take a soft cloth, wipe carefully between toes and dust with fuller's earth again. Then dress your feet as usual, only white hose are best. The relief will be instant. Get five cents' worth of fuller's earth at the drug store, empty a portion into any old clean white material, gather up edges and tie.

For Removing Warts—Take a potato, scrape it and make a poultice; tie it on the wart at bedtime. Do this twice a week for three or four weeks and the wart will disappear and leave no scar.

THE TABLE.

Cottage Pudding—One-half cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup milk, one egg, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla, flour to stiffen. Bake in a moderate oven. The cake can be cold served with the following hot sauce: One heaping tablespoon cornstarch, one tablespoon butter, one cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, one pint water. Put on fire and let it thicken, but be careful it does not scorch.

Cabbage Salad—Cut cabbage like for slaw, salt to taste and mix it thoroughly with salad dressing. If there is any lettuce handy a few leaves dropped among it will give it a better appearance. Serve on lettuce leaves and slice hard-boiled eggs on top.

Mary's Cocoanut Cake—Six eggs (whites), two cups powdered sugar, three-fourths cup butter, one cup sweet milk, three cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon lemon or vanilla extract. Bake this as a loaf cake and the next day cut it in four layers. Grate two cocoanuts and put in icing. Spread each layer, top and the sides, with plenty of icing. Can also be baked as a layer cake; makes four layers.

Silver and Gold Custard—One quart milk, yolks of four eggs, whites beaten separately, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-quarter cupful sugar, a little salt. Heat a quart of milk in a double boiler. Separate the yolks and whites of four eggs. For the silver custard part: With the egg whites put a quarter of a cupful of sugar, and a teaspoonful of the milk and beat slightly until all is blended. The custard will not be as smooth if the whites are beaten alone. Combine with one pint of the hot milk, add a very little salt and the extract. Strain into small greased molds, let cool till thickened in the center. For the gold part: Make the yolks and the other pint into soft custard. Sweeten, strain cool, flavor with vanilla. Serve as a sauce around the white part (unmolded on individual plates). These are very attractive and please the children.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Save all the thin stockings; cut feet off and hem lower edge. Slip on over sleeves or arms when working in yard or garden; keeps sleeves clean and keeps sunburn off the arms. Or, sew them to old gloves for same purpose.

After polish mops have been used once, one's hands become very much soiled in putting them back in the boxes in which they come. Put the mop when not in use into a ten-pound lard bucket or a common four-quart covered bucket. A hole is punched in the cover large enough for mop handle to pass through, making it unnecessary to unscrew handle from head each time mop is put away. Putting the mop in a covered bucket prevents any danger from spontaneous combustion or the spreading of the oil to other things.

Liver should be thrown into boiling water after being sliced thin, then fry in drippings.

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 24, 1915.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I have seen so much in the papers of late regarding the question of woman suffrage, that I wish to infringe upon your space to give for the benefit of your many readers some of the results of woman suffrage as seen from a suffrage viewpoint.

Suffragists all over the country like to point to Colorado as the banner suffrage State. That it is not the home of all that is great and good, as suffragists would have us believe, is evidenced by the fact that Colorado is in such a constant state of turmoil. Probably the best insight into the actual conditions as they exist in that State is given by Dr. Helen Sumner in her well-known book, "Equal Suffrage."

Before quoting Dr. Sumner it might be well to give a brief history of her book. Dr. Sumner was sent to Colorado by the suffragists to report on the results of equal suffrage there. The material for her report was collected in the years 1906 and 1907, and the results of her findings were so unsatisfactory to the suffragists that they issued the report with an introduction by Helen Thomas Flexner, an earnest advocate of the suffrage cause, who gathered what crumbs of comfort she could from the report and bunched them all together in order to give them as much emphasis as possible, and to mitigate as far as she could the effect of the adverse conclusions. The suffragists are usually very loth to use this report of Dr. Sumner, but it has been given the suffrage approval of accuracy, and if those statements favorable to suffrage are approved, the adverse statements cannot be denied. Here are some of them:

"Colorado is a typical corporation, machine politician ruled State, with the addition, perhaps, of a wild western recklessness and contempt for law. If an election is to be stolen or an unpopular measure is to be pushed through, it may be done by cruder, more openly aggressive methods than would be employed in an eastern community."

"On the whole, the most noteworthy features of Colorado politics, and especially Denver politics, is that there never seems to have been any real awakening to civic righteousness. This was written fifteen years after woman suffrage was adopted.

The effect of woman suffrage upon the choice of candidates she gives as follows: "The conclusion is therefore unavoidable that while women have caused men of clean personal lives to be nominated in preference to men of notorious immorality, equal suffrage has had no effect whatever upon the other qualities required of candidates for public office. Saloon-keepers are usually, but not always, tabooed as candidates. This, however, does not necessarily improve the standard of public efficiency or honor."

"The 'red light' district is freely used by the party in power, and its women are compelled not merely to vote, but to repeat often. Sometimes thirty or forty persons have been registered from small houses in this region where, upon investigation, six or eight legal voters could be discovered."

"Though it is almost universally asserted in Colorado that women receive the same pay as men in public employment, it is evident that this is true only as between minutely classified positions. Taking public employment as a whole, women receive considerably lower remuneration than men. The difference in the salaries of men and women teachers in Colorado, instead of being unusually small, is unusually large. Men's salaries are higher proportionately to women's in Colorado than in the United States except the North Atlantic."

Dr. Sumner quotes a member of the State Legislature as saying: "Three dollars a week in the big stores for women and girls does not look as though suffrage were a success in that line."

On Municipal Regulations, Dr. Sumner says: "On the social evil it is impossible to see that equal suffrage has had any effect. Women have in fact made little effort in that direction. Previous to the spring of 1908, when the Market street 'cribs' in Denver were closed by the order of the District Attorney, the social evil in that city, within the limits prescribed by the police department, were probably more brazenly open than in almost any other city in the United States."

Dr. Sumner quotes a man whom she characterizes as "a prominent, well-informed, intelligent Denver man," as saying: "I have believed in equal suffrage all my life, but Colorado's experience has been disappointing. Women will always have great influence on the legislation of the country, with or without the ballot. Equal suffrage has brought a class of women to the front in political activity that hurts women's influence in all respects."

Space forbids more than one other quotation, which, however, is the crux of the whole controversy.

"Politics in Colorado are at least as corrupt as in other States, and the woman of ideals who goes into political life for reform soon finds not merely that she is working in the mire, but that she is persona non grata with the habitual denizens of the mire, and with those persons who profit by its existence. Sometimes she becomes unutterably disgusted, and ceases her political activity; somtimes her grit arouses antagonism, and she is more or less politely shoved out by experts at the business, and sometimes she stays and is taught the 'tricks of the trade.'"

This does not indicate to a neutral in this discussion that Colorado is the "banner State" that it is represented to be or that "Votes for Women" is such an astounding success.

Very truly yours,

BARRETT L. CRANDALL.

SEVERITY OF LINE AND SMARTNESS GO TOGETHER.

No. 8846.

While it is true that the trend of the season is toward severity of line, and that this undoubtedly gives an added snap and smartness to the clothes—the severity should always be relieved by brightness of color. This is a season of bright colors and their judicious selection to harmonize with the wearer's physical endowments is a large part of successful dressmaking; but once accomplished, the choice of an appropriate style becomes paramount. A plain dress that makes up becomingly in colored materials, is Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 8846, shown above. This dress opens at the side-front. Waist has standing collar and full-length sleeves perforated for shorter length with circular cuffs. The raised waistline skirt is in seven gores. Waist is perforated for center-front opening, with sailor collar perforated for round outline in front. Length of skirt from regular waistline at center-front is 40 inches. Skirt is cut 1½ inches above regular waistline. Sizes 32 to 46, 36 requiring 5⅜ yards of 36-inch material, 7 yards of braid, and ¾ yard 1½ inch belting for foundation girdle.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

An Atrocity.

Captain von Altheim was quartered with his lieutenant of reserves—a college professor in civil life—in the house of a Polish priest who had no living language to his tongue but Polish and Russian. The captain rubbed up the dusty memories of his own school days and made shift to converse with his reverend host in Latin. Afterward he asked his comrade what he thought of the performance. The ex-professor's expression of pain was hardly dimmed by the thickness of his spectacles.

"It was only one more of the horrors of war," he said resignedly.—New York Post.

Falkland Breezes.

Probably nowhere else does the wind blow so hard and steadily as in the Falkland islands. Tree growth is practically impossible owing to this peculiarity, and with such force does the wind sweep that region at times that potatoes and turnips have been known to be blown out of the ground. Grass, however, grows luxuriantly.

Australia's Bottle Tree.

The bottle tree is a native of Australia. It has a trunk of extraordinary expansion and disproportionateness which is greater when the ground is rocky. In fertile soil the trunk forms a uniform cylindrical column, from whose summit the branches issue as from the neck of a bottle, hence the name.

Although only two real stars have entered from this city there is no reason why these two should not capture the prize in the events in which they are going to compete. Jack Fritts will try a new departure, entering the pole vault in an effort to give Runyon a run for honors.

Speaking of athletics reminds us of the big meet to be staged on Parker Field, Labor Day, by the fair maidens of this city and vicinity. Not to be outdone by their brothers, cousins, fathers, uncles, beaux and, perhaps, husbands, these young women will tackle every athletic feat now known to the sporting public. The most amusing of the ventures is sure to be the baseball match, which is scheduled to run for two innings.

The work accomplished by the several playground instructors this season is worthy of favorable comment. These young women certainly deserve all the praise they can get for the able manner in which they conducted the popular resorts.

That Sunday championship is worrying at least two local managers who have decided to fight it out for the title. Tomorrow the first battle is to be staged and successive tilts will be run off until one of the two teams falls down. However, we fail to see where the two teams in question have any right to stage a "closed" contest for the honor. How about the Farmers and those of their ilk?

The team that annexes the City League pennant will have to meet the Farmer A. C., according to the latter team's manager, Herr Campbell. And if the winners expect to squirm out of a battle with the independents, according to Campbell, the fact will be duly published. Some threat, eh?

Personally we do not advocate prize fights, but we must admit that the many local ring followers who intend witnessing the coming Mike Gibbons-Packy McFarland match will see one of the cleanest and most scientific contests ever staged. There never was a more brainy pugilist than Packy and there never was a closer rival for the distinction than Mike Gibbons.

Looks to us as though the St. Joseph's have come to life. They do something today that they have not done for some time. Play ball.

Why not have the local cops do a few diving stunts. The papers inform us that the Newark minions of the law have been floundering around in the briny regularly for the past few months.

It does seem funny that none of the high schools whose basketball and football schedules have already been given out include the local school in the list of "victims." Perhaps it is because the proposed title might not apply if the locals were taken on.

Pretty soon the shrill whistle of the football "ump" will resound through the air and stretchers will convey the injured or mortally hurt to the hospitals. However, if it's fun for the participants the spectators have no kick coming.

Fans, give attention. Those grand baseball artists the professional men will tackle as worthy exponents of the diamond art as ever lived on Parker Field, Labor Day. The "scandal" will be run off in conjunction with the girls' athletic carnival and is sure to provide a mouth full of mirth.

Now that several tennis clubs want to be this city's representative team we thought to witness some lively competition.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS WIN BOTH GAMES

Defeat Verona Aggregation In Two Lively Contests On Camping Trip.

The local colored Boy Scouts, who under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Imes undertook a trip to Verona, L. I., yesterday, met and defeated the colored fellows of that place twice, the scores of the two games being 4-3 and 6-4. Sidney Butler, the local wonder, hurled both games and allowed only three hits in each of them. His feat is all the more notable because the aggregation he faced was composed of boys from New York and Brooklyn, but who are spending the summer in Verona. At no stage of either game did he weaken nor did the heavy hitting of his mates decrease to any extent. In the seventh inning of the second game the losers put a southpaw in the box in an effort to annex a victory but, although he had the goods, he failed to get control of the local hitters until it was too late.

Butler and Schults were the heavy clouters for the locals while Dunham was the only Verona man to get a hit in both games.

Both scores follow:

STARS OUT FOR TITLE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 28—The thirteenth annual tennis tournament for the championship of Minnesota will begin at 2 this afternoon on the courts of the White Bear Yacht Club at Dellwood. Six events are on the program this year—men's singles and doubles, ladies' singles and doubles, mixed doubles and men's singles for players outside the Twin Cities.

MAYOR DONATES CUP.

Mayor Edward Farrington, of New Brunswick, has offered a silver cup to the Middlesex county club finishing the first five men in the big road race. The Michelin A. A. and the Knights of St. Peter are two of the teams making bids for this trophy, and it is likely that other county clubs will enter to try for the honors.

EXPECT A VICTORY.

"Iron man" Kacheiries, the Roselle "phenom," who twirls for the Farmer A. C., expects to lead that team to a victory over the Highlanier forces who the Farmers encounter on Highland field tomorrow afternoon.

LOCAL ATHLETES ARE IN TRAINING

Fritts, Runyon and Clay Are to Be Found at Parker Field Every Day.

Every morning at 5:30 John R. Fritts, Ralph Runyon and Nat Clay slip out to Parker Field, don their running togs and dart around the cinder path two or three times. Fritts and Runyon do a little more. They vault, practice the running broad and high jumps and hurl the javelin and discus. When asked the reason of all this energy, the athletes replied that they wanted to sweep all before them in the coming Michelin and Celtic Park meets.

W. R. Granger has entered, as have Roy Morse, the national champion at 220 yards; Frank Stephanson, the Trinity crack, and all the Smart Set trackmen. However, Jack Fritts is not even daunted by this array, as he believes that he can give the various contestants a "run for their money" in each of the events in which he is entered.

The new Brunswick sport followers hail the local "cop" as a coming "champ," inasmuch as he has never appeared in that county (Middlesex) before.

It is to be regretted that some of the other local athletic aspirants have not entered the big events. They are there with the talk, of the records they make and break, but one never sees them in active competition, or if they do enter they finish behind the last man.

PLAINFIELD A. A. TO MEET T. A. B. S. AT AVON OVAL

The first of the proposed five games between the Plainfield A. A. and the T. A. B. S. will be run off at Avon Oval at 3:30 tomorrow afternoon. A great deal depends on the result of these games as the Sunday championship of the city is at stake.

Owing to the accident which befell Frank Brennan, Manager Jimmy Monahan, of the T. A. B. S., has found it necessary to make a general shift in his team and, inasmuch as some of the regulars will be away tomorrow, he has signed Savidge, Jack Wilson and George Miller to appear in the outer works, thus eliminating the necessity of using two pitchers. Dack Lawton and Jack Denny, at other positions in games in which they are not slated to twirl.

Gifford Jones has made no change in his list, although it is understood that the articles of agreement give him the right to do so. Jones declares that if his team takes the T. A. B. S. in camp he will give any other local aspirant a chance to annex the title.

SPORT BRIEFS

Frankie Burns, of Jersey City, outpointed Benny McCoy, of Baltimore in ten fast rounds, at Brown's Far Rockaway Club last night.

Herman Nickerson, for three years secretary of the Boston National League club, has resigned that office and will return to newspaper work.

or two picked up from the Coney Island piers. Fishing for striped bass from the piers on the Coney Island shore is uncertain, but the old-timers generally manage to pick up a few good ones each season. They fish persistently and many a time go home without having had a single strike. There is not much use fishing in the daytime for the big bass, although occasionally one is taken. The best chance is at night.

Talk about poisoned fish in the Passaic River. One survivor of the river's odor said that the wardens need not look for poison, as the river backed up on the fish and put them all out of business.

A well-known resident of the Highlands received a shock Tuesday, when handed a Federal Government notice that he had been fined five hundred dollars for not having his powerboat properly equipped. When he recovered sufficiently he remembered that he had submitted his whistle, fire extinguisher, etc., to an inspector and received approval and, on investigation, it was shown that the guilty person had given this man's name and address when caught without any of the equipment and got away with it. Such deception as this has caused the Government to propose a number for each boat and it will surely come.

Local anglers are hoping that the schools of bluefish will continue to stay in Jersey waters for a while. No big catches have been made as yet but the fact that the blues have been reported as breaking in the surf all the way from Barnegat Inlet to Sandy Hook makes the fishermen believe that they will have an opportunity of getting some good fishing with these tigers of the sea.

The monthly meeting of the United Anglers League was held last night in the new club rooms of the World Auditorium at 8:30. A large attendance of all the well-known fishermen of Greater New York was on hand. The league has now reached a membership of over 1,500 sport loving anglers and is doing much to improve the fishing conditions in local waters. Every angler is invited to attend the meetings and help along in this fine work.

Fishing in Bass Lake, near Blairstown, is reported as being excellent.

ANNOUNCE EXHIBIT AT PARKER FIELD

Athletic Events and a Baseball Game Included In Attractive Program.

There will be an exhibition of the athletic work at Parker Field, on Thursday at 2 o'clock sharp. The following events will be held in addition to a baseball game between two picked teams from the boys of the Parker Field League: 100-yard dash (boys 70-89 pounds); 100-yard dash (boys 90-110 pounds); 100-yard dash (open); 220-yard dash (boys 105 pounds and under); running broad jump (open); 440-yard run (open).

All the local youths who have attended the field this season are invited to compete in the coming events and should register their entries before Thursday noon. George W. Wriston, the supervisor, will take care of the entrants, but should he be absent at any time Ralph Runyon is the man to see.

Toothsome prizes will be awarded to the successful contestants in the various events. Boxes of candy will be given to the first and second prize winners while consolation awards will be handed to those who fail to annex something better.

Those in charge plan to have the exhibition start promptly at 2 o'clock in order that everything may be completed by 4 o'clock, giving ample time for those boys who have to carry papers to get to their work.

Every year an event of this kind is staged by the boys at Parker Field and each year success has marked their efforts. It is hoped by all those identified with the present plans that this year's exhibition will be no exception to the general rule.

PRINTERS BATTLE.

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.—St. Louis won the championship of the Union Printers' National Baseball League here yesterday by defeating Washington, 22 to 14, in the final game of the league's eighth annual tournament. Washington scored two runs on one hit and two errors in the ninth inning of the preliminary game with Indianapolis, winning by a score of 2 to 1 after a well-played game. Errors, however, were frequent in the second contest, which was called at the end of the seventh inning because of darkness.

SOME RUSE.

Cliff Randolph will hurl for the Perth Amboy Pacers, at Amboy, tomorrow, when that team meets the St. Anthonys, of the same place. According to advance information "Cliff" is said to be due for a beating. The truth of the matter is the Saints are said to be the weakest team in the Amboy League. By predicting a trimming for "Cliff" the promoters of the game think that they can get a crowd out.

UNITED HUNTS' DATES.

New York, Aug. 28.—Entry blanks have just been issued by the United Hunts' Racing Association for its fall meeting, to be held at Belmont Park Terminal on Saturday September 18, and Saturday, September 25. These meets will inaugurate the fall season of amateur horse racing, and will be followed by the one-day meetings of the newly formed Rumson Hunt and Steeplechase Association at Rumson, on October 2, and the two days of racing at Piping Rock on October 9 and 12.

NETHERWOOD TENNIS.

The Netherwood Tennis Club will continue its doubles tennis tourney today. The matches are becoming very close and are productive of lively interest. Every Saturday about three rounds are run off and if this rate of speed is kept up the finals will surely be reached shortly after Labor Day, or, perhaps, on that date.

LOCAL POET WINS.

Edward F. Bodin, of Watchung, has won first prize for the best poem on photoplay acting submitted to the editors of the Motion Picture Magazine.

A MENACE TO THE POCKETBOOK.

An uninsured automobile is considered a liability rather than an asset in banking circles. When one goes to a bank to borrow money, he is quite likely to be asked whether he owns a car and if it is insured. If the car is not covered, the banker will point out that it is a menace to the pocketbook as the owner may be forced to pay $10,000 to $20,000 damages to some one. We can remove this obstacle. WEDS DAUGHTER OF CHAUFFEUR

Andrew McClean Parker, Jr., Takes Allentown, Pa., Girl For His Bride.

MARRIAGE A SURPRISE

Couple Meet at a Summer Resort—Bridegroom Is Son of Manhattan Bridge Engineer and Formerly Resided Here.

Word has been received in this city of the marriage Saturday, in Old Trinity church, New York, of Miss Florence Mae Smith, of Allentown, Pa., and Andrew McClean Parker, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McClean Parker, of Princeton, well known in Plainfield.

The present Mrs. Parker is twenty-one years old, and is the daughter of Jeremiah M. Smith, a chauffeur, of Allentown. A blond, and very pretty, Mrs. Parker was a ticket seller at the roller coaster at a picnic resort near Allentown. Previously she was a clerk in stores in Allentown and a teacher in Sunday-school.

Mr. Parker is twenty-four years old, a graduate of Lafayette College, Easton. For the last two years he has been in charge of the merchant mill of the Bethlehem Steel plant. His father, who is said to be very wealthy, was chief engineer of the Manhattan bridge, New York city, and is known as "the oldest freshman of Princeton," because at the age of fifty-one he entered the university to take a course in biology.

Mr. Parker, Sr., also laid out Parker Field, in this city, which is at present being used by Plainfield under an arrangement with Mr. Parker.

When the bride's mother learned of the wedding, she said:

"This is a great burden off my mind, and I wish Florence luck."

It is said that young Parker met his wife at a summer resort near Allentown, where she was engaged in selling tickets at a roller coaster. Her mother said when she left home Tuesday night, ostensibly to attend her duties in the park, the daughter said that she might not return until late, because she would attend a wedding in South Bethlehem.

THINK PRISONERS MAY KNOW ABOUT LAING STORE CASE

Edward Danridge and Petman Robinson were arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court, this morning, charged with disorderly conduct, and the case was laid over until tomorrow morning, both being remanded back to cells. The police think that the man and boy, who are colored, may know something about the robbery of Edward A. Laing's stationery store a few weeks ago, when about $1,000 worth of property was taken, and they want to investigate a little further before letting them go.

PETITIONS FOR COLLECTOR CIRCULATING IN BOROUGH

So far only one petition for borough collector has been filed with Borough Clerk Charles M. Dolliver, that of James Arnold. That there will be many others filed before September 8, when all borough petitions will have to be in, is not a guess, for it is known that a number of petitions are in circulation today. William J. Trembath has announced himself as a candidate, and will file his petition on Wednesday morning.

ANOTHER POST UPSET.

Another traffic post was upset on Saturday night, supposedly by a careless driver, and this time the culprit got away from the police. The post was at the corner of Park avenue and Fifth street, and when it was knocked over the lamp went out, leaving it lying in the middle of the road. Judge DeMeza is determined to make it warm for anyone caught upsetting a post and then running away, as a severe accident may result from some vehicle hitting the unlighted object.

JOHN MEHL DIES AT LONG BRANCH

Former Resident of Plainfield Passes Away After a Brief Illness.

Funeral services for John Mehl, at one time a resident of Plainfield, but for the last thirty years living in Hoboken, who died at the Monmouth Memorial Hospital, at Long Branch, yesterday morning, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of his niece, Mrs. George R. Schlereth, 137 West Second street. The Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor of Hope chapel, will have charge. Interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Mehl was in his eighty-first year. He was spending the summer in a cottage at the seashore with John W. Mehl, a nephew, at whose residence in Hoboken he had made his home. He was taken ill a week ago last Saturday and taken to the hospital for better care and treatment than could be afforded him in the summer cottage, and died early yesterday morning.

Mr. Mehl was born in France, but came to this country when quite young. Thirty years ago he lived in Plainfield, but had been a resident of Hoboken for many years, conducting a produce business until he retired a few years ago. The deceased never married, and leaves many relatives, including Mrs. Charles S. Debele, of Somerset street; John Mehl, of Hoboken; George Mehl, Madison avenue; Mrs. Cramer, Hoboken; Mrs. Charles Glaentzer, Orchard place, and Mrs. John Bremmer, of Greenbrook road.

J. A. STOCKHOUSE WEDS MISS ULRICH

Ceremony Is Performed at Home of Bride's Mother By Rev. J. T. Lansdale.

Miss Ellen Louise Ulrich, daughter of Mrs. Bessie K. Ulrich, of 819 College place, became the bride of James Archer Stockhouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Stockhouse, of Bridgeton, Saturday at noon. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother. In the absence of the bride's pastor, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, who is on his vacation, Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, of the Marconier chapel, performed the ceremony. Early autumn flowers and foliage gave a bower-like appearance to the rooms, yellow and green being the prevailing colors. The wedding was entirely informal, the guests including the near relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom.

As the bridal party entered the parlor, Mrs. Guy Bender played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." The bride was gowned in a charming dress of white embroidered organdie, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. Her maid of honor, Miss Martha G. Dusenbury, of Brooklyn, wore an embroidered gown of pink and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The groom's best man was Joseph French, of Morristown.

Following the marriage a wedding breakfast was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Stockhouse received the congratulations of the guests. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome gifts from relatives and friends. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Stockhouse will make their home at Cape May, where Mr. Stockhouse is county vocational instructor for Cape May.

Miss Ulrich was graduated from the Plainfield High School class of 1906, and has been teaching for several years in the Raritan graded schools. Mr. Stockhouse, prior to his present position, was a vocational teacher in the Somerville High School.

$20 OR SIXTY DAYS.

George Johnson, colored, while drunk on Saturday night, started to make trouble in the home of Mrs. Clara Doyle, also colored, and she had him arrested. After hearing the evidence Judge DeMeza decided that the best place for Johnson was the county jail, and gave him the alternative of spending sixty days there or paying a $20 fine.

Tailor Removes.

Joseph Himmelfarb, who has conducted a ladies' tailoring establishment at 311 New street for many years, will remove his place of business to 114-116 West Second street, Plainfield Theatre building, on or about September first. Although Mr. Himmelfarb has been most successful in his quarters on New street, he feels that a more central location is to be desired in order to accommodate his many customers and the general public.—Adv. 8 30 3

ALBERT VOORHEES MADE MANY WILLS

Heirs Now Seek to Have Eighteen Testaments Declared Null and Void.

Judge Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, representing the heirs of Albert Voorhees, one of whom is Mrs. William Day, of North Plainfield, who is a daughter, is seeking to have the eighteen wills of the deceased, who was a wealthy farmer living at Millstone, declared null and void on the ground that he was mentally incompetent. Judge Case has submitted testimony before Judge Daniel H. Beekman, of the Somerset County Court. Decision has been reserved.

Mr. Voorhees was married twice, his first wife being the mother of Mrs. Day, of the borough. In the appeal to have the wills set aside, Judge Case produced witnesses who testified as to the eccentricities of the deceased. Mrs. Voorhees, the widow, stated that her husband had a mania for making wills and that he had acted in an irresponsible manner for eighteen years.

Voorhees, who left an estate valued at about $75,000, sought the aid of various lawyers to make his will, it was contended and before his death he became so possessed with the idea that he made several of them himself. In some of the testaments he left bequests to Rutgers College, the Millstone Reformed church and the Board of Home Missions of the Reformed Church of America. Representatives of these institutions attended the hearing, but they did not contest the action of the dead man's relatives.

ADVISES HUBBY TO "TAKE HIS HAT AND GO" NEXT TIME

More family troubles were aired in the city court, this morning, when Thomas Carey, colored, a baker, was arraigned on the charge of Lillian Carey, his wife, who said that he had beat her. Carey admitted that he had hit her, but said that she went for him with a milk bottle, and bit him on the arm and thumb. Mrs Carey admitted this in court this morning, saying it was done in self-defense. As Carey is a steady worker and has provided for his family regularly, the court made them promise to try to live together in peace and happiness for the sake of their two children. Judge DeMeza as a parting injunction, advised Carey to take his coat and hat and leave the house the next time any trouble started, or else to sit down and reason the matter out. They left the court together, apparently ready to start life all over again.

WIFE TOLD HIM TO GO TO THE MOVIES; SHE TOOK HIS $600

John Hauser, of 1350 West Front street, always liked to attend the movies, and now he wishes that he did not care so much for them. On Saturday night his wife persuaded him that he should go down town and see a show, and while he was away she took $200 which was in Hauser's restaurant, opposite the Saurer plant, and supposedly in the company of a barber employed in a North avenue shop, left town in a taxi. Newark was the last place they are known to have been. In addition to the cash in the store, Hauser says that his wife had taken $400 out of the savings bank, which was their joint savings, but was in her name, and he mourns the loss of the money more than he mourns the loss of the woman.

ROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

Watchung avenue, in North Plainfield, between Codington avenue and Johnston's Drive, will be greatly improved before cold weather sets in, making the stretch of road passable at all seasons of the year. Borough Engineer Harry C. VanEmburgh and Street Commissioner William Uhrhahn inspected the section last week and decided on what was necessary to put the piece of road in shape. They decided to bring the roadbed up to grade and form a solid bottom of gravel.

RINEHART BACK.

John Rinehart, clerk at police headquarters, returned to work this morning after a two weeks' vacation. Part of the time was spent recuperating from the effects of three vaccinations which were necessary before one "took," following the recent smallpox scare.

REUNION FOLLOWS LONG SEPARATION

Mrs. W. R. Armstrong Sees Brother For First Time In Twenty-four Years.

MEET IN LOS ANGELES

Winning of Magazine Contest Trip to Panama Exposition By Plainfielder Made Possible the Happy Event On Pacific Coast.

There was a happy reunion in Los Angeles, Cal., on August 11, when Mrs. R. W. Armstrong, formerly of Plainfield, but more recently of New York, met her brother, L. W. Serrell, for the first time in twenty-four years. Mr. Serrell has been living in Los Angeles, and is an employe of the Home Telephone Company, of that city.

Mrs. Armstron's visit to the Pacific Coast was made possible through her efforts in winning a trip in a magazine contest, it being her desire to not only attend the Panama Exposition, but to see her brother. As one might imagine, the meeting of sister and brother after such a long separation was one never to be forgotten.

When Mr. Serrell's mother died in Denver, Col., five of the six children were taken by his father's sister, Miss Ella Serrell, who now resides on Union street, this city, and they were raised in Plainfield. Mr. Serrell was taken to the home of Mrs. Henry Moeller, in St. Louis, where he lived until going to California in 1907.

Mrs. Armstrong, who before her marriage was Miss May Serrell, reached Los Angeles, on August 11, and the happy reunion followed. During the time of separation the Eastern brothers and sisters of Mr. Serrell had kept in touch with him, and of late years have corresponded with him.

At the time of the separation Mrs. Armstrong was nine years old and her brother was nineteen months old. The former has been married several years, her husband being engaged in business in New York as an electrical engineer. Mr. Serrell has a daughter several times as old as he was when Mrs. Armstrong last saw him.

During her sojourn in California, Mrs. Armstrong has been stopping at her brother's home, while she has been visiting all the points of interest in that part of the country, including the Exposition, as well as the San Diego Fair. She expects to return home in the early fall.

Daughter of Plainfield's Second Postmaster Succumbs to Long Illness.

Miss Elizabeth Manning, aged about seventy years, a native and former resident of Plainfield, died yesterday at Ellwood City, Pa., where she has been living for several years. She was the daughter of the late Jacob Maning, who was Plainfield's second postmaster, and she had been a member of the First Baptist church, this city, since 1861.

Miss Manning's grandfather, Samuel Maning, married the daughter of Rev. Jacob FitzRandolph, the first pastor of the First Baptist church, and John Manning, a brother of Samuel Manning, built the latter church. Miss Manning was the last of her family. The funeral will be held Wednsday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at 402 Park avenue. The burial will be in this city.

FUNERAL OF ACCIDENT VICTIM LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral of Amos Miller, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital last Friday morning, following a two weeks' stay at the institution, suffering from severe injuries received in the automobile races at Flemington, was held from his late home, 567 Bradford avenue, Westfield, yesterday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The floral offerings sent from relatives and friends of the unfortunate young man were numerous and beautiful, all the pieces bearing cards of sympathy to the bereaved wife and child. The interment took place in Fairview cemetery.

WARREN TOWNSHIP SETTLES CONTROVERSY

Decides That Neighboring Townships Must Pay For the Use of Its Machinery.

It will cost neighboring townships which want to borrow machinery and implements from Warren township twenty-five dollars a day of nine hours for the use of all the township's machinery, including the steam roller, crusher and road scraper, and fifteen dollars a day for the use of the steam roller only, according to a vote taken at a special meeting of Warren township voters held in Fairview Hall, Warrenville, Saturday night.

The meeting was called following the stopping of certain work John Gunton, chairman of the Warren Township Committee, is said to be doing with the township machinery Hiram Tunison and Frederick Wiggin obtained an injunction to prevent Gunton from making further use of the machinery, then the meeting was called to establish a status concerning the machinery. Gunton is a contractor and is making repairs to a piece of road running from Mt. Bethel to Bound Brook, in Bernards township, the contract being for about $800. He is said to have been using the township's apparatus in the work.

E. E. Cooper was chosen chairman of the meeting Saturday night and Charles L. Crabb secretary. The question up for consideration caused a great deal of discussion. There were about 100 voters present and the vote was almost unanimous. This action has settled a long drawn out controversy concerning the loaning of the township machinery.

SMASHED $400 WORTH OF WINDOWS WHEN CAR SKIDDED

Frank Splick, of New Market, was driving a new automobile down Front street yesterday afternoon, when the car skidded on the wet bricks, and before he was able to stop it he had skidded into the show windows in Front of Abrams' store and smashed about $400 worth of property, including two large plate glass windows and a show case. The police arrested Splick for reckless driving, and his case was postponed for one week in the city court when it came before Judge DeMeza this morning.

Mr. Abrams stated that he did not wish to appear in the light of a prosecutor, and consented to the postponement. He is protected by insurance. He said that the driver of the car evidently was not to blame.

HEAVY FINES FOR MEN WHO RAN DISORDERLY HOUSE

Through clever work on the part of Sergeant Charles Flynn, the police on Saturday night quickly closed a disorderly house which was being conducted on Watchung avenue, a short distance from Front street, under the cloak of a restaurant run in the same building. As a result, A. E. Hickman, the manager; Frank A. Dobson, his assistant, and Daniel Bianck, one of the inmates, were given a fine of $100 each, with the alternative of spending ninety days in the county jail, when arraigned before Judge DeMeza, this morning, and Mary Monahan and Edward S. Bird were held for sentence tomorrow morning. One man, an Italian, who solicited business for the place, escaped while Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman Baeder were inside arresting the inmates, but the police know who he is.

After hearing the testimony of the Monahan girl, who is nineteen years old, Judge DeMeza said that the case was the meanest that had been brought before him in the six years that he has been on the bench. He scored the men in the case severely in passing sentence. The Monahan girl was brought here from New Brunswick by the missing Italian a week ago Saturday night, but the police have no evidence of wrongdoing prior to the night of the raid.

LOCAL MAN WINS.

George W. Wriston, supervisor at Parker Field, and a teacher in Plainfield High School, was the only successful local contestant in the recent Rice Leaders of the World Advertising Contest. Mr. Wriston submitted a letter suggesting new advertising and manufacturing features.

FIREMAN CARROLL NEARLY ASPHYXIATED

While Building Fire at Headquarters He Is Overcome With Dense Smoke.

A tragedy was narrowly averted at Plainfield fire headquarters, on East Second street, yesterday, when Floyd Carroll, a private in the city's fire fighting army, was overcome by smoke in the basement of the firehouse. Carroll was starting a fire in the heating plant, when a dirty chimney caused vast volumes of the smoke to fill the cellar, and before he could escape up stairs he was almost overcome, and had to be rescued by four of his fellows.

Because of the cold and dampness a fire in the boiler was deemed advisable yesterday, and Chief T. O. Doane, accordingly gave orders to have one started. Carroll undertook the job, and in order to insure the wood catching readily, poured a little kerosene on it before touching the match. Immediately after the fire started the smoke began pouring out into the cellar, soon overcoming Carroll.

The first intimation that anything was wrong in the cellar was made known upstairs when smoke began coming up through the floor. When the cellar door was opened it poured up in clouds. At first nothing was thought of Carroll's absence until the mintues passed, and he did not come up. Then a party of four of his mates—John Townley, Otto Gunther, Harry Hand and James McDonough—volunteered to go down for him.

Donning face masks and all the paraphernalia used by fire fighters when entering smoky buildings, they descended to the cellar where the smoke by that time was so thick that the electric light failed to give out any illumination. By the heater they found Carroll lying, so badly overcome by the smoke that he could not rise. They hurried him upstairs and into the fresh air, where he was revived.

Meanwhile the entire building was filling with smoke and becoming untenable. In spite of the lack of a draught the fire in the heater was burning slowly on account of the kerosene on the wood and gave no sign of going out. It was evident that there was a stoppage of some sort in the chimney, so working under great difficulties the four who had formed the rescuing party cut a hole in one side of the chimney and removed a quantity of soot, after which the smoke began to ascend, and gradually the air in the building cleared. When it was so that they could work in comfort, the chimney was completely cleaned out. Besides the soot which was removed, two loose bricks had fallen in and helped to cause the stoppage.

MERCHANTS PLAN FOR "DOLLAR DAY"

Business Men's Association Expect Record-Breaking Sales On Wednesday.

Wednesday will be "Dollar Day" in Plainfield, the day when the local Business Men's Association co-operates with the public in booming home trade and at the same time offering exceptional bargains to all buyers. On that day, of all days in the year, the purchasing power of one dollar will be increased tremendously, and A. E. Force, chairman of the local "Dollar Day" committee, announced that the goods offered this year are no exception to the rule, only the best being selected for the patrons.

As in the past many people from the subusrban districts of Plainfield will arrive in this city Wednesday morning, and in order to avoid the rush and at the same time have first choice of picking the wonderful bargains, it will be wise for the home people to shop early. The merchants report that everything is in readiness for the gala day, and that if the weatherman does not interfere it is expected that the day will be of one of the best that they have enjoyed in some time. Hundreds of bargains await the public, and no doubt rests in the minds of the merchants but that they will be snapped up by the thrifty.

Plainfield business men solicit your trade, strictly on the merit of their high standard of merchandise in the past, their fairness to you, their methods and their courtesy to customers. No other city has ever presented a more attractive line of goods at such prices as have been arranged for Wednesday. Show your appreciation of the splendid inducements by co-operating with them. Read the Daily Press advertising columns both tonight and tomorrow night for the list of merchants entered, and the remarkable bargains offered.

TEUTON TROOPS TO INVADE BULGARIA

Germans Reported to Have Given Up Idea of Attacking Serbia.

RUSSIANS ARE ROUTED?

Southern Division Said to Be In Full Flight—Terrific Fighting By Italians On Precipices, Slowly Gaining Austrian Positions.

London, Aug. 30—Two hundred thousand Austro-Hungarian troops have been massed on the Roumanian border, near Brasso, for operations either against Roumania or Serbia, according to a despatch from Bucharest to the Times.

The report is now circulated from German sources that Germany has abandoned the idea of attacking Serbia through Bulgaria, owing to the risks involved, particularly the difficulty of providing enough troops. The report is believed to be a device to calm Raumania. The fact remains that all the Bulgarian railways are busy with the transport of troops, large bodies of which are massing in position whence they could be driven across the Serbo-Roumanian Isthmus into Bulgaria.

A despatch from Berlin by the Overseas News Agency says that owing to the threats of the Entente, Bulgaria has postponed ratification of the treaty with Turkey. Heretofore the German press has treated the ratification of the Turco-Bulgarian agreement as an accomplished fact.

Petrograd, Aug. 30—A representative gathering of Russian leaders was held at Moscow, and a resolution adopted declaring that the war must go on at whatever cost to a victorious end. All suggestions for peace must be rejected.

The war office gave out the following official statement today on operations in the Caucasus: "In the coast region on Friday, we completely broke the Turkish offensive. The enemy retired with heavy losses. A Russian motor boat sank a number of Turkish sailing vessels."

London, Aug. 30—That the Russian southern army in Galicia is in full flight along a front of 125 miles and in danger of annihilation or capture, with 10,000 prisoners already taken, is the purport of the latest report from the Austrian war office.

The report says the Russians have fallen back generally in this quarter from fifteen to twenty miles. The troops of Gen. von Boehmermolli have occupied the town of Gloczow, which the Russians burned in their retreat. Toward the fortress of Lutsk, Gen. Puhallo is meeting with strong resistance from the Russians' rear guard.

The official statement from Vienna follows:

"Our successes east of Vladimir-Vilynsky and on the Vlota Lipa broke the enemy's resistance on a front of 200 kilometres (125 miles). Everywhere in their retreat the Russians set fire to village and destroyed settlements. The number of prisoners who have fallen into our hands has increased to 10,000.

"The troops of Gens. Pflanzer and Baltin are pursuing the enemy on the Buezaez. Gen. Bolmer's forces, consisting of German and Austro-Hungarian troops, have advanced beyond Podhajec and against Zborow. Gen. von Boehm-Ermolli's troops occupied the town of Zloczow after the Russians had burned it.

"Gen. von Puhallo's corps beat back several Russian rear guards and continue a sharp pursuit of the enemy, who is retreating toward the fortress of Lutsk.

"Near Korbin, where the Allies are gaining further ground, is the only way northeastward opened to the Russians. In the region of Szerezowo Austro-Hungarian forces reached the southeastern edge of Sielowiecz and Purzoza.

"There is no indication of a slackening of the pursuit which has been energetically pushed by the Teutons for several months. The official report issued in Berlin says progress is being made in all sectors except in the Baltic province of Courland, where the Russians are making an effective stand."

Rome, Aug. 30—Fighting on the edge of precipices and engaging in hand to hand combats on crags high in the air, the Italian soldiers attempting to take the Austrian positions on Monte Rombon, in the upper Isonzo region are slowly but steadily gaining ground, according to a Udine despatch received today.

Paris, Aug. 30—Today's French war statement says:

"At the end of yesterday's violent artillery attack accompanied with mine explosions, fighting with bombs

LATHAM TO SEEK A RE-NOMINATION

Reported That He Has Changed His Mind About Mayoralty Honors.

During the past few days a report has been in circulation to the effect that Mayor E. B. Latham, whose term expires this year, has decided that he will seek renomination. This report comes in face of positive statements made by the Mayor during the month to the effect that his health would not permit him to run again. These people say that the Mayor has reason to be less concerned about his health than they attribute his decision to this fact and the constant pressure which has been brought to bear on him.

Assuming that the Mayor has actually declared that he is in the field for re-election the question which naturally arises is whether the local Democratic and Progressive organizations will endorse him at the primaries as they did in 1913, and thus insure his re-election.

As to the Democrats it can be positively stated that they believe that E. B. Latham has made one of the best Mayors that the borough has ever had and they therefore would like to endorse him again. At the present time, however, it looks as if they would not do so unless the Republican party reciprocates by endorsing Councilmen Ryan and Castner, who seek re-election this fall. In 1913 they endorsed E. B. Latham without Republicans reciprocating in any way and they do not feel as if they could do so again this year. In other words they must preserve the respect of the organization.

The Republican party, it is understood, has been approached by the Democratic leaders with the proposition, but no direct answer has been given as yet.

The stumbling block in the way of the Republican leaders agreeing on such a fusion, it is said, is the fact that in E. B. Lathan they have a candidate whom they know would be very difficult for the Democrats to defeat.

The Democratic leaders are fully aware of this. Already they have found out that Richard M. Ryan, the president of the Council, the only man in the Democratic ranks who it is conceded could give the Mayor a good run, will under no consideration oppose him.

The outcome is awaited with interest.

ADOPTS CLEVER SCHEME FOR CAPTURING FLIES

If you would like to see flies caught by the barrel step into the store of D. T. Heaume & Son and see how ingeniously but simply it is done. A barrel, the head of which is covered with screening, is raised about four inches off of the floor by two pieces of wood. From the bottom and inside of the barrel a piece of screen is coned upward. The top of this cone has been cut off leaving a hole for the flies to enter and become entrapped in the barrel.

The contrivance was made by George Heaume, the junior member of the firm. In making it Mr. Heaume had in mind the fact that the pests fly upward after feeding. The flies are induced to feed under the barrel by an attractive morsel of meat.

'Plains & Fanwood.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gimber and son left the borough Saturday afternoon after a four years' residence. After a short stop in Brooklyn they will continue to Chicago where Mr. Gimber has accepted a position. H. C. Lockwood, the local realty promoter, has purchased Mr. Gimber's residence on Midway avenue.

Although marred to a certain extent by the inclement weather, the colored people of the "Big Woods" section of the township held fitting services yesterday in observance of the laying of the cornerstone of their new church on Park place. Assemblyman William N. Runyon was the principal speaker and a delegation of colored Masons, as well as representatives of neighboring colored churches, were present.

Indications of a revival of realty activities locally are not yet forthcoming after a noticeable quiet during the past few months. H. C. Lockwood & Company have not reported any transfers of late, nor have other realty owners. Although plans are out for several houses, the prospects are that there will be no new dwellings started this fall. Laborers are working overtime on the residence of James O'Halloren, on Midway avenue, with a view of having it completed by the end of the week, and the two and a half story dwelling of Charles Sheelen will be completed on North avenue shortly after. It is said that a New York architect is working on the plans for extensive gardens to be laid out around the residence of James Miniszek, on Midway avenue, and, among other things, call for a miniature lake.

Under the direction of Father McGrath plans have been completed for the holding of an all day picnic at Stony Hill on the coming Saturday, and, while it will not rival the "community picnic" of August 11, everybody is assured of a good time. Everyone is welcome to go and take their lunch. Games and a number of athletic events will vie with a baseball game between the married and single men for honors. It is expected that the T. A. B. Fife and Drum Corps, of Plainfield, will furnish music for the occasion, and the day's pleasure will wind up with a dance in the Stony Hill parish house from 8 to 12 in the evening.

With the approach of fall the local clubs and societies that discontinued activities during the summer months, will resume the regular meetings. Commencing shortly after Labor Day the Ladies' Missionary Society of the Baptist church, the Ladies' Aid Society of the Episcopal church, the Junior League Society and the Tuesday Afternoon Literary Club will hold usual sessions. It is probable, but not certain as yet, that the sixty odd women of Scotch Plains and Fanwood will again hold their twice monthly meetings at the home of the Misses Kyte, on Martine avenue, to work for the relief of the Belgian war sufferers and others made destitute or crippled by the world war. Their work throughout last winter, when they sent upward of fifty cases of clothing and other necessities of life over to Europe to various hospitals and societies, won recognition from numerous sources. Letters were received from those in charge of hospitals or supply stations describing the uses to which the things sent had been put.

Rev. Dr. Calvin A. Harr, of Harrisburg, a brother of Rev. J. Madison Hare, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church yesterday and preached an impressive and interesting sermon.

MRS. LAUGHERY'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Laughery, who died last Friday, was held from the home of Joseph P. Cullen, 219 Prescott place, this morning, and later from St. Mary's church, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, assisted by Rev. Father MacDonald as deacon and Rev. Father Vincent Sciolla as sub-deacon. The flowers were especially beautiful, many handsome set pieces being included in the many sent from relatives and friends of the deceased. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pallbearers: Frank Laskoski, William Lyons, William Fisher, Leo McLoughin, Niel Scott and Michael Feehan.

POSTPONE MEETING.

Owing to the fact that the majority of the members are away, the meeting of the trustees of the Kings' Daughters has been postponed from Thursday, September 2 to Thursday, September 16. An appeal is made at this time to the housewives of Plainfield, when doing their annual canning of fruit, not to forget the store room at the Day Nursery on West Front street, which is always in need of such donations for its winter supply of food for the little tots who spend the day there.

U. S. ASTOR THEATRE

Meredith Nicholson's famous old story, "The House of a Thousand Candles," which will be the chief attraction at the U. S. A. Theatre today and tomorrow, has been given an attractive dramatic setting by the Selig Studios. The climax is built up in masterly fashion, and the errie atmosphere of the Glenarm manor house is well preserved. Flawless photography adds greatly to the charm of the production, the exteriors especially being attractive.

The story is well known. It revolves around the inheritance of the Glenarm estate, of the reported death of Squire Glenarm in Italy, and the leaving of the estate to his grandson, Jack, provided the latter lives in it one year, with only one companion, and of the search for $10,000,000 in missing securities.

No trouble has been spared in building up the interiors of the rich manor house, and the secret safes, drawers and panels are consistently placed and handled. Among those in the cast are Effingham Pinto, of Eighth street, Plainfield; Harry Mestayer and Grace Darmond.

The Misses Lena Mobus and Margaret Darby, of Watchung avenue, have returned after spending two weeks at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gow, of West Fifth street, left Saturday for Blue Point, Long Island, where they will join a party of friends for a week.

PERSONAL.

V. W. Nash, Jr., spent the week-end visiting Tom Muir at Camp Ram's Horn, Lake Hopatcong.

Among the Plainfielders stopping in Asbury Park are John Casey, of West Third street; James Cullen and Frank Cullen, of South Second street; Miss Margaret Johnson, of Somerset street; the Misses Alice and Ethel Mehl, of Madison avenue, and "Bud" Brady.

GOOD TWIRLERS ARE BEST ASSET

Steady Hurlers More Valuable Than Heavy Batters.

REMEMBER OLD CLEVELANDS

Years Ago Famous Forest City Aggregation Had Team Full of .300 Hitters, but Were Weak on Pitchers—Sluggers Alone Don't Win Pennants.

What does it avail a ball club if it possess the greatest batsmen in the land if the pitching staff is punk?

The answer is, Nothing. A good pitching staff is far more essential to a ball club's success than is a wrecking crew of batters. Baseball records of the past and present show the truth of that statement.

The New York Giants are pretty well down in the rut, although they have three men slugging over the .300 mark and three others near it. Doyle is hitting around .325, Merkle is clouting for .320 and Robertson boasts of a .310 average.

No club in baseball packs a greater batting punch than the Brooklyn Federals. Magee is hitting around .375 and Kauff is near .300. Three other Brookfed regulars are over the .300 mark—yet the team is in the second division.

The Detroit outfield is swatting the well known horseskin for a combined average around .300, a tremondous clip. Yet the Tigers are behind in the race.

In the bygone days the Cleveland Naps possessed the greatest collection of sluggers that ever battled under one standard — Lajoie, Bemis, Bay, Hickman, Bradley, "Nig" Clarke and a few more fence busters. Practically every one in the outfit was a .300 hitter. Yet Cleveland during those days never came near to winning a pennant.

On the other hand, the Chicago White Sox, back in 1906, had pitchers —and no batters. Yet the Sox won a pennant and a world series in that year. In 1912, 1913 and 1914 the Senators, minus batting power, but plus some mighty pitchers, were runners up in almost all three pennant battles.

Getting right down to this present day and age, we find the Phillies clinging to the top of the National league. Outside of Luderus and Cravath, the Phillies haven't any batters, but they have Grover Cleveland Alexander and a few other pitching persons. The Dodgers, who recently assumed the role of runners up, have a real batter in Jake Daubert and a timely hitter in Zack Wheat. Their hitting power ends there. But the Dodgers have "Bosky" Dell, Jack Coombs, "Hasen" Pfeffer and "Nap" Rucker on the pitching staff. That's why they are where they are.

The Boston Red Sox as a team aren't hitting up to pennant winning standard. But they have about five pitchers who are pitching a world series brand of baseball, and look where those Red Sox are located in the standing of clubs.

The Kansas City Feds and the St. Louis Feds present weak hitting combinations. But they have the pitchers —and they have been in the pennant light since the middle of May.

MORE REST FOR JAMES.

Giant Pitcher of the Boston Braves Not to Do Mound Duty For Year.

Bill James, one of the three pitchers who figured in the Braves' sensational climb in the National league race last season, will be of no assistance to the team for the rest of the season.

President Gaffney announced recently that James had been suspended at his own request, in order that he might go to his home, in Seattle, Wash., and rest his pitching arm. Experts who have examined the arm say that he will not be ready to twirl again for a year.

and grenades developed in the Argonne and a great number of points. The enemy's trenches were seriously damaged at Courter Chausses, at Meurissons and at Bolante. The night was quieter in that region, as well as on the rest of the front."

New York, Aug. 30—The Evening Sun tonight prints a despatch from Berlin which says that Admiral von Tirpitz believes that all differences with this country should be adjusted at once. It says that von Tirpitz does not look with favor on a formal disavowal of the attack on the Arabic, but desires that most friendly relations between the United States and Germany be established in the negotiations already in progress.

The message also says that Germany hopes that the American Government will consider the informal representations already made to be sufficient until the official report of the submarine commander who sank the Arabic is received and that the question of whether the action of the submarine commander shall be disavowed must rest largely upon this report.

The submarine report may be expected at any moment, but it is possible it may not be forwarded to Berlin for a fortnight.

Washington, Aug. 30—Although no report was received from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, up to noon today, it was evident at both the White House and State Department that the text of the report of the commander of the submarine which torpedoed the steamship Arabic was expected hourly.

Reports that President Wilson had broken with Colonel E. M. House, of New York and Texas, and that the President was now swayed by a circle of peace advocates headed by Oswald Garrison Villard, of New York, were declared at the White House today, to be "fantastic." Secretary Tumulty entered a vigorous denial that there was the slightest foundation for the allegation. "The report is nonsense," he said, "the relations between the President and Col. House are as cordial as ever."

Notification of a French blockade of the coast of Asia Minor and Syria reached here today in a cable despatch from the American ambassador at Paris.

Berlin, Aug. 30 (by wireless)—Today's German statement says:

"Western theatre—No special incidents to report.

"Eastern theatre—Troops of General van Beseler, forming a portion of the army of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and stationed in the region surrounding the Bridgehead, south of Friedrichstadt, had an engagement with the enemy. East of Niemen the army of Gen. von Eichhorn reached the district northeast of Olita. They took 1,600 additional prisoners and seven cannon. In the direction of Grodno the town of Lipsk, on the Bobr River, was taken by storm, and the enemy surrendered. The army of Prince Leopold, of Bavaria, in the Biatowieska forest, continues fighting for possession of the crossing of the upper Narew."

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS MEET.

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 30.—The last of the big educational conventions at Oakland is that of the Association of State University Presidents, which opened this morning. It is expected that the criticism of the big universities for their opposition to the national university at Washington, will be renewed. It was brought out at the Washington meeting last November that some of the biggest universities have been opposing the foundation of a great national university, to be maintained by the United States government. It is charged that the big universities have brought influence to bear to table the bill introduced by Congressman Fess, of Ohio, which would provide for the great American national university, for research work at Washington.

DRUGGISTS AND PATENT LAWS.

Mineapolis, Minn., Aug. 30.—An attack on patent laws that are declared to inflate prices and prevent research work in medicine will be made at the convention of the National Association of Retail Druggists, which opened here this morning for a week of activity. A demand for changes in the patent laws will be urged by the Minnesota association. It is expected that the National Association will consolidate with the American Pharmaceutical Association, already associated with it in advancing the interests of druggists. he changes in the drug laws, the regulation of alcohol sales, and other important matters will be taken up.

Assemblyman William N. Runyon was one of the speakers at the corner-stone laying of St. John's Baptist (colored) church, at Fanwood township, yesterday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. S. W. Hamlett, pastor of the church. Included in the list of speakers of the afternoon was Rev. J. Madison Hare, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church.

PEOPLE APPROVE WILSON'S STAND, SAYS SEN. MARTINE

United States Senator James E. Martine returned to Plainfield, last night, after a four days' trip, during which time he made a number of formal and informal speeches, and met a few thousand of his constituents. He will remain here until Thursday, when he goes to Perth Amboy to speak at a dinner to be given by the Board of Trade in honor of a Deeper Waterways organization, which will make a trip from Trenton to that city during the day.

The trip from which he returned last night started on Thursday, when he spoke at the farmers' grange meeting at Meyersville, in Morris county, and later in the evening addressed a gathering at Madison. On Friday he was at Dover all day "just visiting folks." He held an informal reception at the hotel there, and on Saturday morning he went on to Butler, where he spoke to several thousand at an Old Home celebration and firemen's parade, addressing the throng from the balcony of the town hall. His topic was one dealing with civic pride. Everywhere he spoke he praised President Wilson's efforts to keep the country out of war, and he was delighted with the reception given the topic, the people apparently thoroughly approving the President's stand.

Effingham Pinto, of West Eighth street, will make his bow to the "movie" public in the "House of a Thousand Candles" tonight.

It Pays to Secure a Tenant Who Pays.

The uncertain sort of tenant is easy to find. He is always answering the call of the window sign of "To Let." He is easy to please. Even a rather high rental does not frighten him away.

But the Stay-and-Pay tenant is not so easy to secure. He is surer of what he wants. He does not take the first house, or apartment, or store that he finds. He watches and answers "To Let" Ads.

And to secure him for your tenant is a good day's work—a good week's work.

Property that is advertised adequately in the Plainfield Daily Press is rarely rented injudiciously.

WRITES ON SKY IN FLIGHTS OF AIRSHIP

Famous Pilot, Art Smith, Sensation in Display of Nerve, to Be at Trenton Fair.

As the most intrepid aviator who has ever made flights in this country Art Smith, the young Indiana boy, now performs feats which are called by everybody "aerial insanity."

His method of constantly introducing new stunts made him the most talked of performer at the Panama-Pacific exposition. On one occasion his engine stalled with him when he was on an air trip with his mother. They were 2,000 feet up at the time, but Smith managed to make a safe landing.

Colonel M. R. Margerum, secretary of the Trenton Interstate Fair, watched his sensational work and then made arrangements for him to appear in Trenton from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1.

The youth has a record of looping the loop thirty-two times in succession.

"Art Smith, the boy aviator," one California paper said, "gave a demonstration of aerial insanity at the exposition

Remarkable photograph of word "Zone" *as it was written by Art Smith with bi*plane at the Panama-Pacific exposition. Fuses attached to one end of the craft made the photograph possible at night although the ship itself is not visible. The "Z" begins at the second loop from the bottom of the picture, and the "O" "N" "E" are the top. Smith indulges in dangerous stunts at every ascension.

yesterday that outdid anything ever attempted by any aviator in the west. Men who have witnessed flights in many parts of the world say Smith eclipsed any performance they had ever witnessed.

"Ten thousand people thronged about the North gardens to witness the stunts of the aviator, and the orderly crowd behind the ropes was turned *into a cheering concourse of hero wor*shipers by the time Smith cut off his engine and dropped to the greensward.

"Smith appeared to lose all control of his machine, rolled and tossed about in the gale that swept through the Golden Gate like a ship tossed in a storm. His biplane tumbled over and over, forward and backward. Then suddenly the aviator, with a long, graceful loop, came out of the seemingly dangerous condition and would again sail away.

Just Aerial Insanity.

"'What sort of aerial stunt was that?' asked a dozen men when the aviator reached the earth. 'Just aerial insanity,' laughed the mere boy, who had demonstrated his complete control of his frail machine in the air.

"When Smith left the roped inclosure at the North gardens he was surrounded by a crowd of several thousand men, women and children. They raised him upon their shoulders, cheered him and clapped their hands.

"The young aviator drove his bronze colored biplane in the teeth of the thirty mile gale far out over the Golden Gate.

Loops at 4,700 Feet.

"He rushed eastward and upward at a rate exceeding ninety miles an hour.

"Around and around the course he circled until the aneroid barometer he carries strapped to his wrist registered 4,700 feet.

"Then he started to loop.

"As he turned his biplane upward for the first loop he touched the electric switch that ignited the spark to the smoke pot attached to one of the wings of the machine. A great column of white vapor shot out behind him as he looped the loop again and again, the smoke appearing like a great mass of white serpentine against the clear sky.

Tumbles About In Air.

"The world record for loops is reported as twenty, held by Smith, but his twenty-one loops of yesterday were not continuous and do not stand as a record.

"Having completed his looping program, Smith proceeded to really thrill the crowd. He dropped to a point about 1,000 feet above the crowd and many thought he was about to make a landing.

"Suddenly his machine turned its side to the wind. A gust caught it, and there was a groan from the crowd. They thought Smith was about to meet the same fate as Lincoln Beachey. His machine appeared to tumble about in the wind like a box kite after the string is cut. But he landed safely."

REV. DR. CHARLES FISKE TO BECOME A BISHOP

For the second time within a few years the Protestant Episcopal church will consecrate as a bishop a clergyman, who, before taking up the church as a vocation, was a newspaperman. He is Rev. Dr. Charles *Fiske, of Baltimore, who on Septem*ber 30 will become coadjutor bishop of Central New York, as an assistant to Bishop Tyler Olmsted, who is seventy-three years old. The bishop-elect was born in New Brunswick and was educated in St. Stephen's College, Annandale, and the General Episcopal Theological Seminary, of New York. He was ordained in 1896 and served as a rector in the Episcopal churches of Westfield and Somerville at different times. He is well known in Plainfield, having preached several times in the Grace P. E. church.

The shaft to the wagon was broken and the rear axle bent, and this Moledezky agreed to make good.

WANT BOROUGH TERRITORY INCLUDED IN PLAINFIELD

Residents and taxpayers of the Township and Borough of North Plainfield, are signing pretty generally a petition to be presented to Col. Edward S. Edwards, president of the New Jersey S. P. C. A., asking that he release the territory from the Somerville society and give it to Plainfield.

The reason for this request is that the township and borough of North Plainfield are without an agent and the Somerville society, which has control of that territory, is such a long distance away. Among the signers of the petition are Mayor Clarke, Councilmen Julius J. Stahl and Alexander Milne, William L. Smalley and Howard F. Woolston.

PLANNING Y.M.C.A. ORCHESTRA.

Plans are under way at the Y. M. C. A. for the organization of an orchestra in the near future. A committee to take charge of the organization will shortly be appointed by the president of the association, and the orchestra will probably be brought into existence some time this fall. The local Y. M. C. A. had an orchestra several years ago, and the one being planned now will be a reminder of the former one.

The Salvation Army will have charge of the service at the Rescue Mission tonight at 8 o'clock. A cordial welcome is extended to the public to attend.

COMPLETE JURY LISTS TO BE FILED SEPT. 7

Grand and Petit Jury lists for the October term of court have been completed by Sheriff Otto and Jury Commissioner Russ and will be filed in the county clerk's office on Tuesday, September 7, after first being submitted to Justice Bergen, of the Supreme Court, for his approval.

The Grand Jury list contains 300 names, and the Petit Jury list total 500 names, which were taken from the registry lists of voters in the county. Both the Grand and Petit Juries will be drawn in open court on September 27. Because of a new law passed by the last Legislature, thirty-five names will be drawn on the Grand Jury panel, instead of twenty-four as in the past. Twelve will be excused instead of one, before the body begins its duties.

The first Petit Jury panel to be drawn will contain sixty names, and these will serve for a period of two weeks, after which other panels of sixty each will be drawn for similar periods until the expiration of the term.

"ATTRIBUTES OF CHRIST."

The service of the young people's association of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last night, was led by A. E. Estes, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., who spoke with great power on "The Attributes of Christ." His address made a marked impression on his audience. Special music included an anthem by the choir with a solo by Miss Clara Hadley, which was exceedingly well rendered.

GRIFFITH W. LEWIS DIES SUDDENLY AT BURLINGTON

Burlington, Aug. 30.—State Director of Railroads Griffith Walker Lewis died suddenly at his home here Saturday, in his fifty-second year from heart trouble, induced by suffering from a carbuncle at the base of the neck. News of his death caused a shock to business and political circles with which he has been affiliated in South Jersey, as his condition was reported by physicians as greatly improved following a second operation.

Commissioner Lewis has been widely identified with Republican political affairs in Burlington city and county for a score of years. He had represented the county in the State Senate and in the Assembly and was Republican floor leader of the latter body in the session of 1909. He had been chairman of the Republican County Executive Committee, a city councilman and a city excise commissioner.

WAWAYANDA ENDS FIFTEENTH SEASON

State Y. M. C. A. Summer Camp Proves Highly Successful.

Last, but not least, was the camping season of 1915 in the long line of fifteen summers spent on the shores of Lake Wawayanda. The popularity of the State Y. M. C. A. camp is proven each year by the increased number who attend. No less than 140 men and boys were accommodated in each one of the four sections. Never before has the capacity of the camp been so tested. Over fifty towns and cities in many States were represented by delegations from local New Jersey Y. M. C. A.'s and men in various walks of life who came to help or study the work. Other towns who have been at the lake in the past established their own camps this year after having drawn inspiration from the State camp. This is one way that the influence of the Jersey boys' camp is ever spreading.

The "Wawayanda spirit" is the thing most noted and felt at Lake Wawayanda. This year was no exception. Despite the rainy periods in the former part of the summer, camp activities went ahead just the same. Athletics and aquatics, of course, furnished a prominent part of the daily program, and many new records were established. In aquatic sports, Ellis Enander, of Plainfield, swam 25 yards in 15 seconds and 50 yards in 38 seconds, thereby dividing honors with Wells Hall, of Cranford, in that event.

Ellis Enander also broke the record for the dive for form in the 95-pound class. Another Plainfield boy, Martin Snyder, broke the 100-yard swim record in the 130-pound class by swimming that distance in 1 minute and 14 2-5 seconds.

The German bowling champions of the past season were Joseph Millar, of Asbury Park, and Wolcott Calkins, of Plainfield. The quoit champions were Munson Johnson, of Bayonne; Edward Burr, of Cranford, and LeRoy Estes, of Plainfield. Robert Wobeke, of Jersey City, won the tennis championship

In athletics, Harold Zeek, of Plainfield, unlimited class, was one of the boys who received fobs for gaining the highest number of points in their class.

In aquatics Ellis Enander, in the 95-pound class, received a watch fob for acquiring the most points in his respective class.

The Fred Burkett trophy cup for aquatic champions was won this season by the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., whose team secured 1973.2 points. The boys who made the team were Arthur Krauss, Kenneth Stover, Edward Smith, Harold Condict, Harold Wilson, Ellis Enander, Martin Snyder, Mac Fullerton, Harold Zeek, Alfred Smith. The next four Y. M. C. A. teams finished in this order: Ridgewood, Montclair, Orange and Cranford. Thirty boys learned to swim this summer at the lake, and for doing so were presented with buttons. Their instructors were similarly awarded.

More efficient than ever was the life saving crew, who contributed much to the necessary duties about the camp. The United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps stationed the first auxiliary crew ever organized in the State at Lake Wawayanda. This year thirty men passed the test, making a total of 317 men and boys who have been members of Crew No. 1 from time to time. Walter Baer, of Paterson, made 99 per cent. in the life savers' examination, which was the highest average attained.

One Saturday of every section was set aside to receive the friends and relatives of the campers. Being a gala day everything about camp was decorated, including some of the leaders, who expected fair visitors. A daily program of the camp, in an abbreviated form was always executed by the boys. Tours of inspection were also made about the camp site, eliciting many expressions of surprrse and commendation. Over 300 visitors made the tedious trip over the mountains to the lake during the past summer.

UNION SERVICE IS LARGELY ATTENDED

Rev. E. J. Bosworth Preaches Interesting Sermon at First Baptist Church.

The union church services for the summer of 1915 came to a close last night with the one in the First Baptist church. There were nine of them altogether, two services in the First Methodist Episcopal church, two in the First Presbyterian, two in Trinity Reformed and three in the First Baptist, where the services started and ended. As a whole they were fairly well attended, although church-going people will doubtless be glad to resume their regular schedule next Sunday night and greet their own pastors, most of whom will be back from vacation outings by that time.

The preacher at last night's service was Rev. E. J. Bosworth, of New York, who also occupied the pulpit in the First Baptist church in the morning. He took his text from the second verse of the twelfth chapter of Second Corinthians, "A Man in Christ," and delivered an interesting sermon on them.

He said that Paul was every inch a man and that he liked manly men. So does the world in general, declared the speaker. He said that people admired a manly man and a womanly woman, but very few ever saw anything to emulate in a womanly man or a manly woman.

Mr. Bosworth's theme was "religion," and he divided his sermon into three parts, each part treating religion from a different viewpoint. These were the manly religion, the human religion and the religious religion.

October 26—Third and final registration day in municipalities of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

November 2—General Election Day.

James O. Brokaw, of Elizabeth, has announced himself as a candidate for freeholder on the Republican ticket. Mr. Brokaw has never taken an active part in politics. He is a native Elizabethan. He retired from business a year ago last February.

Assemblyman Arthur Quinn, of Perth Amboy, has emphatically denied that his attempt to win the Middlesex Senatorial nomination will be abandoned at the behest of the Democratic County Committee.

George L. Record has filed his petition for nomination for member of the General Assembly on the Republican ticket in the city clerk's office in Jersey City. Eleven other Hudson county men are on the Assembly ticket with him. "Progressive Republican, Against Taxation of Personal Property," is the designation selected by Mr. Record and his associates.

Former Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, who was appointed United States Commissioner in charge of this country's exhibit at the Panama National Exposition, has just returned from a week's stay at the little Central-American Republic. While in Panama, Mr. Tuttle was treated royally by the Panama officials, and was honored at a banquet shortly after his arrival. By his request, the opening date of the Exposition was postponed from November 1 to January 25, so that the United States exhibition at the San Francisco Exposition may be shifted to the Fair at Panama.

Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War, is still being sought, in spite of his determination to keep out of Jersey politics, to stand for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination next fall with the backing of the National and State organizations. In private conversation, many of the national leaders of the Democracy have expressed the opinion that Mr. Garrison, in the Gubernatorial chair of New Jersey, would become a factor as a Democratic Presidential eligible in 1920.

UNJUST CRITICISM.

Criticism has appeared elsewhere of Mayor Calkins for making a change in the library directorate so as to give the Fouth ward representation, as an "exercise of petty political power," and for doing it without consulting the other directors. While we have reason to believe that the real source of the criticism is not the paper which printed it, attention should be called to the fact that in appointing Rev. C. E. Herring to the board, the Mayor not only made an excellent choice, but fulfilled a campaign promise to make appointments from some other ward than the Second and Third. As for politics creeping in, the charge cannot possibly lie, for the simple reason that Dr. Herring cannot be called a partisan Republican, as he was an ardent supporter of the Progressive ticket in 1912 and 1913. Had the writer of the article in question taken the trouble to consult the political writer of the paper in which it appeared, he could easily have learned the facts in the case. And incidentally it is to be hoped that the Mayor will make at least one more change in the Library Board next year.

It is an actual fact that Mayor Calkins made his intentions known to members of the Library Board, although he may perhaps not have consulted all of them, and he also asked a number of people about town to suggest names from the Fourth ward, including representatives of both local newspapers. He re-appointed two excellent men, C. Boardman Tyler and Frank L. Holt, both of whom have done splendid work. The latter, especially, by the time and trouble he gave to a series of library notes, which were published in the local papers once a week during last winter, gave to the Plainfield public at large an insight into library affairs such as hundreds had never had before. In order to do this he was compelled to do all the investigating at the library himself, as no one connected with the official staff realized the value of such publicity to the institution.

There are nine directors. One was changed, and that not because of any lack of fitness on the part of the man dropped. Hence there is little fear that generously minded people will withhold gifts from the library, as is intimated in the editorial in question. Incidentally it might be added that although the Mayor had the power to make the appointment alone, he sent the names into the Common Council, and that body, aware of his views in the matter of more general representation of all sections and elements of the city on the various boards, unanimously voted to confirm the appointments.

A FIGHTING NEWSPAPER.

There is an interesting fight on in Trenton between the people and the trolley company. For years six tickets have been sold for a quarter and the company now wants to discontinue the practice. The matter has been taken to the Public Utility Corporation, and the Trenton Times is leading the fight for the people. A large stockholder in the trolley company is F. W. Roebling, head of the great manufacturing plant in Trenton.

When the Times showed the connection between Mr. Roebling and the trolley company, the manager of the general store at Roebling, a town which has been built by the wire company, ordered the Times to discontinue sending papers there. As the paper had a circulation of 115 copies in that one small town, a great many people were inconvenienced on the first night the store refused to handle the papers, although the paper made efforts to get copies in the hands of readers through boys. The Times thus shows its contempt for those who would stop it being circulated in Roebling:

We are living in free America, not in Siberia, as the Times has frequently attempted to point out to the trolley manipulators. The men who work in the mills here are rendering service for every dollar they receive and cannot be treated as serfs of a Czar. The road through the town of Roebling is a public highway, and the employes are not herded in a stockade.

It will be recalled that when the last fight was made to save the six tickets for a quarter here political, social and financial pressure was brought to bear by Mr. Roebling, and in an interview in the Newark Evening News he frankly defended the removing of bank directors, as he subsequently attempted to publicly justify the use of the social and political axe on those who refused to obey his commands.

It seems hard to realize that men who have made millions in the free air of these United States could be quite so small or could have such a distorted notion of America and American ideals. This is not a land of bondage, but a land in which every citizen, no matter how humble his walk in life, is guaranteed the enjoyment of his God-given right to think for himself.

Beginning this afternoon, the Times will be regularly served to its readers every day in the town of Roebling. Anyone who can't get the Times there, or anywhere else, please telephone or write this office, and we will do the rest.

We sometimes pity would-be tyrants, but we never fear them.

CHANCE FOR PLAINFIELD MEN.

To Charles H. Frost, publisher of the Courier-News, we are indebted for a copy of the bulletin announcing the third instruction camp at Plattsburg, N. Y., for business men, which runs from September 8 to October 6. There are several Plainfielders at the present camp, which will be over on September 8, including Mr. Frost, Walter L. Righter, Arthur Lovell James Williams and C. L. Slocum. It is hoped that the representation from this city at the third camp will be larger than this. All who participate will be held as reserve army officers.

Of course no one should think of going to Plattsburg with the idea that there is nothing but a good time in store, for such persons will be sadly disappointed. Every man between 20 and 45, who can spare the time, and bear the expense of from $40 to $60 will be well repaid for the education and discipline gained. The government furnishes complete equipment, except uniforms, which cost from $8 to $12. A deposit of $30 at the camp covers all expenses.

The opportunity is one that should be grasped by every man who feels that he can possibly get away, and we hope to be able to record the names of several more patriotic Plainfielders on September 7, the time to leave for the opening of the camp.

Our apologies to any North Carolinians who may be resident in Plainfield! One of them has called attention to the fact that we misplaced that notorious former Governor, Cole L. Blease, and discredited North Carolina with having chosen him, when it should have been South Carolina. "A Tar Heel" writes, "Please permit me, on behalf of all self-respecting North Carolinians to remind you that Cole L. Blease is not, never was, and never could be a son of the 'Old North State.'"

Some Retired Farmers

Not wishing to knock, but our language is plain,
That for ways that are dark and for "save" on the brain,
The town largely made up of retired farmers
Is about the last word—believe US.
The average retired farmer (notice we said "average,"
And if you're a retired farmer and not of
This kind, keep your shirt on and don't Raise bear about
It)—the average r.f., we say,
Is about as useful to a town as a tick
Is to a dog.
The city streets are so much lighter at
Their darkest than it was out behind
The barn at midnight;
And that weedy walk covered with Coal ashes, from the end of the Pavement to where his house is,
Is so much better than the slue that Led from his country home to the Pig-pen, that—why should he
Be taxed for lighting improvements
Or new sidewalks?
Huh? By heck!
Some retired farmers are regular
People, but many, many others
Are so constituted that their
Funerals will be the first contri-bution
They ever made to the town's progress.

What, asks a Rube contrib., shall I do to get even without a fuss, with my neighbor, who keeps thirty turkeys that live on my place all the time?

Get thirty turkeys of your own and raise them. They'll stay over on your neighbor's place continually. No turkey ever boards at home. They always take all their meals out.

HEALTH TALKS

by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Buncombe Of The Stomach

THE poor, defenseless stomach suffers a lot of abuse other than dietetic errors. There is something positively agreeable about the habit of charging all sorts of chest and abdominal diseases to "stomach complaint" and taking all sorts of "digestive tablets" in the vain endeavor to find relief.

Appendicitis, gallstones, duodenal ulcer, angina pectoris, pleurisy, tuberculosis of the lungs, valvular heart lesions with loss of compensation of the heart muscle, Pott's disease (tuberculosis of the spine), locomotor ataxia, Bright's disease, ptosis (sagging of abdominal viscera), affections of the pancreas, cirrhosis (hardening) of the liver, anemia—but the list will never end—all of these diseases are commonly mistaken for "stomach trouble" because the pain or discomfort is often felt in the region of the stomach. Hence a diet, remedy or any other agent alleged to be good for "stomach trouble" has a pretty large contract to fill—so large that it seldom, if ever, works. Yet scores and scores of such things are "highly recommended" and sold to those who have not yet learned to see around a corner.

Any physician or laboratory pathologist who has done much work in the way of chemical analysis of gastric juice knows that pepsin is about the last thing wanting in cases of real disease of the stomach. That being true, is it not quite plain why the various pepsin-containing remedies so signally fail to "digest your food"?

"Gas" in the stomach, when present in more than normal quantity, is not a cause of distress, as many sufferers imagine, but an effect of air-swallowing or of fermentation; it isn't the gas that hurts, it is the acids of fermentation or the underlying condition, which, as stated, is most often not stomach trouble at all, but some distant lesion reflexly located by the patient in the stomach. Gallstones and chronic appendicitis are notoriously common causes of "stomach trouble," accompanied with much gas.

A lot of buncombe is retailed along with remedies for stomach trouble, but the meanest, lowest, most unprincipled deceiver of all is your own sympathetic nervous system, which seems to take fiendish delight in misleading you about your stomach complaint. In the interpretation and relief of stomach symptoms, more than anywhere else, the old adage holds true: "He who doctors himself has a fool for a patient."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Be Frank, Be Brief

Each day's mail brings one or two letters of from six to twelve pages, some in pencil, some both sides of the paper, some in characters resembling modern Kanaka. If each correspondent should adopt this plan of stating his or her questions, what a blank column this would be! Be frank, be brief, and be sure of an attentive hearing. The short letter turneth away wrath.

Dementia Praecox and Neurasthenia

Kindly inform me whether dementia praecox and neurasthenia are one and the same. If not, is the former curable?

Answer—No. Dementia praecox is a form of insanity in early life. The patient stands a fair chance of recovery if treated in a suitable institution.

Swimming To Cure a—Delusion

Will swimming, wonders G. M., have an effect on a bad cold? Why?

Answer—A good swim would help a bad—delusion—because it would equalize the circulation, increase the elimination and offer no particular encouragement to the offending germs.

AMERICAN COLLEGES—WILLIAM AND MARY

WILLIAM AND MARY COLlege is so small that its student body could jam itself into a University lecture room. A crowd of Greek letter societies in good form could out-yell the whole school and the third scrub football team of Harvard could make its varsity eleven look like a plate of hash. Its college buildings could all be put in the drill hall of the University of Illinois, and Wisconsin University spends more on postage than this little school does for its twenty professors.

However, William and Mary has a few talking points of its own. They do not get into the sporting sections, but they are preserved in the encyclopedias and histories and ought to be better known, though they do not run up into the millions in any particular.

William and Mary is the second oldest college in the country. It has the oldest college building in the United States. It has been put out of business by two wars. It has educated four presidents—Jefferson, Monroe, Harrison and Tyler. It had the biggest college president the world has known—George Washington. It originated the elective and honor systems and the Greek letter societies. Thomas Jefferson helped run it once. John Marshall was an alumnus. At one time both President and Vice-President of the United States were its former students.

These few modest facts ought to enable the shrinking alumnus of William and Mary to lean up against the Yale man who roomed with a member of the crew and talk to him quite fearlessly.

William and Mary is located at Williamsburg, Va. Owing to the untamed neighborhood it took seventy-two years to start it, but it finally began business in 1693. It was closed during the Revolution and in the Civil War its whole student body with a few exceptions enlisted in the Confederate army. After the war, there was nothing left of the school

Wisconsin University spends more on postage than this little school does for its twenty professors but a campus, a foundation and an imposing wad of history. The school was unable to run on the history and closed in 1882, but six years later Virginia came to its rescue. It now has 250 students, gets $25,000 a year from the state, and is as young and vigorous as if it had not been almost fatally masticated by the tooth of time.

William and Mary's main building was built in 1693, has been burned three times, but still has its original walls and is being used to-day. All brick masons should be required to take a course of study in this building.

Views Of The Press

A Modern Nippon

SOME years ago Japan caught the spirit of advancement and leaped with its mystic dragons from the sea of antiquity into the broad expanse of modern civilization. And it soared and soared until the other yellow nations were left in a dim and distant past. Japan progressed with a rapidity that was startling and the world took its hat off to Nippon.

Japan is still advancing. It's just flying through the atmosphere of modern development. And if the reader has any doubts as to the high altitude mark reached by this newly enlightened nation, we call to his serious attention the fact that the Japanese Cabinet, headed by Count Okuma as Premier, has just tendered its resignation to Emperor Yoshihito. The fact that the Cabinet resigned is strictly modern. When a Cabinet member leaves his post he has reached the zenith of political freedom. Look at some of our own Cabinet members—former Cabinet members we should say—and see how true is this statement. There is nothing more modern unless it be the freedom which former Cabinet members enjoy, to join the Chautauqua cadets.

Ah, but this is not the whole story. There is yet something more modern about this Japanese Cabinet resignation. The resignation of Count Okuma only followed that of Viscount Oura, and be it remembered that Viscount Oura stepped from his perch for the simple reason that the Japanese Ministry of Justice is just now investigating a series of bribery charges resulting from the parliamentary elections helds last March.

We take it that Japan is now among the great nations of history. Bribery charges following an election! An investigation by the Ministry of Justice! A Cabinet resigned and the resignations accepted! Here is curture, advancement, modernism, civilization, Twentieth Century ideals, progressive government and so on, all raised to the nth power!

Welcome to advanced Nippon!—St. Louis Times.

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND

Drunkenness Cause For Divorce

Q. Is drunkenness a cause for divorce in Illinois?

A. In Illinois, habitual drunkenness for the space of two years is a cause for divorce.

The Widow Inherits

Q. Where a man dies, without leaving a will, and no children, does his property go to his wife?

A. In your state (Illinois), if the man has no kindred, the estate will descend to the widow.

Limited Liability

Q. Please explain what is meant by a limited partnership?

A. A limited partnership is a partnership in which some of the members are subject to a limited liability—a liability restricted to a specific amount—while the liability of the other members of the firm is not limited.

House Decorated—Owner Dislikes It—Who Pays?

Q. I hired a man to do some interior decorating in my house. I had previously made an agreement with him, in writing, in which he promised to do the work to my satisfaction. After he had finished, I did not like the job, but he insists on my paying him the full amount. What is your opinion as to whether I should do so?

A. That part of the agreement in which he promised to do the work to your satisfaction is to be understood as meaning that he agreed to do it in a manner satisfactory to the mind of a reasonable man. If the work, when completed, was such that a reasonable man should be satisfied with it, you have no cause to complain and can do nothing but pay the bill.

A Common Carrier

Q. Please tell me whether electric street railways come under the legal designation of "common carriers"? A. Yes.

Civil Damage Acts

Q. Please tell me what is meant by the term "civil damage acts."

A. The term is applied to statutory enactments in many parts of the country, giving a right of action to one who sustains injury in consequence of the intoxication of another person. The individual sustaining injury may maintain a suit against the person who furnished the intoxicating liquor.

Different Divorce Laws

Q. What length of time does the law require one to reside in a state before being entitled to bring a suit for divorce?

A. This depends on the state. The statutory requirements are different in the different states.

An Unbusinesslike Will

Q. My aunt, whose death recently occurred, left a will, by which she gives certain articles to different members of the family. The language used is not always clear and there is doubt, in some instances, as to what she intended to give. Is there any way to clear up this matter?

A. A will should be construed so as to give effect, as nearly as possible, to the wishes of the person making the will, and the entire instrument—all its provisions—should be considered in determining the meaning of the will. It is not essential that the articles bequeathed should be exactly described or precisely identified. Frequently, they are susceptible of identification from a consideration of the entire property of the person making the will, as well as from the language of the instrument as a whole.

Charge It, Please

Q. What is the legal meaning of an "open account"?

A. An open account is one which is not stated or agreed upon.

When Hubby Flies The Coop

Q. What length of absence of a husband from his wife will constitute desertion?

A. This is a matter of statutory regulation. The statutes of the state, in any case of this kind, must be consulted.

Defective Plumbing

Q. The landlord of the flat in which I live has recently installed a new system of plumbing. The plumbing seems to be faulty and has occasioned me some injury. Is the landlord liable?

A. The landlord is required to exercise reasonable care. In some states, the courts hold that the landlord must keep the plumbing in good condition. In other states it has been held that he is under no implied obligation to repair the pipes.

A Negotiable Instrument

Q. I wish to inquire whether a certificate of deposit given by a bank is a negotiable instrument.

A. It is so recognized in almost all the states of the Union, provided the instrument is couched in such terms as will show negotiability.

Straight Goods

The whole world searches daily for the man who can deliver, without extra embellishments, the Straight Goods—whether it be in the shape of an accurate story, a job honestly performed, or a service happily carried out.

Who is it that can hear the account of an event, or see the actual occurrence, and then tell in simple, truthful language what actually took place? Or who is it that, having been given work to do, can go ahead and do it honestly and thoroughly as though every move were watched—and done in gladness and smiles? Whoever can, has the Straight Goods, and delivers them.

When you tell a thing be sure that truth and fact alone predominate. Be a phonograph—reproduce the actual thing.

Take Pride in a reputation of accuracy — for handing over the Straight Goods. It is the strongest and most lasting policy. Private life lacks it. Business craves it. Every activity awaits it with open arms. Be known as a dealer in Straight Goods.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

What the Very Young Baby Tries to Say.

It Sounded Like Oogly-googly-goo.

"I SUPPOSE you kiddies don't understand what a very young baby tries to say," said daddy to Jack and Evelyn when they had come to him for the evening story. "Of course it isn't so very long ago that you kiddies were babies yourselves, and I think I can remember well enough about that to come pretty close to the true meaning of baby language.

"So I'll start right in from the day the stork brought a very young baby to the parents who loved it very much.

"That baby was very small and red, and when it puckered up its funny face you couldn't tell for the life of you whether it was smiling or getting ready to cry. But it didn't leave you very long in doubt of its intentions, for very soon it raised a voice that was a great deal bigger than it was, and it just yelled for all it was worth.

"Yes; it did quite a little crying at first, but after awhile it contrived a funny little crooked smile that was for all the world like it looked when it was preparing for a good cry. Its mother didn't know which it was for a moment, and then she was overjoyed to find that it was a really truly smile, and she called to papa to come and see it.

"Then the baby said 'Goo!'

"That first little 'Goo!' is a great word in baby language, and I will tell you what it means.

"'I'm very little and weeny,' it says, 'and I don't know very much yet. I have wondered a great deal since the stork brought me, for this is very different from Stork Land, and you see I had to get used to things. But you two big people—I don't know who you are yet, but you both look good to me, and I think I shall like you very much. In fact, I like everything well enough, so I've made up my mind to smile about it and make the best of everything except when I cry, and I have a right to cry. Maybe there is a pin in me.'

"And after awhile the baby said something that sounded like 'Oogly-googly-goo! Goo!' And that meant this:

"'I notice you two big people are working your faces and making funny sounds at me, and I don't in the least know what that means, except that I suppose I'm expected to make funny sounds back. So I do, and I'll wager they are funnier sounds than you can make.'

"So that's the way it goes, kiddies, and as the baby grows older and makes more sounds it is just trying to tell you its impressions of life, and so it goes until it is old enough to really talk and tell the big people it loves them as they love it, and by and by the little baby is a little child that asks its parents questions they can't answer."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"You'll have to see the landlord, Dick, and tell him the roof is leaking. It makes me sick at heart. The paper on the spare room was put on only last year, and is so pretty, and now that great brown spot has utterly spoiled it," cried Nell from the bedroom.

"Well, the landlord will surely have the ceiling repapered after the roof is repaired," answered her husband easily.

"And I must have all the mess of paperhangers again when I had everything in such good shape." Nell sat with her hands in her lap, the picture of despair.

"I don't believe it will make much mess. They can spread a canvas over the matting, and all you'll have to do is to let them set the furniture out; they'll put it back again." Dick was very cheerful.

"All I have to do," sniffed Nell skeptically. "Much men know about such things. But it's got to be done, for we are likely to have company any time and the room must be ready. So be sure and see the man at once."

"All right," answered Dick as he strode down the walk.

About 11 o'clock a man appeared pushing a handcart containing a bunch of shingles and his tools. He climbed out the attic window and was busily at work repairing the roof when Dick came home to dinner.

"That landlord is a hustler. I hope he is as prompt with the papering," said Nell, her good humor restored.

"Probably he can get a man soon," answered Dick.

Hardly had he returned to the office when another handcart containing paper, stepladders, paste brushes and so on appeared at the back door. Nell left the table standing and hurried to help get the room ready for work. By the time all the dainty appointments of the blue and white room were safely put away, the baby woke up and began to cry. He seemed feverish and certainly was fretful and uncomfortable. She undressed him and sponged him off and let him lie with only his underwear on, kicking his fat little legs in the shaded room, while she cleared the table—it was 3 o'clock now—and washed the dishes. By the time the kitchen was straightened the man had finished the papering, and she carried the baby upstairs to superintend the replacing of the furniture.

"Talk about neat workmen," she fumed when they had gone; "it's lucky I took down the curtain. He's slapped the pasty paper against the windows and on the woodwork." She hurried downstairs for water and a cloth; the baby cried lustily while she was gone. After two hours of work she looked around on the pretty room, tired out, but happy, picked up the nearly naked baby and a pail of water and cloths and started downstairs. Her dress was soiled and streaked with dirty water, and her dust cap was awry.

"Mamma must hurry and dress her boy before daddy comes," she was saying as she descended the stairs. She reached the hall and, looking through the double doors leading to the living room, she saw a young man sitting by the library table. Dick entered from the dining room at the same instant and stood rooted to the spot. He had never seen Nell look so disreputable. He hurried into the hall.

"What does this mean? You look like a scrubwoman," he snapped, taking the pail from her hand. "Hurry and dress. I've brought Mr. Knapp home to supper. He's the bookkeeper at the beet works."

Household Hints

PINK AND WHITE MARBLE CAKE

Use one cup of butter, beaten until light, add two cups XXXX sugar, mix thoroughly or until creamy, add one cup milk and three cups flour to which has been added two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful vanilla and lastly the well beaten white of five eggs.

After cake has been thoroughly mixed take out about one-third of cake batter in another pan and add a cupful of fresh strawberry preserves, making it a beautiful shade of pink.

Have well greased pans—first put in a layer of the white and then dots of pink and last a layer of white.

Bake in two layers or a solid cake. Use strawberries in the icing.

Canning and Preserving.

A fine and cheap substitute for red currants in red currant and red raspberry jelly is the early red plum. Use more of the plum juice than of the raspberry. All who have tasted jelly made in this way pronounce it exceptionally fine in flavor.

Pickled Beets—Boil beets until tender, rub off skin and slice in cans, sprinkling a little salt over them. Put enough vinegar on stove to cover beets, put a tablespoon of sugar to a can in vinegar, also a generous sprinkle of pepper, and let come to a boil. Fill cans and seal tight.

To Save Recooking Canned Fruit—If juice oozes, lay can on side to let air escape, then dip in melted paraffin (not hot), then in cold water; if not successful the first time, repeat process.

Paper Bags for Canned Fruit—Take for each jar a paper bag of suitable size; slip jar into bag and twist mouth of bag or tie it to keep it secure. This will protect jar from light, heat or chill. It also preserves the natural color of fruit.

THE TABLE.

Pot Roast of Beef—Take four pounds top sirloin of beef; have the meat cut in a thick, compact piece. If necessary, tie and skewer, so it will keep its shape. Melt a little fat in a saucepan (an old-fashioned "Scotch bowl" is the best) and brown the meat on all sides; pour boiling water over it and cover closely. Simmer as gently as possible for two hours; then season and add vegetables—onions, carrots and turnips, scraped or peeled as they need, and cut into pieces. Cook till vegetables are tender; then remove meat and vegetables and thicken gravy with two tablespoons flour mixed smoothly with a little cold water. If necessary, add more water while meat is cooking, that there may be sufficient gravy to cover vegetables.

Baked Liver and Onions—Roll slices of liver in flour. Brown in hot drippings in baking dish. Cover with water, chopped onions and strained tomatoes (one cup tomatoes and onions to one pound liver) or two tablespoons catsup, salt, pepper and one bay leaf. Cover and set into medium hot oven until tender.

Turkish Pilaf—One cup water one-half cup rice, one tablespoon butter, three-fourths cup tomatoes, salt and pepper to taste. Brown rice and add it to boiling water, cooking until water evaporates. Cut tomatoes in pieces and stew, adding the salt and pepper. Cook until rice is soft.

Nut Cake—Two cups brown sugar, three-fourths cups butter, three eggs, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda (put into milk), three cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon cloves, one half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon allspice, one cup hickorynuts or walnuts chopped together. Frosting for cake: One cup white sugar, one cup brown sugar, one-half cup water, then remove and let cool. When cool stir till it is thick enough. If it should get too hard add a little water.

--AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

George M. Cohan's latest play, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," a mystery farce founded on the story of the same name by Earl Derr Biggers, will be presented at the Plainfield Theatre on Thursday. "Seven Keys to Baldpate," in its book form has enjoyed a reading seldom accorded to light literature, primarily because of the interesting tale it unfolds, but principally because of the denouement of the plot which is withheld until the very end of this remarkable story. Then, too, the characters that people the pages of the book are types that furnished an immediate appeal to Mr. Cohan's prolific pen, which has brought them to life.

"High Jinks," from which the musical comedy that Arthur Hammerstein will present at the Plainfield Theatre, September 4, takes its name, is the label of a marvelous perfume. Whenever the bottle holding the magic drug is uncorked, everybody on the stage becomes wildly hilarious, and this hilarity reaches a climax at the close of the second act when all the principals and chorus break out in mad "Wiggle Wraggle Tangle." The play proper is taken from an intricate French farce. Mr. Hammerstein prides himself that it is kept clean throughout the whole of its course, without losing a particle of its sparkle. The book and lyrics were written by Otto Hauerbach, and the music was composed by Rudolph Friml.

WEATHER FAILS TO DAUNT SUFFRAGISTS

Despite the Rain Large Audience Gathers For Weekly Street Meeting.

It takes more than wind and rain to keep suffrage speakers and suffrage audiences at home in these last weeks of the long campaign, for in spite of the unpromising weather and a considerable fall of rain, the suffrage party held one of their most successful meetings on Saturday evening. The heaviest rain fell on the first speaker, R. F. Nicholls, of Roselle, who held his audience right through the shower by his forcible presentation of his subject.

"Six months ago I was one of the scoffers when I saw a suffrage meeting on the streets, and for my sins I have now to do all that I can to help carry the amendment on October 19.

"Woman suffrage is right and just, and I defy any man in the audience to give one reason why women should not vote which would not apply to prevent men from voting. There is no reason that can be given," declared the speaker.

Mr. Nichols than went on to give some of his experiences as a tax collector in Roselle.

"Have you ever stopped to think," he asked, "that every woman is a taxpayer? If a girl pays anything towards rent the landlord, of course, sees that the rent includes a proportion of the tax he has to pay upon the building. As a tax collector I can say that you cannot live without paying taxes, and, I can say from experiece, that taxes are more easily collected where a woman takes charge of the family budget than where a man keeps his own pay envelope."

Introduced by Mrs. E. F. Feickert, Councilman R. A. Claybrook made his maiden speech for suffrage. Declaring that he had come only to make his appearance and show himself on the right side, Mr. Claybrook went on to argue that the granting of the franchise to women would greatly increase the amount of interest the citizens of Plainfield would take in matters of public concern.

"As one who is honestly concerned for public improvements, I do not hesitate to say that our greatest need is a more awakened and watchful public opinion. It is only the politicians who want to carry out their own designs for their own ends who are opposed to the full expression of opinion by the people. Most of us owe all that we are or ever hope to be to our mothers, who have the deepest concern in public welfare, and we cannot continue to exclude from a voice in government if we have a sense of justice and right. To extend democracy is the great work of our country, and that is why in the future we must count women as people when we say that governments can only rightly rest on the will of the people."

In a bright, logical speech, Miss Harietta Dill, a graduate of Columbia, showed the audience that New Jersey had nothing to fear from woman suffrage. Each reform put forward has had to meet a number of bugaboos for no other and no better reason than that it is an idea to which most people are unaccustomed. The pioneers in the struggle to educate women met with bitter recrimination for many years, and yet we have all transcended those experiences," declared the speaker.

Miss Eva Ward closed the meeting with an appeal to the men to register and vote at the special election on October 19. "It means a little more sacrifice and a little more trouble for you than it does for the men in the neighboring States of Pennsylvania and New York, which vote on election day, but it is New Jersey's greatest opportunity to show the way. New Jersey does not want to be beaten in the business of democracy by a kingdom. Although surrounded by almost unimaginable dangers, Denmark paused this year to frame a constitution that is almost the last word in democracy. We do not believe that American men have less courage or are less just."

The City League baseball contests Saturday had an important bearing on the standing of the teams, decided changes being brought about in the case of each of the four teams that played. The Netherwoods, with a patched clan, were easy victims for the Saurers, who, by virtue of their victory, entered into a tie with Hopes for third place honors. This fact has thrown a scare into the followers of the three teams who have been alternating as leaders for some time past. It looks now as though Martin's boys will have something to say about the handing out of the pennant. The Tab victory came as a surprise to themselves, but not to their victims, who went out to Avon Oval with a patched-up aggregation, and ought to be congratulated on their splendid defense. The Clinton Avenue-Baptist tilt was not played owing to the wet condition of the field.

Jack Denny was the star of all of the week-end engagements. His splendid all-round exhibition gained him much favor with the fans and much respect from the rival batsmen, very few of whom could connect with his slants.

Dopesters are already picking the pennant winner. It is a hard job. Very few critics pick the Netherwoods to win, inasmuch as they have the least number of games yet to play. However, they will bear careful watching.

The games next Saturday will be the "real" informers as to who will carry off the gonfalon. If the Hopes upset the East Enders, Coughlin's hopes are lost, while if the Tabs and Saurers win and the Hopes lose, the latter's chances are as good as gone. Viewing the situation from every angle, one is inclined to believe that next Saturday's game's will decide the final winner.

SUCCESSFUL MEET IS PREDICTED BY WRISTON

George W. Wriston, the supervisor at Parker Field, stated today that in his opinion the athletic meet on Thursday will be much better than any junior meet yet arranged. Inasmuch as prizes of "eats" are to be awarded to the successful contestants in the various events Mr. Wriston thinks that all the boys in this city and vicinity ought to be attracted to the recreation center.

All those who intend taking part in the events should file their entries with either the supervisor or Ralph Runyon not later than Thursday noon. The festivities start promptly at 2 o'clock and ought to be finished by 4.

T. A. B. S. WIN GAME BY SMALL MARGIN

By Defeating Hope Chapel Abstainers Take Lead In City League Series.

Jack Denny defeated the Hopes on Avon Oval Saturday, turning the trick to a 5 to 4 tune. As a result of the victory the Tabs assumed the league lead, inasmuch as the Netherwoods fell down before the Saurers.

Things looked very rosy for the Hopes up until the fourth frame, when the Tabs reduced a four-run lead to a two-ply margin, keeping the drilling up until the lead was tied and then overcome. After the third frame Jack was absolutely invincible, only four hits being accumulated off his slants during the entire nine frames. Half of these clouts were made by Tommy Heron, who made an all-round game effort to prevent his team's defeat.

Errors on the part of the two teams were numerous and very costly, the winners contributing five miscues and the losers seven. The main feature of the game was the stellar twirling, batting and fielding of one, John Denny, who, in addition to fanning fourteen men, slammed out three hits. His brother, Tone Denny, clouted out a terrific triple. The score:

POULTRY ASSOCIATION OF STATE TO CONVENE

New Brunswick, Aug. 30.—The first annual summer field meeting of the New Jersey State Poultry Association will be held at the Agricultural Experiment Station, September 9, 10 and 11. The program for the first day includes addresses by Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, president of Rutgers College; Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president of the State Board of Agriculture, and Henry E. Ackerson, Jr., senator from Monmouth county. The addresses will begin at 10:30 a. m., and will be followed by an inspection of the college farm. There will be other speeches throughout the day and evening.

On Friday there will be demonstrations and an inspection of the college poultry farm, followed by open discussion on breeding subjects and speeches by prominent poultry fanciers. Saturday will be taken up with the annual meeting of the State Poultry Association, demonstrations of caponizing and addresses on poultry keeping. Four thousand are expected at the meetings.

"KID KELLY" DID NOT RUN.

Owing to the inclement weather Adam Blair did not enter his prize racer, "Kid Kelly," in the horse races at Weequahic Park Saturday. However, the event was run off and Bincetta captured the prize in the event in which the local horse was scheduled to run.

BOWLING STARTS.

The bowling season will start at Sangerbund Hall Wednesday night. Some lively competitions will be run off at that time, and individual tilts will feature the initial evening's program.

SHERMANS WIN.

PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB WINS MATCH

Defeats Somerville Golfers On Latter's Course By Score of 10 to 0.

The Plainfield Country Club golf team of ten men went to the Somerville Country Club Saturday afternoon and shut out the home team in a match by a score of 10 to 0. A few weeks ago, in a match between the representatives of these clubs, the play resulted in a tie, and it was decided to play the match off at Somerville. It is expected that another match between these clubs will be played on the local course in the near future.

The summary of Saturday's match:

Plainfield—J. Whitney Baker and Frank O. Reinhart, 2; Will T. Glenney and O. H. Fleming, 2; S. D. Lounsbury and J. E. Erickson, 2; C. E. Lipscomb and William M. Alling, 3; Morris J. Dumont and George F. Schoonmaker, 1; total, 10.

Somerville—H. G. Hand and G. L. Lynch, 0; Joseph Frelinghuysen and Eugene Latourette, 0; William Inman and G. H. Bergen, 0; William McClure and Guy Noble, 0; William McGregor and F. Peck, 0; total, 0.

The only event on the Plainfield Country Club course Saturday was a sweepstakes. The three leading scores follow:

R. R. Hunter, 97, 27—70; H. A. Robinson, 104, 27—77; H. H. Craig, 94, 16—78.

HOLDERS RETAIN CHALLENGE MEDAL

R. G. Morse and H. H. Woodland Defeat Walter Whitehead and R. C. Blancke.

R. G. Morse and H. H. Woodland, holders, retained the officers' medal at the Park Golf Club Saturday, when they defeated Walter Whitehead and R. C. Blancke, challengers, 5 up and 4 to play. They have now been successful in their matches for several weeks.

R. G. Morse also won first honors for the president's cup, weekly competition, with a net score of 73; F. W. Thompson finished second with a score of 79. These scores were posted for the cup:

R. G. Morrse, 88, 15—73; F. W. Thompson, 104, 30—74; Walter Whitehead, 95, 16—79; H. E. Blazier, 88, 9—79; H. L. Moodey, 100, 20—80; A. A. Cannon, 102, 20—82; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 95, 13—82; Harry G. DeMeza, 102, 18—84; Charles B. Morse, 98, 14—84.

RAIN INTERFERED WITH GOOD SPORTING CARD

Jupiter Pluvius spoiled a perfectly good sporting card yesterday and made Saturday's schedule unusually dull. Only two City League contests were staged, wet grounds preventing the playing of the other tilt. Several independent attractions were called off, and the big double-decker schedule to be run off at Highland Field had to be postponed. The first game of the big five-play series between the Tabs and the Plainfield A. A. could not be started, and as a result all the well-formulated plans will have to undergo considerable renovation.

The Farmers and the Highlanders had to remain idle, as did the Plainfield Juniors and the Queen City baseball outfits. The Saurer clan could not stage its attraction with the Bound Brook Bees, and consequently may not get the chance to meet that team again this season. Taken all in all, old Jupiter did quite some damage.

EX-PETS FAIL TO SHINE.

Neither Joe Harter, Bill Stallings, Bill Pickering, Eddie Swanson nor Jimmy Clinton could stop Cyclone Joe Williams, Saturday, and as a result, Hackettstown, represented by the former Plainfield Pets, succumbed to Dover, alias the Lincoln

Giants. Only three hits were made off Williams and one of these was a double by Wally Cosgrove, who only hits in spasms. Jimmy Clinton, who fooled the Lincolns last week, was no terror to them Saturday and was slammed all over the lot. "Red" Grimes performed with the Washingtons and made one hit and two errors. Ernie Lindeman twirled for the Washington team and was reached for sixteen hits.

MARTIN RECALLED BY PHILLY MANAGER

Plainfielder Will Probably Be Seen Again In Quaker City Lineup.

A letter from Jack Martin states that he has been recalled by Manager Moran, of the Philadelphia Nationals, with whom he played before he was sent to St. Paul. However, since the Saints has a splendid chance to clinch the American Association pennant, the local boy will have to stay in the West until the first of October. Moran has consented to this arrangement, although he is anxious to have the Plainfielder around the Phillie camp, especially since the Phillie pennant hopes are so bright.

It is said that Pat Kelly, manager of the Saints, will manage the Cleveland Indians next year, and it is said Jack Martin will cover short for that team. At present the local lad is in demand, but it is understood that Moran has an ironclad grasp on him. Then, too, the "Sleepy Town" manager has a great deal of confidence in Martin. When the team was in the South he gave him complete charge of the second team, and was well pleased with the manner in which he executed the trust place in him.

Bancroft, the present Phillie shortstop, is not setting the world afire, and no one realizes the fact more than Moran does. The addition of the Plainfield "pepper king" to the Philadelphia forces, it is believed, would greatly fortify the fast aggregation.

If the Phillies win the National League pennant, a likely feat, the World Series may have a purely local touch. Perhaps Jack may not be eligible to play owing to the fact he has not been with the team this season, but inasmuch as he has been a member of the Phillie payroll, when playing in the West, it is thought that the difficulty may be overcome.

SAURERS HUMBLE LEAGUE LEADERS

"Brit" Martin's Aggregation Defeats Netherwoods By Score Of 9 to 4.

The Netherwood league leaders were dethroned by the Saurer ballists on Soccer Field, Saturday, the score of the argument being 9 to 4. Things were even all for the first few innings and it was either team's game up until the fifth inning when the shopmen branched out for themselves. The credit of the win goes to Harriman and Lou Dixon, both of whom made two hits and fielded in great style. Both Johnny Dixon and George Miller hurled well while Russ Stewart, pitching for the East Enders, was no puzzle to the Saurer outfit.

The feature of the game were the great fielding of Terry and the hidden ball trick worked by Clark, the Netherwood first sacker. Brit Martin reached the initial bag on an infield hit and reposed safely on the sack. The ball was relayed to Clark who pulled the trick and nailed Martin. The stunt caused quite a little surprise and occasioned not a little mirth.

No box score of the argument was submitted for publication. Perhaps, the official scorers slept through the excitement.

Batteries: Netherwood, Stewart and Moran; Saurer, J. Dixon, Miller and L. Dixon.

DODGERS GET CHENEY.

New York, Aug. 30.—Larry Cheney, pitcher, was today purchased from the Chicago National League team by the Brooklyn National League Club. The price paid by Mr. Ebbets was $3,000 and the transfer of Third Baseman Schultz. As Schultz was bought from Rochester last year for $3,500, the nominal value on Cheney is brought to $6,500. It is expected that Manager Robinson, of the Brooklyn team, will sign Rube Marquard today.

ONE GAME POSTPONED.

When the Clinton Avenue and Baptist baseball teams arrived at the scene of their scheduled league encounter Saturday, the field, the home grounds of the Baptist squad, presented a wet appearance. The players were willing to take a chance, but the rival managers decided that it would be dangerous work. As a result the tilt was postponed and will have to be played after the regular list of games is finished.

FRESHENING UP Y. M. C. A.

Day after tomorrow the physical department of the Y. M. C. A. will be opened after being closed a week for repairs and renovation. The pool is being given its final coat of white enamel today, this work having become necessary because of the constant wear on the bottom and sides of the pool. The locker rooms have also been made fresh and clean with new paint.

BASKETBALL NOTE.

Joe Yoerger, of 26 Prospect street, Elizabeth, is anxious to hear from the managers of all the junior basketball teams in this city and vicinity. The Elizabeth boy is manager of a fast five, and is arranging a schedule for his charges. He would like to include several local teams among his list of "victims."

EDUCATION BOARD NAMES CUSTODIAN

Tax Collector J. V. E. Vanderhoef Chosen to Succeed Late George F. Brown.

SAME SALARY FIXED

Bert Hansen Engaged As Janitor of the New Harrison Avenue School at $60 Per Month—Bills Totalling $4,494.87 Ordered Paid.

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education of North Plainfield last night J. V. E. Vanderhoef, the newly appointed borough tax collector and treasurer, was selected to be the custodian of the borough's school money at a salary of $50 a year. Bills totaling $4,494.87 were ordered paid and other routine business was transacted.

Chairman J. A. VanMater, of the building and grounds committee, stated that there still remained much to be done on the improvements being made to the Somerset School, but that the architect had assured him that the inside work could be completed before the date set for the opening of the schools, leaving some finishing work on the outside and in the halls to be done later.

The finance committee reported bills as follows, which were ordered paid: General fund, $1,220.60; manual training department, $30; Somerset School contracts, $3,139.27, and J. N. Pierson & Son, architects of the Harrison Avenue School, $105.

Bert Hansen, of Vine street and Lincoln place, is the new janitor selected for the Harrison Avenue School. This choice was left with the building and grounds committee at the June meeting, and a report of their action was made at last night's meeting, when the appointment was confirmed by the Board. The salary was placed at $60 a month. Mr. Hansen will begin his new duties tomorrow.

Quite a discussion arose pending the selection of a custodian for the school moneys to succeed the late George F. Brown. Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the Board, stated that an arrangement had been made with the State Trust Company by which $2,692 had been advanced so that certain bills could be paid, but that it was absolutely essential to select a custodian at last night's meeting. While there was no objection to Mr Vanderhoef, some of the members were not fully acquainted with the school law concerning the selection of a custodian, and were somewhat surprised to learn that while the School Board is not compelled to select the tax collector and treasurer in a borough, they cannot appoint anyone else, which in reality stipulates who the custodian shall be.

Mr. Vanderhoef was appointed to serve until January 1, the appointment being made on the same conditions as was that of the Borough Council last Friday night, when he was selected to be borough tax collector and treasurer. The salary was made the same as was paid Mr Brown, and he will be paid at the rate of fifty dollars a year as long as he serves.

BOROUGH COUNCILMAN'S COAT STOLEN FROM AUTO

Councilman Alexander Milne, of North Plainfield, left his $40 overcoat in his automobile, which was standing in front of the Queen City Hotel, yesterday noon. An hour later, when he returned, the overcoat was gone. The police found a man this morning who saw a stranger enter the car, sit in it for a while, and then get up and get out, taking the coat with him. They got a description of the man, and hope to be able to pick him up soon. In the coat there were about $25 worth of personal things belonging to Mr. Milne.

TRIED TO CLIMB TREE WITH JITNEY, CAR IS WRECKED

Something went wrong with an jitney belonging to Jacob Moledzky and driven as a jitney by Clarence Berry, at midnight, and before Berry was able to bring it to a standstill, it had tried to climb a tree in front of Dr. Charles Moore's home, at 902 West Front street. The car was still wedged between the tree and an electric light pole when daylight came this morning. Just how serious the damage was to the car was not known to the police, except that a headlight was smashed and the front axle was bent. Berry was uninjured.

MAN SENT OUT OF TOWN; GIRL TO COUNTY JAIL

Edward S. Bird, seventy-two years old, one of the men who were arrested in the raid on a disorderly house on Watchung avenue, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning. The court told him that he had investigated his case thoroughly, and thought that he was just as bad as the three men sent to the county jail for ninety days, but because of his age he would be released on condition that he return to Brooklyn. This Bird promised to do within two hours.

Mary Monahan, the woman taken in the same raid, was held by Judge DeMeza for the Grand Jury in $300 bail, and as she was unable to furnish this, was sent to the county jail at Elizabeth.

SEEMED HUNGRY.

George Depew, a farm hand, applied at police headquarters for a night's lodging last night. He told Judge DeMeza this morning that he had been unable to get work for some time, but would go back to Pennsylvania, where he came from. The man acted half starved when let go, and the police say that he ate ravenously, when given breakfast this morning.

BELLUCCIO & BRO. QUIT SCHOOL JOB

Trouble With Sub-Contractors Holds Up Work On Harrison Avenue Structure.

DELAY IS TEMPORARY

Contractors Given Three Days' Notice to Continue—If They Fail the Borough Authorities Will Finish the Work.

Some concern is felt by the members of the North Plainfield Board of Education for fear that the new Harrison Avenue School building will not be finished in time for the opening of the public schools, September 13, as the general contractors, L. Belluccio & Brother, of Elizabeth, are said to be having difficulty with their subcontractors, who claim that they have not been paid money due them. At the present time the Belluccios have apparently quit the job, and unless they heed a three-day notice to take up the work again, which was served upon them this morning, the building and grounds committee of the Board, together with the architects, will have the work finished by other parties.

At the meeting of the Board of Education last night it was stated the first intimation of trouble at the school building came to the architect and members of the building and grounds committee through complaints from sub-contractors, who said that they were not given anything out of the last payment made to the Belluccios on the contract, $2,669. Investigation on the part of the architects, J. N. Pierson & Son, of Perth Amboy, disclosed the fact that the painter had been allowed something out of the proceeds of the check, but no other sub-contractor. There were threats of stop notices, some of which were actually served, and other legal proceedings made by the sub-contractors, but the architects explained that all parties were fully protected by the bond of the New England Casualty Company, of Boston, which contained a clause covering such a situation, and the matter was left with the building and grounds committee. They decided to serve a notice on the Belluccios to proceed with the work. In the meantime estimates for completing the contract were obtained, so that the committee is in a position to push the job right along without any delay save the three days which the law requires that they wait after the notice is served on the Belluccios.

The situation is one which will not result in any loss to the borough nor to any of the sub-contractors on the job, and having been handled with such speed, there is no reason for any real delay. The concrete floors in halls and toilets are not laid, and until they are in place the plumbing work is being held up. There is a man standing ready to proceed to put down the concrete upon twelve hours notice, so if the contractor does not heed the notice served upon him today, the substitute contractor can go ahead Friday or Saturday.

The bonding company has been notified of the situation, and word is being awaited from them. The furniture for the new building has arrived, and the furniture people expect to set the desks, etc., some time between September 7 and 10. The architect said last night that he saw no reason why this could not be done as scheduled. Some furniture which formerly did duty in the Somerset School will be used. Forty desks, suitable for little folks, were selected by the committee, and after being freshly varnished, will be taken to the new school and set up.

It was a matter of comment last night that the Belluccios had caused the delay in the work at this late day, when about 95 per cent. of the work is completed.

The contract price of the Harrison Avenue School is $21,575, with $95 allowed for extras, making a total of $21,670. Of this sum, the contractors have been paid $16,201, leaving a balance still owing on the job of $5,469. It was said last night that the whole of the balance will be needed to settle all the outstanding claims and complete the building, but that if there should be any shortage the bonding company will have to stand the loss.

It was stated last night that the Belluccios had done a very satisfactory job for the borough, the mason work being particularly well done, and the Messrs. Pierson think that the contractors will arrange to proceed with the work and push it to its conclusion as soon as they can get business matters adjusted. But owing to the short time remaining before the building will be needed, no delay can be permitted, hence the notice and the decision to employ another party if the Belluccios do not come to time at once.

Don't forget that classified advertisements must be in by noon on Saturdays.

FORMER MAYOR SMALLEY AGAINST "VOTES FOR WOMEN"

W. V. Blackwell and George J. Tobin, of this city, were among the guests at the Passaic township Republican clambake held last Saturday at Gillette, at which time the opening gun in the Morris county Republican campaign was fired. Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, brought up the subject of "Woman Suffrage" and spoke against it. His denunciation of "The Cause" brought forth the greatest applause of the day.

PLAINFIELD'S FIRE CHIEF BEGINS MONTH'S VACATION

Chief T. O. Doane, of the Plainfield fire department, left Sunday morning for Cincinnati to attend the National Fire Chiefs' Convention. He will return the fore part of next month, and about the middle of September will go to Atlantic City for two weeks, attending the Firemen's Relief Association Convention, which will be held there September 23. He will then go to Washington, for the National G. A. R. meet in that city, being absent altogether from the city about a month.

OWNER OF TROUBLESOME DOG HALED TO COURT

Charged with owning a dog that bit a man last week, Mrs. James Conroy, of 9 Steiner place, North Plainfield, was arraigned before Recorder Hand in the borough police court, this morning. A sentence of ten dollars was imposed with this proviso, that she keep the dog off the streets. If the animal is found roaming the streets again it will be killed and the fine will have to be paid.

Charles Harris, who resides in the same neighborhood as Mrs. Conroy, was bitten in the calf of the leg as he was passing the house. He claimed that he did nothing to offend the dog, and that he was deliberately attacked. Mrs. Conroy disclaimed any knowledge of the dog's ferocious habits and said that she did not even know that the animal had bitten any one. She said that whenever the dog was allowed to run loose it was muzzled.

The testimony showed that the muzzle alluded to was only a halter muzzle, of no protection to any one attacked, and that even this was hanging around the dog's neck most of the time.

ONLY TEMPORARILY AFFECTED.

Floyd Carroll, who was overcome by smoke Sunday morning, in fire headquarters, when he started a fire in the heating plant, as told in the Daily Press of yesterday, was busy replying to the solicitous inquiries of his friends today, and explaining that he was all right. Carroll was only temporarily affected and was soon feeling as well as ever. He has charge of the men every afternoon at the calisthenic movements they go through for exercise, as related in a recent issue of the Daily Press.

AUSTRIANS IN RETREAT AT VAI SURGANA DESTROY ALL RAILWAYS, BLOWING UP BRIDGES AND VIADUCTS

ITALIANS' ALPINE FORCES ARE ENDEAVORING TO WREST IMPORTANT MOUNTAIN TOP FROM THE ENEMY.

GALATA BRIDGE WRECKED BY SUBMARINE BOAT

Athens Despatch States That the Submarines' Attack Struck at Very Heart of Constantinople and the Population and Officials Are Panic-Stricken—Large German Aerodrome at Ghent Is Destroyed By Allied Aviator—Russians Burn Greater Part of City of Brestilitovsk.

Rome, Aug. 31—The Austrians are in retreat at two points at Vai Surgana and in the region of the upper Isonzo, it was announced today. At Bal Surgana the Austrians are blowing up bridges and viaducts and destroying all railways as they retire. In the upper Isonzo the Italians' Alpine forces are endeavoring to wrest an important mountain top from the enemy. After a series of successful skirmishes the Alpini have opened up a new passage for the invasion of Trentino with Holzano as the possible goal. The latest reports show that the Italians are now well advanced beyond Plezza and are attacking the summit of Mt. Rambon, 6,000 feet high.

Athens, Aug. 31—A portion of the Galata bridge was blown up by an Allied submarine, according to a despatch received here today. The despatch states that the population and officials of Constantinople are panic stricken because of the Allies. The feat of the submarine was most remarkable. In order to make the attack it had to pass through the sea of Marmora to the Bosphorus. The submarine's attack struck at the very heart of Constantinople. The Galata bridge spans the Golden Horn between Stamboul and Galata.

Berlin, Aug. 31 (by wireless)—Continuing their drive against the fortress of Grodno, the last stronghold held by the Russians on their second line of defense, the Germans forced the Czar's troops to surrender their positions near that fortress on the eastern border of the forest of Bialystock. East of Grodno the Teutonic forces reached the district of Nowy Dwor Kusniza. The army of Prince Leopold, of Bavaria, has crossed the upper Narew, its right wing is advancing against Grozana. Strong forces have impeded the advance against Brezany, it is admitted.

London, Aug. 31—A large German aerodome at Ghent was destroyed by an Allied aviator early Saturday, according to a news agency despatch received from Amsterdam today.

Petrograd, Aug. 31—The following statement was issued regarding Caucasus operations today:

"Until August 22 in the recent fighting we captured 84 officers and 5,129 men, 12 guns, 6 Maxims, 90 caissons, two convoys of supplies, 200 wagons, a quantity of ammunition and arms; over 1,000 cattle, also camels, mules and two camps' equipment."

Berlin, via Amsterdam, Aug. 31—The Russians burned the greater part of the city of Brest Litovsk before they evacuated it and the fortress, says the correspondent on the eastern front of the Vossische Zeitung.

Constantinople, Aug. 31—Turkish artillery destroyed the position of the Allied troops near Sedd ul Bahr, it was officially announced today.

Paris, Aug. 31—The official war statement says:

"Our artillery has been active during the night without notable incidents. The artillery continues against the trenches, shelters and encampments of the enemy."

That France expects the war to last at least another winter was apparent today, when an official note was issued saying that Minister of War Millerand had concluded a tour of the battle lines in Alsace and the Vosges to inspect measures taken for the winter campaign.

BOYS TO COMPETE FOR SCHOLARSHIP

Many Youths to Seek Educational Advantages Offered By Holy Name Society.

A number of boys will go to Jersey City Thursday to compete for the scholarship offered by the Holy Name Society, of this city, to the boy of St. Mary's Parish who passes the highest competitive examination. The scholarship calls for a four years' High School and a four years' college course in St. Peter's College, Jersey City. All expenses will be paid by the local society, and the plan will be repeated each year.

Some months ago the Holy Name Society thought of the idea and held a very successful euchre to raise funds to insure the success of the undertaking. A little over three hundred dollars was raised by this affair, and the money will be used to defray the cost of schooling, commutation and meals. The boy who wins the scholarship will not have to board at the college, but will commute to Jersey City daily.

Even now it is not too late to register. The only requirement is that a contestant be a member of St. Mary's Parish and shall have successfully completed his grammar school education. No boy who has already entered High School can enter the contest. The following boys have already signified their intention of taking the exams: Leo Keating, John Newell, Francis T. Connolly, Edward McCann, Francis A. Connolly, Robert Clarkson and Anthony Sabino. Five of these boys are also eligible to compete in the diocesan scholarship competition.

ITALIAN WHO ANNOYED WOMEN GETS $10 FINE

Dominick Carrutchi, eighteen years old, of 244 Grove street, was fined ten dollars in the North Plainfield police court, this morning, for annoying girls. Several complaints had come to the police concerning the actions of Carrutchi, who is said to have picked out two particular young women of the borough as the object of his attentions, and to have followed them to the store where they worked and waited outside in the evening until they came out, then dogged their footsteps all the way home.

Chief Marshal Weiss gave Marshal John Herman orders to arrest the man, and last night he was "caught in the act." He is employed as a laborer on the sewer work. As he pleaded guilty to the charge this morning, it was not necessary for the two young women to appear in court against him, consequently their names were not brought into the case publicly.

DR. STRONG RETURNS.

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, after a most delightful and restful vacation spent among old friends in Vermont and New York States, returns to Plainfield this week in time to conduct the Wednesday evening service, occupying his pulpit morning and evening next Sunday. He hopes to meet all his people at these services.

A Galley o' Fun

INTREPID.

Our forces comprised twenty thousand women, as against the enemy's thirty thousand, but we were not dismayed.

Indeed, when we saw their scouts hovering near, we brought them to camp and showed them everything.

"Go!" quoth we, "and tell your general what you have seen!"

A little later these scouts, on foaming steeds, drew up at their own headquarters.

"Such bravery!" they exclaimed, breathlessly. "Those women yonder all have big feet, yet they wear white shoes without blenching!"

Whereupon the enemy with terror tugging at their hearts, broke and fled in confusion.

DOUBLY WORSE.

Lord Fitznoodle—You are afraid the suffragettes will get worse? Shades of Pitt, they can't, man! They are like wild beasts now.

The Prime Minister—Yes, but supposing one of the American popular evangelists would come over and they should get religion?

Second Jap—How so?

First Jap—There is a general European war on now, and every American is back fighting for his fatherland!

A USEFUL OCCUPATION.

Lord Luffingham (warmly)—The blawsted commoners will soon have us out of business entirely, bah Jove! What?

Lord Punleigh—Ya-as, bah Jove! We'll soon—ha, ha, ha!—be nothing but recreation peers, y'know!

Rector—You wish him christened "Woodrow Wilson?"

Father (unguardedly)—That's all.

A SUGGESTION.

The German Emperor might arrange his hair in this manner.

"DOC" ANTHONY SIGNS UP "ALL-STAR" TEAM

Predicts That His Aggregation Will "Put It All Over" the Business Men's Outfit.

Dr. William H. Anthony, who has signed up a number of "stars" for his professional men's baseball team in order that he may successfully cope with the outfit being selected by A. E. Force and Herman Schwed, announces that he will attend to the pitching argument himself. He is not in love with the job, but since the rest of the players have refused the position he has decided to undertake the work himself.

Ralph Smalley, the only "bona fide" baseball player on the team, will handle the doctors' efforts and "Doc" Hubbard will try to prevent wild throws in the region of first base. Another medical man, Dr. Peter B. Cregar, has consented to roam around the keystone sack. Two dentists, C. L. Crist and Raymond S. Stevens, will complete the infield roster.

The outfield will be taken care of by Dr. Charles Moore, Dr. Ben Whitford and John Owens. "Some little array," is the way the manager sums up his team. As yet the leaders of the business men's outfit have not picked their men, but it is understood that a very formidable combination is being collected. At any rate some engagement is going to be pulled off Labor Day on Parker Field where the two nines meet. As announced some time ago the match is being arranged in connection with the big girls' athletic meet to be held on that date.

The names of several more female contestants have been submitted to the athletic committee, the most notable [illegible] being Miss Irma Good, the star captain of last year's P. H. S. basketball team. At present Miss Good is spending the summer on Long Island, but she writes that she will come home especially to compete in this athletic carnival.

Miss Lillian Lamson, who has complete charge of the affair, will address a special meeting at "Tab" Hall tonight. She will speak to the members of St. Mary's Social Club relative to entering contestants in the coming event. Already several of the Social Club members have entered their names, while many more have signified their willingness to compete. It is thought that Miss Lamson will have a large list to make public tomorrow.

There will also be a meeting of other girls' clubs at the High School when it is expected that a large number of contestants will register. A handsome cup will be awarded to the individual point-getter, while suitable prizes will be given to those who finish first and second in each of the various events. The cup will be placed on display in a few days.

WELSH COAL MINERS STRIKE SETTLED TODAY

London, Central News, Aug. 31.—The Welsh coal strike which threatened to take 200,000 miners out of the fields of South Wales and Monmouthshire has been settled. Conferences between representatives of the strikers, Miniser of Munitions Loyd George and President Runciman, of the Board of Trade, have arrived at an agreement on terms satisfactory to the miners. All the men who are out will return to work tomorrow morning.

ANDERSON MAY BE ASSEMBLY NOMINEE FROM SOMERSET

It is rumored in the borough that a petition for the nomination of Will-D. La R. Anderson, Republican, of Watchung, for the Assembly, is being circulated. Whether this is with Mr. Anderson's consent and approval is not known. Mr. Anderson has served in the Legislature before and stands firmly for local option. So far the only known candidate on the Republican ticket in the field is the present Asemblyman, Ogden Hammond, of Bernardsville, who seeks renomination.

NO NEW BUSINESS WILL BE RECEIVED AT TUCKERTON

New York, Aug. 31—The following notice has been sent to telephone and telegraph offices: "The wireless station at Tuckerton advises that no busin ss will be accepted until further notice. All wireless messages or Germany, Austria, etc, must be forwarded via Sayville, rates same as Tuckerton. Only Government or embassy messages can be handled via the Tuckerton station. It is believed that the reason for this change may be in the numerous messages being passed between Berlin and Washington in the negotiations over the Arabic incident."

MORE TROUBLE IN HAITI.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Fresh trouble has broken out in Haiti and the collier Jason, the Nevy Department was advised today, has been sent with a company of marines from Port Au Prince to Gonaives. The nature of the trouble is not made clear.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER DELAYED

New York, Aug. 31.—A despatch dated London, August 25, which was delayed by the censor, states that the Norwegian steamship Salonica from Galveston, July 28, for Aalborg, Denmark, has been detained at Kirkwall by the British authorities.

CHENEY AND MARQUARD SIGN.

Brooklyn, Aug. 31.—Manager Robinson, of the Superbas, held a conference with Pitchers Marquard and Cheney shortly after noon and the men affixed their names to a contract.

THE WOMAN'S COLUMN

New York—To prove the fallacy of the claim that woman's place is in the home, and to emphasize women's importance in the everyday life of the modern city, the suffragists of New York have planned a unique test. It is a huge satire on "woman in the home," and if carried out will place the women of New York in their homes for one day. On the appointed day, all New York women and girls would stay in the home. It would be virtually a strike of working women, to demonstrate, for the first time in history their sphere of influence and usefulness in every phase of everyday life. While the plan is seriously considered by advocates of the suffragist cause, and it has gone so far as to set the day at the latter end of September, it is not believed that sufficient unity of action could be secured under the present organizations of women. To be effective, the "strike" must be complete.

Atlanta—The United Daughters of the Confederacy plan to establish a unique monument to the lost cause of the Confederacy. It will be an entire mountain of granite, beautified and inscribed, standing like the Pyramids of old. The Atlanta Chapter has secured the services of Gutzon Borglum, the noted sculptor, to devise the plan for this giant monument. Stone Mountain has been offered to the Daughters by Samuel Venable, and it is there the notable memorial to the brave men of the South will be dedicated.

Kansas City, Mo.—The women of Kansas are allowed a wide latitude under the laws of the Sunflower State that their sisters do not enjoy in other sections of the United States. Here are some of the things she may legally do: Take her maiden name after her husband dies without legal process. Keep her own name when she is married. Can persuade her husband to take her name and give up his family name, if she does not like it. Or, she can retain her maiden name and hubby retain his. She can wear men's clothing without any restriction, except that she must not pose as a man. She can vote at any election, and can hold any office in the State and run for Congress.

Minneapolis—Miss Bessie Bennet, one of the art jury which is selecting the art works for the big State fair next week, is one of the most prominent American conoisseurs of art. She is in charge of the textiles and craft work at the Art Institute, of Chicago, and is recognized as an authority on textiles. Each year she has installed the industrial art exhibition at the Chicago Institute, which is the largest exhibition of its kind in the country.

London—Hon. Ivy-Gordon-Lennox, one of the prettiest girls in all England, is to wed the young Marquis of Titchfield, the son and heir of the Duke of Portland. She is six years older than the Marquis, who is only twenty-two. She possesses much of the figure and features, as well as the cleverness and fascination of her famous aunt, the Countess of Warwick. Lady Gordon-Lennox is the niece of the Duke of Richmond and Gordon. Her father, the second son of the former duke, served on the staff of General French.

New York—Friends of Miss Gladys Ravenscroft, the English golfer, have news from Liverpool of her engagement to Temple Dobell, of Birkenhead. Miss Ravenscroft has won all of the golf events open to ladies in her own country, and two years ago came to America and annexed many honors.

San Francisco—If the plan to nationalize Poland is carried out, it is possible that an American girl may become the Queen of Poland. She is Princess Poniatowski, formerly Miss Elizabeth Sperry, of Stockton, Cal., who married Prince Andre Poniatowski, a Polish nobleman. Her husband has been among the first mentioned in the European capitals as a possible selection of the Russian Czar. The plan has been temporarily upset by the Russian loss of Poland, and, of course, the lady herself might have to be consulted before she would consent to be queen of a war-swept land.

GERMANY PROMISES FULL REPARATION

From An Authoritative Source, It Is Said, She Pledges Protection to Americans.

New York, Aug. 31—The New York American, this morning, says that it is able to present from a high and authoritative source the exact concessions on submarine warfare to Secretary Lansing by Ambassador von Bernstorff. Official confirmation of these concessions, the paper says, are expected by Ambassador von Bernstorff with the next 48 hours, possibly within the next 24 hours. Germany admitted in diplomatic terms that in her submarine warfare she had grievously wronged America. She promised without qualification that the life of not one American citizen should in the future be endangered by her undersea boats.

In the exact words of a high official, she pledged that one one American shall go overboard. Whatever the diplomatic form of presentation may have been Germany did without reservation assume full responsibility for the loss of American lives aboard the Lusitania. Her offer of reparation was so unqualified that only a method of determining the amount of damage remains. She does not disavow destruction of the Lusitania and vigorously maintains that the giant Cunarder loaded with munitions was in reality a ship of war. She realizes, however, that this fact did not warrant the taking of American lives.

The Arabic case is less clear cut than that of the Lusitania. No submarine commander has as yet admitted sinking the Arabic. German will nevertheless, pay for the lives of the two Americans lost with that ship if sufficient evidence is presented by witnesses. The United States is accordingly, asked to obtain all the facts and present them for consideration of the German Government. In reminding the United States of her promise to mediate with England for freedom of the seas, Germany, the American says, maintains that the suggestions, if such mediation originated with this Government, expects the United States to take steps to enforce this position upon Great Britain.

Monkeys and Microbes.

In the zoological gardens in London the anthropoid apes have been kept alive during recent years by shutting them in behind glass not to protect the visitors from them, but to protect them from the visitors—that is to say, from the microbes that man harbors in his mouth. Man has more or less successfully *learned how to disarm those in*vaders, but they will readily destroy those near relatives of his whose bodies have not learned how to resist them. Mankind has no better friends than those who, like Metchnikoff, teach us what to do and what not to do in arming and inuring ourselves against these sleepless and implacable but assuredly doomed enemies of our kind.—Dr. C. W. Saleeby in Youth's Companion.

Seeing Backward.

The hare can see objects behind as well as in front. Its eyes are large, prominent and placed laterally. Its power of seeing things in the rear is very noticeable in touring, for, though the greyhound is mute while running, the hare is able to judge to a nicety the exact moment at which it will be best for it to double. The giraffe, which is a very timid animal, is approached with the utmost difficulty on account of its eyes being so placed that it can see both ways with equal facility. This faculty enables it to direct with great precision the rapid storms of kicks with which it defends itself.

The Turkish Fez.

All through the markets of every Turkish city and village are little shops where the fez can be pressed and ironed for a few cents. At his prayers a Moslem could not use a hat with a brim, as his head must press the prayer rug a certain number of times during each prayer. As the head must be covered at all times, a fez or some other brimless covering must be used.

He Used It.

Schoolteacher—Now, children, can any of you make a sentence using the word "indisposition?"

Rough Pupil (throwing off his coat and spitting on his hands)—Please, ma'am, if you want to fight you stand in dis position.

The teacher fainted.

"Pa, what is a demagogue?"

NOTED SOCIOLOGIST WOULD BUILD UP SUPERMAN RACE WITH EUGENICS

Establishment of a "eugenics registry," the purpose of which would be development of an "aristocracy of health" and the creation of beings possessed of superior characteristics of mind and body, was advocated by Dr. J. H. Kellogg of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, Battle Creek, Mich., before the conference on race betterment at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

"The establishment of a registry for horses created a famous breed of English thoroughbreds," he said. "The object sought by the proposed eugenics registry is to accomplish for humans the same marvelous transformation, and to evolve the same betterments that have been and still are being accomplished for pigs and cattle. We have created wonderful new species of domestic animals. Why not have a new and improved species of man?

"The object of a eugenics registry is to create aristocracy of health. The world needs a new aristocracy; not an artificial, blue blooded aristocracy created by wealth or official authority, but a real aristocracy made up of Apollos and Venuses and their fortunate progeny.

"Instead of such an aristocracy we are actually building up an aristocracy of lunatics, idiots, paupers, and criminals. These unfit persons already have reached the proportions of a vast multitude—500,000 lunatics, 80,000 criminals, 100,000 paupers, 90,000 idiots, 90,000 epileptics—and we are supporting these defectives in idleness like real aristocrats, at an expense of $100,000,000 a year."

PROMINENT JUDGES FOR POULTRY SHOW

Leading Officials Selected to Award Prizes at Trenton Interstate Fair.

Awards of prizes in the poultry department of the Trenton Interstate Fair are to be made again this year by judges who have gained positions of prominence in the work. They are noted not only for their integrity, but for their ability, and have officiated at the largest shows in the United States. The Fair is to be held from Sept. 27 to Oct. 1.

Reese V. Hicks, manager of the Rancocas Farms at Browns Mills, has been added to the officials who gave such universal satisfaction last year.

To still further strengthen his force, Harvey E. Rogers, the superintendent, prevailed upon Mr. Hicks to act. Mr. Hicks was twice president of the American Poultry association and formerly editor of Poultry Culture of Kansas. He is recognized as one of the foremost Rhode Island Red judges in America and was chosen to serve at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

The list of judges follows:

Reese V. Hicks of Browns Mills, N. J.; H. P. Schwab, Irondequoit, N. Y.; J. V. Courtney Punderford, Freneau, N. J.; J. Harry Wolsieffer, Vineland, N. J., and William G. Minich, Carlisle, Pa.

The judge of the pigeon department will be Reuben Gibbs of Trenton.

The indications for the Trenton exposition are that one of the largest poultry shows ever prepared for New Jersey will be seen this year. Superintendent Rogers is president of the Mercer County Poultry association and also a member of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Poultry association. He is thoroughly informed on the progress made in the bird industry, and his ability to arrange an exhibition worth traveling to see was demonstrated last year.

EDUCATOR'S NOTEBOOK

Wilmington, Del.—With a view to making the citizenship of Delaware a model for other States to follow, the United States Bureau of Education has selected it as the survey field to carry out many new educational ideas. The Government will send a staff of nearly sixty experts in various lines during September to conduct the extensive survey, which may cover a period of several years. U. S. Commissioner of Education Dr. P. P. Claxton is especially interested in the project.

The survey is the greatest yet taken in education by the Federal Government. When it is completed, the vast amount of data that will have been accumulated will be digested by another staff of experts. Not only will this furnish the basis of improvement of educational methods in this State, but it will solve the similar problems of other States.

The first section of the survey will be undertaken by Dr. Arthur W. Dunn and assistants from the Bureau of Education, who will spend the entire year in Delaware demonstrating the plan of teaching community civics. This will mean the instruction in the public schools of the State of the pupils of all ages above 12. Then there will be the industrial survey to determine the educational opportunities of workers and the best methods to meet conditions. Also a rural school survey will be under way, also a rural church survey. The defectives of the State will also be studied and tabbed, and another corps will study the negro question in Delaware.

Washington, D. C.—The Government of Venezuela has accepted 110 scholarships in 77 of the best institutions of learning in the United States. Negotiations were completed at the end of the last college term by Hon. Preston McGoodwin, U. S. minister to Venezuela, and the heads of various colleges and universities in this country. The 110 young men and young women will begin their courses next month. The result sought is the closer knitting of the cultural relations between the two countries. In the past 80 years, it is said that fewer than a dozen Venezuelans have been educated in the United States, principally on account of the lack of sympathy in Americans with their South American neighbors. It is expected that the tide of education which flowed between Europe and Latin republics will now set in toward the American institutions.

Chicago—Prof. Caro MacArthur, of the University of Illinois, has presented a plan for the training of college men in citizenship that might be expected, also to react beneficially on the life of the town and city. The course involves the study of the home towns and cities from whence the men come. Population, housing and nationalities are looked into in a way that keeps the student in touch with his home town affairs and he grows better able to receive and to profit by his theoretical class-room training.

Scattered Sport Gleanings

It looks as though we were going to be treated to another "grand" baseball match such as was exhibited by the doctors, lawyers and ministers a few seasons ago. Now the business men are out with the announcement that they are going to trounce the life out of the medical men when the two outfits stage their big baseball comedy in conjunction with the coming girls' athletic meet. Take it from us, things are going to hum.

Still another athletic meet is to be staged for the benefit of local sportdom. George W. Wriston, supervisor at Parker Field, has arranged to have all the boys of the city perform athletic feats and compete in various events at that popular amusement centre on Thursday. As an added inducement he has agreed to give boxes of candy to the boys who finish first in the several competitions.

According to the newspapers, this city has a handball outfit of which it should be proud. What next?

That City League race is rapidly drawing to a close and the final winner is still unknown. Seldom before in the annals of city league baseball has so enthusiastic and close a race been run. The right spirit of sportsmanship has prevailed throughout the whole season and everything points to a revival of the league next year.

Football is getting a firm grasp on sportdom. Most of the big college elevens are already in training and, as usual, each is confident of registering a big win over the other. As yet no training has been done in Holy Cross quarters, but in a few weeks the pigskin warriors of this city and vicinity are sure to be at it, hammer and tongs.

Basketball teams are springing up everywhere and out-of-town managers are already sending in challenges. There ought to be some lively competition for the 1916 independent championship title of this city.

Old Jupiter Pluvius certainly spoiled a fine sporting card this past week-end. He also piled up a large list of postponed amateur games. But why worry? Very few of these amateur teams play off such minor things as postponed attractions.

Another mean trick Old Jup undertook was the delaying of that five-game Sunday championship series. However, next Sunday will see the start of that all-important mess of mix-ups.

Let us hope that Jack Fritts and Ralph Runyon make a mark in the coming Michelin meet. They deserve to, as they have been preparing earnestly for the past two weeks.

Some sport schedule for this coming week-end.

What do you think of "old" Jack Martin?

RINGSIDE GOSSIP

When Jim Savage and Charley Weinert meet at the Madison Square Garden tonight a great battle is sure to be staged, as a great deal of bitter personal feeling exists between these two fighters. Savage has declared that Weinert is nothing, and the latter has made about the same assertion as to the ring ability of Savage. Time will tell.

"You're on." Marshall, the promoter of the Gibbons-McFarland match, has invited Governor Whitman, of New York, to witness the go, and it is thought that the Governor will accept the invitation.

Quite a few promoters of third-rate matches have ridiculed the coming McFarland contest, and have gone so far as to label the affair as a fake. State officials have voiced a bitter opinion against these third-rate men, and perhaps some legal action may be taken.

Jess Willard, or, perhaps, his press agent, has announced that $30,000 will induce him to take on any white contender for the championship belt. Very few of the contenders and their backers have the necessary money to stage an affair of this kind.

Who said Leachie Cross had quit the ring? His brother, Herr Wallach, says that whoever circulated the report ought to be put in jail. Right away Leachie goes and signs articles for five successive fights. And still they say he has quit the game. Nowadays a man canot lie dormant for a minute.

HOLY CROSS NOTE.

For the eighth season the Valley A. A. will be represented on the gridiron by a husky lot of youngsters. Most of last year's veterans and a few new faces will be in the line-up. Those who will try for positions are: Pohlman, Scott, Conroy, Christenson, Fredericks, Reimers, Wagner, Kussy, Kathor, Gallagher, Baldwin, Miller, Peterson, Luft, Sinbine, Kriesmer and McCann. The new men are Mason, of Elizabeth, and Waite, of Perth Amboy.

WHOSE FAULT.

The New York Evening Sun says: "Roy Morse, of the Salem Crescent A. C., the winner of the national 220 yards championship, has been advertised to start in several meets lately and has failed to appear. It is up to the registration committee to find out if Morse or the promoters are to blame for misleading the public." Evidently the Michelin race promoters better get busy.

SAVIDGE DROPPED BY THE BAPTISTS SIGNS WITH HOPES AND T. A. B. S.

City Baseball League Holds a Breezy Session—Dates For Postponed Games Are Fixed By the Managers.

The dropping of Savidge from the Baptist team and the signing up of this player by both Hope chapel and the T. A. B. management furnished a sensation at the weekly meeting of the City Amateur Baseball League in the office of the Plainfield Daily Press last night. Some of the players and fans, having a "hunch" that some action might be taken regarding this player, turned out in full force, and the meeting was by far the most largely attended of the season.

Savidge, although on the Baptist line-up, has not played a game with that aggregation for several weeks, claiming that he wanted his release. Manager Dan Randolph refused to let the player go until he began playing Sunday baseball, and then, according to the rules of the club, he was forced to cross him from the list. Immediately following this action last night Ernie Luthman posted his name on the Hope roster, while Manager James Monahan, of the T. A. B. S., followed suit. It remains to be seen which team Savidge will play with. According to the two rival managers last night the player said that he would reach a decision by Saturday.

According to the rules of the T. A. B. S. Savidge canot play with that team unless he is a member of the society, and whether he will join the organization remains to be seen. It has been known for some time that he has been dissatisfied as shown by the fact that he would rather remain idle than play with the Baptists.

The rules of the league provide that a player dropped by one team cannot be signed up by another team in the league during the playing season, but a few instances were recalled where this has been done this year, but, as Manager Brit Martin, of the Saurers, explained, it was done only in emergency. However, the league decided to approve the action taken in the case of Savidge.

Several changes were made in the other teams last night. Saurer signed Jack Martin and dropped Pasch, while Hope signed James Emery, F. Tonse and Savidge, dropping F. Conti, Cliff Randolph and T. Snyder. T. A. B. signed Savidge and dropped Denitzio, while the Baptists dropped Savidge and signed Schenck. These changes were approved.

Considerable time was devoted to fixing dates for the postponed games, and a schedule was finally adopted, with the approval of all the managers. Inasmuch as Netherwood has no postponed games, this team will finish playing on Labor Day afternoon, thereby being idle as far as league games are concerned. The postponed dates are as follows:

September 6 (Labor Day) afternoon, Saurer at First Baptist, Clinton Avenue at T. A. B. and Netherwood at Hope; September 11, Saurer at T. A. B. and Clinton Avenue at First Baptist; September 18, T. A. B. at First Baptist and Clinton Avenue at Hope; September 25, First Baptist at T. A. B.; October 2, Saurer at First Baptist. Otherwise the regular schedule will be followed.

A communication received from A. C. Campbell, manager of the Farmer A. C., challenging the wining team in the league to a series of games, was received, filed and the secretary was instructed to acknowledge the same.

COWLER IS TRAINING FOR WILLARD'S TITLE

"Ruby Bob" and Corbett Think Big Englishman Is a Wonder.

Bob Fitzsimmons, termed by many the greatest fighter that ever lived, is assisting Jim Corbett in trying to make a championship possibility out of Tom Cowler, the big Englishman, protege of Corbett's. Fitz is of the opinion that Cowler is the man that will eventually take Jess Willard's title, and he and his former rival, Corbett, are lending all their efforts. Fitz thinks Cowler has the class, but needs to have it brought out. What Cowler needs, according to Fitz, is plenty of bouts, and in time "Ruby Bob" thinks that Cowler will make as great a fighter as he was. Fitz has taken a great deal of interest in Cowler, one reason for his activity in the young man being that he was born in Fitz's birthplace. Cowler has appeared in New York but once, and then he made a favorable impression in a bout against Gunboat Smith several weeks ago. Corbett is positive, however, that the fans will see a wonderfully improved man when Tom faces Jack Hemple Wednesday night at the St. Nicholas Club, New York.

MC GRAW SELLS MARQUARD TO BROOKLYN DODGERS

It has definitely been decided that "Rube" Marquard, recently released by the Giants, will go to the Brooklyn National League team. Wilbert Robinson, John J. McGraw and Charles H. Ebbets reached an agreement at a conference yesterday, and Brooklyn will take over the player at a price said to be $2,500.

All of the major league clubs had waived claim on Marquard, and he was released by the Giants to Toronto. He refused to join the minors, however, and after a talk with Wilbert Robinson on Saturday, the Brooklyn club made an offer to the Giants of the waiver price, $1,500, for the player. It is understood that McGraw at the conference with Ebbets and Robinson raised the valuation of Marquard to $2,500, and this price Brooklyn agreed to pay.

MUDGE WINS THE GOLD MEDAL IN GOLE TOURNEY

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 31—Dudley Mudge, of the Town and Country Club, of St. Paul, Minn., won the gold medal for low qualifying score in the second and final qualifying round in the United States Golf Association championship tournament at the Country Club yesterday. A score of thirty-six for the thirty-six holes gave this honor to the young man from the North. His card was two strokes better than that of R. A. Gardner, of Hinsdale, and it beat the figures turned in by Francis Ouimet, the present amateur champion, by three.

A magnificent afternoon round, in which Mudge negotiated a par 73, despite the adverse conditions, was responsible for his position as medalist. He had a 79 in the morning, which was not bad, but his afternoon performance was almost phenomenal, every hole in the last nine, except one, being played in an even four.

The Carpet Took Him Right Up Into the Air.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—— The Boy That Looked For the Rim of the World.

"ONCE a little boy looked for the rim of the world," said daddy to the children. "I will tell you about it. This little boy lived in a white farmhouse that was not far from a great city.

"And what particularly interested him about them was that the sky seemed to come down over all the edges of the view as if it had been an overturned bowl right over the earth, and he called it a rim, and he wondered what lay beyond it, and he thought that naturally there must be one rim outside another and so on till there was reached the rim of the world.

"So one afternoon, what do you think? Why, he was sitting in a green field, looking at the beautiful view and wondering about that mysterious rim of the world, and all of a sudden a funny little gnome, with the oddest, wizened, wrinkled little face you ever saw, came to him, and he held in his hands a gay little carpet.

"'I know what you want, sonny,' he said. 'You want to find the rim of the world. I have here a magic carpet which will take you anywhere you want to go. You just sit on it and wish yourself somewhere—and, presto! there you are.'

"'Mr. Carpet,' he said, 'I want to go to Europe and look at the war.'

"So the carpet took him right up into the air and flew away with him.

"And the carpet reached the battlefields of Europe, but it did not go down on the ground. It remained up in the air, where it was much safer, and the little boy looked down and saw the men in the trenches and the big cannon.

"'I don't like war. Take me where there's peace,' said the little boy. So the carpet, which was there just to oblige him, whisked him to a city away down in sleepy Asia, where there were temples and men with white robes and turbans, and these men were praying, and there was an atmosphere of peace.

"So the carpet proceeded, taking the little boy wherever he wanted to go, and he wanted to go almost everywhere, and he found there were ever so many rims to the world, and there didn't seem to be any end to them, and he grew so tired of seeing new rims that he asked the little carpet to take him home.

"And the carpet did so and landed the little boy right back at the point from which he started.

"And what do you think? The little boy woke up. He had been dreaming, you see."

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"They say he is going to be married." Mrs. Severs' tone indicated that she was disclosing some great villainy. "I believe they will live to suffer for it."

"I got in late," said a buxom woman, holding her needle at arm's length and stabbing at it with her thread; "someone knit up the thread of discourse, please."

"Our text," mocked a bright eyed woman sitting at the machine, "is Dr. Ellson, his divorced state and prospective marriage."

"Well, I am glad he's going to marry. He's a fine man and I liked the looks of the girl; one of those clear-eyed, honest girls that you are sure would do the right thing, as far as she saw the right."

"But, my dear Mrs. Burt, you have forgotten that he is a divorced man. Think of a young girl marrying a man with a former wife living. He is casting loose the poisonous example of divorce, and she is throwing her influence on the side of broken homes and may infect the minds of others. It is indelicate, to say the least, for a man to have two women living to whom he has sustained the relation of husband." Mrs. Severs bit off her thread with a snap.

"I agree with Mrs. Severs," came in a deep voice from a gaunt woman in the corner. "How are we to Christianize our brother Turks and Mormons, while so called enlightened Americans grant men divorces and thus give them a chance to marry second wives while their first wives live. That defeats the purpose of marriage, which is, or should be, to be true to one man or woman 'till death do part.' There's nothing finer in earth or heaven than the love that does not fail."

"Encore, encore!" The merry-eyed woman at the machine stopped sewing to clap her hands.

"I thought you were a friend of our opinion," said Mrs. Burt.

Dr. Ellson's, Elinore Grant, and approved of the marriage." Mrs. Burk looked at her over the top of her glasses.

"I am, and I do. I was applauding the last fine sentiment, 'There's nothing finer in earth or heaven than the love that does not fail.' The trouble is the love Dr. Ellson had for his former wife—if he ever did love her—could not live through the constant cold nibble of her jealousy.

"Ladies, let's take a vote. All those who think marriage is a union of souls hold up right hands."

With uneasy side glances at one another the entire gathering raised hesitating hands.

"As long as we are unanimous, it is hardly worth while to put to a vote the negative; in other words, how many recognize the legal aspect only?"

"Why, it's both." Mrs. Severs looked reprovingly at the young woman.

"Yes, the ceremony is a public recognition of a marriage of souls. Is it not so?"

"All this talk of soul mate and affinity and such rot has been a devil's device to countenance divorce," came from the other side of the room.

"Oh, a wedding is such a sacred thing," breathed a washed out little woman, "the prayer of the minister, the wedding music, the ring of gold, the white dress with its long veil——"

"Do you mean that these things make marriage in your mind?" interrupted Mrs. Grant, springing to her feet excitedly.

The women laid down their work and stared at her.

"A wedding is a marriage, isn't it?" asked the gaunt woman in the corner.

"Not necessarily by any means. A wedding is a public celebration of a marriage, but if there has been no marriage the wedding is a hollow pomp, a symbol of something that does not exist. If I had not been married to my husband a hundred ministers saying 'ye twain shall be one flesh' could not have married us except in name only."

"Well, I, for one, am willing to let other people regulate their own lives, and I don't think the doctor will ask

A FROCK FOR THE FALL DANCES

No. 9055.

The coming of the cooler weather and the gathering of the young folks in the schools is a herald of greater social activity than is possible in the hot weather, when the ranks are continuously broken by its members going away here and there to spend part of the vacation under a different environment. The young lady will want to be prepared for the dances that are sure to come, and there is nothing daintier and prettier than Ladies' Home Journal Pattern No. 9055 developed in white organdie and lace, illustrated above. This dress is cut in sizes 14 to 20 years, size 18 requiring 5½ yards of 36-inch material, with twenty-five yards of 5-inch lace.

Patterns may be obtained at the store of A. E. Force & Company.

Household Hints

MOST HEALTH-GIVING WARM DAY DRINKS ARE OF FRUITS

Fruit beverages are always in demand with the arrival of hot weather. They are most appetizing and healthful.

If one understands the basic principle of all fruit beverages, they will be found not only easy to prepare, but always satisfactory. The point to remember is that in making lemon, orange or pineappleade the first thing to do is to carefully prepare a syrup made from granulated sugar and water. The different ingredients should then be added.

Pineapple Lemonade—Boil one cup of sugar and one pint of water ten minutes; add two cups grated pineapple and the juice of three lemons. When cold strain and dilute with one quart of ice water.

Orangeade—Make a syrup as for pineapple lemonade; when cold add the juice of six oranges; dilute by adding crushed ice.

Lemonade—Make a syrup of one pint of water and a cup of sugar. To this add one-half cup of lemon juice. Lemon syrup may be placed in bottles and used as needed. It should be diluted with ice water to suit individual tastes.

Ginger Punch—Make a syrup of a quart of water and a cup of sugar. Add one-half pound of chopped Canton or crystallized ginger. Boil for ten minutes; add one-half cup of orange juice and one-half cup of lemon juice; strain and dilute with crushed ice.

Fruit Punch—Boil for twenty minutes one quart water, two cups of sugar and two cups chopped pineapple; add a cup each of lemon juice and orange juice; strain and dilute with one cup strong, cold tea and cracked ice. Marashino cherries may be added.

Fruit Punch—Omit pineapple and cherries in the above recipe. Just before serving add one pint ginger ale and a few slices of orange.

Claret Punch—Make a syrup of one quart water, two cups of sugar, a piece of stick cinnamon and one-fourth cup of raisins. Boil for ten minutes. Strain and add one and one-half cups of orange juice and one-half cup of lemon juice. Strain and add one pint of claret wine and ice water to suit taste. If one objects to wine, use one cup juice from raspberries.

MAKES SEWING EASY

To run a sewing machine easily and with the least resultant fatigue, place the right foot high up on the treadle and use merely the toe of the left foot on the lower edge at the left. This gives play to the muscles as in walking—an alternate motion to the limbs—whereas, if both feet are placed flatly upon the treadle the motion to the body is that of jumping, the most tiresome of all exercises.

The difference is truly remarkable, and explains in a measure the reason some women find running a machine entirely too much for their strength.

Try the alternate motion and note the effect.

WILD ROSE CAKE

Use any good white cake recipe, bake in loaf or in layers. Put together with marshmallow filling, ice the top and sides with any good plain white icing. Have ready marshmallows which have been cut in shapes to represent wild rose petals. Dip these in a cup of water, to which has been added enough red fruit coloring to make the marshmallows when dipped a beautiful pink.

The pink tablets in gelatin packages are nice to use for coloring. Spread petals on paper to dry.

Now cut marshmallows to represent leaves, and others into long thin strips for stems.

Prepare a cup of water tinted green and dip leaves and stems as you did the petals; spread out to dry. It is best to prepare marshmallows before icing cake, as they need to be almost dry before placing in position.

While icing is still moist arrange the petals in wild roses, allowing five petals to each rose. In the center of each place a dot of yellow icing.

A little sugar mixed with yolk of egg will do nicely. Now arrange the leaves and stems in any artistic manner. If the work is carefully done a beautiful cake will be the result.

"EFFICIENCY"---the Power Behind the September Sale of HOUSEWARES

IF the women of America only realized it, they could save to themselves and to those who help them keep house an incalculable amount of energy, health, good-nature, cheerfulness, patience, happiness, freedom, to say nothing of money, if they took advantage of this wonderful Housewares Store and the September Sale it holds each Autumn.

Instead of building warships, aeroplanes, guns, submarines, armored automobiles, a great deal of the inventive genius of our country is quietly and constantly inventing and fashioning little and big utensils and instruments which will lighten the drudgery of housework.

These labor and money saving devices are shown in the Housefurnishings Store the minute they have proven themselves good. We do not risk untried experiments. But we bring in everything that proves itself sound immediately we find it.

Economy in September

In the September Sale, in addition to offering all these household helps we add ECONOMY to the occasion by lowering our regular prices on this regular standard merchandise.

Low prices do not bring economies if the qualities are cheapened also.

It is not economy to bring into the home cheap, flimsy, shilly-shally utensils or seconds of enamelware from which pieces of the enamel will chip off and bring poison into the food.

It is not economy to bring into the home old-fashioned utensils or unsizeable things which will not give the best service, just because they are cheap.

Economy includes quality and efficiency as well as low price—and these three elements are always found in a Wanamaker Sale.

For instance—

The sewing machine that we shall sell at $32.50 is our regular $40 model—the improved standard rotary shuttle sewing machine with fourteen new improvements, including automatic tension release and bobbin winder. Can be purchased $2 down and $1 weekly.

The Trunks include dress trunks, steamer trunks, and wardrobe trunks, and are not the cheap flimsy kind so much advertised and which will go to pieces in a few bumps—we are always offered these cheap trunks before other stores get them, but we will not sell them at any price.

The Bathroom Supplies in this sale are nickled on brass, the best possible construction for bathroom fixtures.

The Refrigerators to be sold at one-fifth to one-half less, are exactly the same kind of refrigerators that we sell regularly in our own stocks.

The Aluminum Cooking Utensils which we offer are 99 per cent. pure aluminum made without seams, light in weight, strong, will not rust, and are easy to keep clean. Yet prices are more than one-quarter less than in other months of the year.

The Ironware is of the very highest grade, with extra finish—the kind we sell regularly. Yet prices are one-quarter less.

The Polished Tinware is the extra heavy grade, also at largely reduced prices.

The Enameled Wares—and all the other wares that we offer in the sale—are first quality and of the standard grades which are to be found here all the time.

The Cutlery is first quality and made by one of the leading manufacturers in the country and fully warranted.

Everything offered in the Sale is guaranteed as though you were paying full prices.

Included are—

Woodenware — Dusters
Tinware — Chamois
Aluminum — Cutlery
Brushes — Mirrors
Ironware — Kitchen Cabinets
Refrigerators — Sewing Machines
Bird Cages — Enameled Ware
Trunks — Brooms and Mops
Bathroom Furnishings
Scales, Coffee Mills
Trays and Brass Goods
Chafing dishes and Casseroles

BENEFIT GAME FOR "KID" BRENNAN TO BE PLAYED AT PARKER FIELD

T. A. B. S. and Clinton Avenues Arrange Contest For Saturday In Aid of Abstainers' Injured Short-stop.

The managers of the Clinton Avenue and Tab baseball teams go together last night and decided to stage their coming Saturday match for the benefit of Frank Brennan, Abstainers' shortstop, who broke a leg sliding to second in a recent City League contest. Through the columns of the local newspapers such a contest was suggested and the fans urged to attend. Now that the match is a certainty another appeal is made to the fans.

Through the efforts of Tom Apgar, the Clintonian leader, George Wriston, the supervisor at Parker Field, has promised the free use of Parker Field for the coming tilt. Inasmuch as the seating capacity is twice as large as that of any of the other ball yards, it is thought that an unusually large and enthusiastic crowd will be on hand.

Frank Brennan, the lad for whom the exhibition is to be staged, is at present resting comfortably in a semi-private ward at the hospital. However during his long stay there the expenses are naturally increasing. The money derived from a game such as is going to be staged this coming Saturday will go a long way toward paying off these debts, inasmuch as the T. A. B. Society undertakes to pay all sick or accident benefits.

The line-ups of the two teams will not be changed, inasmuch as the league rules do not allow such action, but since the Tabs are now the league leaders, and since the Clintons are considered the fastest fielding team in the circuit, a good, lively tilt can be looked forward to.

Many prominent business men have signified their intention of doing all they can to make the affair the success it ought to be, and the hearty co-operation of all local fans is earnestly sought. If you are not a follower of the fortunes of either of the two teams that will engage in the melee come out anyway and get a line on your favorite outfit's rivals. The other managers will not care. They are only too glad to bear a little financial reverse when they know that the money is going for so good a cause.

The official line-ups, batting order and batteries will be announced Friday night. Fans are urged to keep in mind this contest at Parker Field, Saturday afternoon, and to aid a very good cause.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY GIRL ATHLETE OF CLASS; HOLDS RECORD IN POLE VAULT

Pauline Siebenthal.

Who says girls can't jump? If there are any who do, let them read of the exploits, as a pole vauiter, of pretty little Pauline Siebenthal, a student in the junior class of Indiana University. Miss Siebenthal recently broke the world's record for women jumpers in this sport.

Recently, at a meet at Bloomington, this remarkable girl athlete easily eclipsed all records at clearing the bar previously made by girls by vaulting 6 feet 1 inch, which is five inches higher than the best record previously made.

Miss Siebenthal's record is made all the more remarkable from the fact that it was accomplished with little previous training in track work. When Miss Siebenthal was first permitted to vault for height, after only a few days' preliminary practice, she cleared the bar with ease at 5 feet 6 inches. Then she did 5 feet 11 inches, which broke the record by three inches, but to eclipse this, a few days later she made her best jump of

Although track athletics are new to Miss Siebenthal, ever since she was a small girl she has been interested and has participated in basketball and tennis. Among the other championships she won this spring was her class championship in tennis.

She is also keen on baseball, and attempted to get up a girls' team in college this year, which she believed would, with a little practice, put it all over the boy's team, but the college authorities interfered with this ambition.

Coach Childs has been almost as much astonished at Miss Siebenthal's remarkable athletic powers as anyone else. He has stated that, in his opinion, she is today the most remarkable and proficient girl athlete in the United States.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACES OPEN AT EMPIRE TRACK

The Grand Circuit racing at the Empire City track, near Yonkers, will open today with a race in which Lee Axworthy, 2:03¼, unbeaten this season, and Peter Scott, 2:05¼, winner of five consecutive races, are to compete with half a dozen other trotters for a purse of $5,000. The race promises to be in the nature of a renewal of the $10,000 Merchants' and Manufacturers' Stakes at Detroit a month ago, all of the contending horses in that event having been entered for today's contest.

Another feature of the Grand Circuit opening will be the attempt of Directum I., 1:58, to lower the world's record for pacers, now held by him.

Races for trotters of the 2:17 class and for pacers of the 2:15 class also are on the card, the purse in each being $1,000.

The meeting will contiaue four days. The National Stallion Stakes, worth $7,000, for 3-year-old trotters, will be decided tomorrow, along with the 2:18 trotting and the 2:07 pacing races.

SHORE BIRD HUNTING SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

With the approach of the shore bird hunting season tomorrow, comes the annual discussion as to whether or not the birds are becoming extinct or not. These discussions are heard at the weekly meetings of the rod and gun clubs held throughout the State.

The open season on shore birds, such as black-breasted plover, golden plover, jack snipe or Wilson snipe and the yellow leg family, rails, coots, gallinules and marsh or mud hens, begins tomorrow. Ever since these migratory birds have been placed under Federal jurisdiction, there has been a decided increase in the number seen through the State and this season is expected to be far better than any that the gunners have enjoyed in years.

Snipe shooting has the recognized merit that it furnishes the largest returns of legitimate sport for the smallest loss of game bird life and, if such sport is to be possible hereafter, three essentials must be realized: An increase, if possible, in the supply of birds; such an arrangement of open and closed seasons that whatever birds there are shall yield the greatest amount of sport for the number killed, and (especially in the case of the Wilson snipe) legal provision for distributing the number of snipe killed among the largest number of sportsmen.

Quite a number of local boys will be entrants in both events. George Horvath, of the Y. M. C. A., is already hitting the roads in preparation for the walk. Gordman, a teammate, will also start working this week for the same event.

THE NAVY LEAGUE TO PARTICIPATE

Will Have Part In Program Following G. A. R. Encampment.

LUNCHEON A FEATURE

Reception By Woman's Section of the League of Which Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges Is a Member, Will Be Included In Program.

Washington, Aug. 31—Announcement was made today that the Navy League will participate in the great conference on national defense, which will be held in Washington, October 4-7, under the auspices of the National Defense League, immediately following the Grand Army of the Republic Encampment.

Tuesday, October 5, has been set aside on the conference program as Navy Day, and on this date the Navy League will have complete charge of the program. The league will hold a morning session, to which will be invited all delegates to the conference on national defense. It is expected that Secretary Daniels and other prominent citizens will address the session. This will be followed by a navy luncheon at one of the principal Washington hotels, and after luncheon the afternoon will be devoted to a visit to the gun factory of the Washington navy yard by the delegates to the conference. There will be a big reception by the woman's section of the Navy League. Secretary A. H. Dadmun, of the league, is now arranging details of Navy Day at the conference and is making up the list of speakers for the occasion. Mr. Dadmun will send out invitations to all members of the Navy League to attend the conference.

The National Rifle Association of America has announced that its members also will participate in the conference on national defense. Secretary Albert S. Jones, of the association, has sent invitations to all members of his organization to attend the conference, where civilian training in the use of the military rifle will be one of the most important matters considered. Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge, who is head of the Government Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, will represent the National Rifle Association at the conference if his duties at the War Department permit, and there will be other speakers on rifle practice.

The National Defense League has been busy for six months with preparations for the conference on national defense, which is expected to be the greatest gathering ever held in Washington.

The program has been tentatively arranged for the four days' sessions and the speakers, who will include the foremost men of the country are now being selected. Senor Dr Don Eusebio A. Morales, the distinguished minister from Panama to the United States, has accepted an invitation to speak at the conference. One of the most important matters to be discussed at the conference will be the new Pan American doctrine, recently suggested in the press by Winfield Jones, secretary of the National Defense League. This doctrine which if accepted by the Pan American republics, would result in a defensive and offensive alliance of every nation of the Western Hemisphere with the United States, is arousing much attention in the Pan American countries and is being endorsed by Senators and Representatives. Many Congressmen are reported to favor a solidarity of the United States with the South and Central American republics, as advocated by the Pan American doctrine.

A LESSON IN CITIZENSHIP.

The oath of allegiance which every foreign born citizen takes upon becoming naturalized as an American citizen demonstrates that there can be no such thing as a German-American. Every one who takes it casts aside the legal designation and becomes a citizen of the United States with all the rights, liberties and privileges (and responsibilities), of those descended from the men who "gave this Republic her station." It is too bad that more attention is not called to this declaration, which says:

I hereby declare, on oath, that I absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign prince, potentate, state, or sovereignty, and particularly to William II, German emperor, of whom I have heretofore been a subject; that I will support and defend the constitution and laws of the United States of America against all enemies, foreign and domestic; and that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same.

There is a solemnity, impressiveness and force to that declaration which seems to rest very lightly upon some of those who took it' and some of those who are proclaiming themselves as German-Americans, and who are organizing and appealing to others to enlist, have no claim upon the title American with or without the hyphen. In commenting on the matter the Hackensack Republican says there is nothing in German or any other culture which permits a man to make false claim to American citizenship with or without the hyphen, and it hits the nail squarely on the head. Such action is deception! to deceive is to cheat, to defraud. Culture is the reverse of this—it means honorable, noble life, scorning all forms of conduct calculated to reflect upon the highest type of manhood. Every loyal American respects a loyal German or citizen of any other country who wishes to see the homeland maintain an honorable prestige. It is a natural, and ineradicable sentiment of the heart. But the man who leaves his native land and solemnly swears allegiance to the land of his new home, severs all connection and legal ties with his native government. He owes to it no duty. His only duty here is to the government of the United States of America and to the flag. The man who is false to his oath of allegiance is a disloyal citizen.

Why is it that morbidly curious persons are always attracted to the most revolting cases at the police court in greater numbers than at any other time? We don't suppose that the question will ever be answered. This time it is prompted by the fact that probably the largest crowd that ever turned out at the Plainfield police court was present yesterday to hear a case which was based on about as nasty testimony as Judge DeMeza has had presented before him since he took the job. It is certainly astonishing that so many people can be interested enough to come into almost personal contact with the people who were brought into court in this case.

If Senator Martine fails of re-election it will not be because of any neglect on his part. He has already started traveling around the State, seeing his constituents, and at the same time sounding the praises of President Wilson. There is no evidence of the break which we were told a few months ago had occurred between the President and the Senior United States Senator from New Jersey.

The Paterson Call is worrying about what is going to be done with all the second-hand automobiles that "will be thrown on the market when the war is over in Europe." Judging from the pictures and description of the treatment of these machines appearing in the newspapers and magazines, the fighting nations will have to go into the junk business.

Over nine inches of rain, and the month not finished yet! And as for cold weather, can the oldest inhabitant remember such an August before? What we have been through these thirty-one days would have been seasonable in November, but as for August—well, with the ice man, we hope there will never be another like it.

Expressing his personal opinion of "votes for women," Governor Brumbaugh, of Pennsylvania, said the other day: "Unquestionably women are entitled to vote. As a school man I have learned the value of their conclusions, and in some instances have even found it wise to defer to them." It's a cinch that he's a married man.

The French have provided the men in the trenches with alarm clocks, according to news reports. If they are like some of which we know, the clocks will do their proper duty just once, and then—well, everyone knows how it is.

And don't forget that tomorrow every single dollar you can get hold of will do a mighty day's work at the store of any progressive Plainfield merchant. 'Twill be a splendid opportunity to stock up with supplies for next summer.

Unless there is an unexpected settlement of the war abroad, we are led to believe that the geography teachers will not devote much time to the study of the map of Europe when school re-opens in a few weeks.

As an exchange says, if someone would take the colic out of green apples, the small boy would be duly appreciative.

DYNAMITERS UP FOR TRIAL.

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 31.—The trial of David Caplan and Matthew Schmidt, recently rounded up in connection with the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building, is set for tomorrow. They are charged with murder, as confederates of the McNamara conspirators. The Times building was blown up five years ago. Schmidt and Caplan succeeded in evading their pursuers until last spring, when Schmidt was discovered in New York and Caplan was found living the simple life on the Pacific Coast.

The Direction Of Favors

If you will note the errands of the men
(And, by the way, of wily women, too)
Who send you messages by word or pen,
And wish to have a bit of speech with you,
You'll see that, in nine cases out of eight,
The thing they wish to speak to you concerning,
Is some fool thing for which YOU well might wait,
But for which THEIR poor souls have long been yearning.

Nine-tenths and more of all the mail you get
Is asking you for something; and the rest
Is of the self-same import, you can bet—
In which the other's bank-book will be blest.
While every note that starts with words of honey
Regarding what a crackerjack you are;
Will finish with a mild request for money,
And give your flattered soul an awful jar.

Zeppelins

Zeppelins are something you can't speak or spell on a typewriter unless you are sober.

They are just like some people—they are all puffed up, full of hot air, and are usually up in the air.

But unlike these same people, the Zeppelins are guidable.

When you find a person who thus partially resembles a Zeppelin, people are always telling him where to go, but they merely say it profanely and don't really mean it.

Any Londoner who hasn't stiff neck can look up and see a Zeppelin anytime, whether it is there or not.

London oculists are treating cases of Zeppelootic every day.

HEALTH TALKS
by WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

The Mineral Oil Craze

EVERY laxative has its day. At present purified petroleum oil enjoys the vogue which castor oil never attained in its palmiest days.

There must be forty different brands of petroleum oil marketed to meet this big demand for a laxative. In the matter of flavor it may be that some brands are pleasanter to take than others, but so far as the effect goes one is as good or bad as another.

So-called "Russian" oil is in no sense superior to out-and-out American refined petroleum—but you know how it is, anything imported seems higher class than plain home-made goods, to some people.

The virtues of mineral oil as a laxative which make it preferable in some cases to other laxatives are, first, that it increases the peristaltic or wave movement of the bowel without being absorbed and producing other effects simultaneously, as many laxative remedies do; second, it is apparently not habit-forming, as some laxatives, not all, undoubtedly are; and third, it is supposed to absorb a certain proportion of the toxic substances in the bowel which make the constipated person feel so wretched. This latter virtue, however, must be largely theoretical, for the maximum quantity of toxic material mineral oil could possibly absorb in the doses usually employed would be something less than a drop in the bucket.

Anybody who feels impelled to "try" purified mineral oil, liquid paraffin, liquid petrolatum, albolene, Russian oil, or any of the laxo this or that trademarked brands on the market, would do well to take it an hour away from mealtime, and rather two or three small doses daily than one full dose.

It is perhaps most frequently prescribed for those who have food stasis—a sort of a new mode in constipation—and especially in cases of ptosis, or sagging of the alimentary canal. In the latter condition, which the X-ray photograph of a digesting bismuth-meal shows to be much more common than appearances would indicate, pure petroleum oil is believed to facilitate the passage of the alimentary stream over the various kinks and hills which ptosis causes.

After all, we suspect that the old-time mixture of senna leaves and chopped figs, or aromatic syrup of rhubarb, or cascara, or phenolphthalein (the laxative in many lax-this-and-that tablets or wafers), and several other physics—always excepting the crude and harmful aloes and aloin-containing pills—are in effect "just as good," though not so expensive and fashionable as the novel petroleum. However, as the w. k. old lady said, every one to his own taste.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Backache of Invalid In Bed

Can you suggest anything to relieve or prevent the backache suffered frequently by one confined to bed? She has to sleep on her back, and sometimes the pain is very troublesome at night.

Answer—It is due to relaxation of the joints between base of spine (sacrum) and hip bones (ilium)—the sacro-iliac joint. The doctor might strap the pelvis with adhesive plaster, or the patient might wear a small pillow or pad strapped to the lower spine. A good massage of the back by a strong nurse helps.

Dr. Brady will answer all questions pertaining to health. If your question is of general interest it will be answered through these columns; if not it will be answered personally if stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Dr. Brady will not prescribe for individual cases or make diagnoses. Address all letters to Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.

LILLE

LILLE, which has just celebrated the first anniversary of its German career, with the reverse pedal on, is a city of 200,000 people located 150 miles northeast of Paris.

It is a fortified city of the first rank and was undefended last year by twenty forts. The guns in these forts speak German as readily as they do French, which is a source of great grief to the people of Lille who have been busy paying for them for fifty years.

Lille is the most important city in northern France. In times of peace it makes linen thread, handles flax, weaves cloth, makes guns, locomotives and railroad supplies and entertains tourists. For the last year, however, it has been largely engaged in taking in boarders. Lille probably does the largest boarding house business on earth just now. The boarders are all German and do not pay anything at present, but their credit is simply magnificent.

Lille is a very young French town, having been founded less than 900 years ago. It has some magnificent public buildings and is a very handsome town, but its main street since the visitors came has looked like the main street of Pompeii. However, Lille is used to being stepped on by Mars. It had scarcely gotten a good start when it was destroyed in 1213. It was rebuilt by Joanna of Constantinople, which shows that railroad connections with the Orient must have been a good deal better then than they are now.

Being captured is also no novelty to Lille. It was captured in 1297, in 1667 and in 1708. The English, Dutch and Spanish have all taken Lille. This fact enables the oldest inhabitants to make great nuisances of themselves, comparing the present occupation with the hard times when they were boys.

The boarders are all German

The Austrians also tackled Lille in 1792, but could not take it. Because of this fact a great triumphal arch was erected. It is closed just now, however, for lack of business.

Lille is full of factories and railroads, but it does not allow itself to sprawl frowsily over the landscape for all of this. American mayors of busy cities, which average an acre of beauty per square mile of profits should be compelled to visit Lille in times of peace armed with a notebook weighing at least four pounds.

Views Of The Press

The Case Of Poland

ONCE the kingdom of Poland was the big bully of Europe. The weight of its warlike hand fell across the sea and straits into Asiatic country, too, now and then, and the Turks were once driven from a new foothold in Europe by Polish hordes.

These were the proud days when Poland was strong and the other nations of Europe petty kingdoms. Poland was called upon by Venice once to save her from the Mohammedan invasion, when all of the other European countries had failed. The Polish troops went forth and the Turks were driven across the Hellespont.

But Poland became too proud, and was made to bow her head in the dust of defeat. She had been strong and internal dissensions made her weak. Other nations, like the Russians, the Germans and the Prussians, built on the failing hopes of a country once proud but now becoming humble, trampled on her and Poland lost caste. Germany and Prussia took a slice of her plain lands, cold but fertile, Russia laid claim to a portion and far-away Austria looked longingly in that direction. Poland was dismembered, in a measure, but still allowed a sort of local government over a portion of her lands. This lasted for years; then the strength of surrounding nations, played against the approaching weakness of Poland, told on the latter and she withdrew into herself at Cracow. It was the last left of once proud Poland. Cracow remained for a time an independent city and the remainder of the country was divided. Later Cracow was taken over by Hungary and Russia and Prussia had the rest. Poland, as a nation, was wiped from the map of the world. Since that day she has been held and governed by the governments of Vienna, Berlin and Petrograd.

What becomes of Poland, now, matters little to the Polish people, save that their native land is the big battleground of the east. Her fields are torn, her cities sacked and burned and her industries ruined. But her government could hardly be worse than it has been for a century and will hardly be any better, no matter if the Germans and Austrians should take over the remaining portion now in the control of Russia.

Poland has suffered much and more than almost any other European nation, but a thousand years before this the Poles were the bullies of Europe, the military bosses of tribes that were weak.—Hutchison News.

The PEOPLE'S LEGAL FRIEND
by E. R. BRANSON

Carrying Concealed Weapons

Q. Please inform me whether the provision of the law forbidding the carrying of concealed weapons, or the carrying of deadly weapons, applies to a person who does so on his own premises.

A. The statutes concerning the carrying of deadly weapons differ more or less in the various states. Usually, the statute does not apply to individuals who are on their own premises at the time. Such persons will be included within the operation of the statute, however, where the statute makes no exception in this regard.

The Money Clinched It

Q. My cousin owns a farm which he rented out to a certain man and his family. There were several conditions in the lease, which was in writing, and this man has failed to observe them. My cousin, however, continues to receive the rent. Could he compel the tenant to leave, because of the latter's failure to observe the conditions of the lease?

A. Your cousin's acceptance of the rent, with full knowledge that the conditions of the lease had been broken by the tenant, amounts to a waiver. Under such circumstances, he is not in a position to compel the tenant to vacate.

More Than One Executor

Q. May a man, in his will, appoint more than one person as executor? A. Yes.

May Not Alter Plans

Q. An architect whom I employed to superintend the erection of a building made numerous changes in the plans and as a consequence there are claims against me for extra work. Did he have the right to do this?

A. An architect has no general authority to alter the plans and specifications in such a manner as to impose an additional burden upon the employer.

Contract Made By An Agent

Q. An agent of a corporation made a contract with me. It seems that, at the time, he did not have authority to make this particular kind of an agreement, but I rather think the company will stand back of it. Do you think the contract would be good, from the facts as I have given them to you?

A. The corporation may ratify the contract—that is, may decide to be bound by it—unless the contract was illegal or unless it was beyond the powers of the corporation.

Go Ahead; Sue The Bunch

Q. A certain man came to me and made a contract with me. I did not know at the time that he was acting as the agent of another man, but it has subsequently come to light that this was the case. I supposed all the time that this agent was acting for himself alone. Since then, the contract has been broken and I want to know whether I can sue either one of these men, and, if so, which one? A. You may sue either one.

Alimony Again

Q. Where a woman is suing for a divorce, will alimony pending the suit be allowed?

A. Sometimes, but not always. If she has no means of supporting herself, and if she is embarrassed, financially, in conducting her suit, alimony pending the suit is allowed.

A Special Partnership

Q. Please tell me what is meant by a "special partnership."

A. A special partnership is one formed for a special or particular transaction. Thus, two or more persons may form a partnership for the purpose of selling a certain stock of goods.

Can It

Q. Please tell me what is meant by the "abatement" of a nuisance?

A. Taking it away or removing it.

Agent Held Liable For Loss

Q. I employed a man as my agent and gave him certain directions concerning the business in hand. He disobeyed my instructions and I sustained a financial loss. Could I make him liable to me? A. Yes.

Between The Lines

Q. My wife's uncle, who died a short time ago, left a will. Certain words seem to have been written between the lines, apparently added as an afterthought. Would you think this would affect the validity of the will?

A. A will must always be executed in accordance with the requirements of the statute of the particular state. If the will is interlined, the instrument must be re-executed with all the formalities required by the statute.

A Widow's Allowance

Q. Kindly tell me what is meant by a widow's allowance."

A. Statutory enactments in many of the states provide for the temporary support of the widow, by means of an allowance out of her husband's estate. This is given the widow and family until distribution of the estate can be made or until some other disposition of the matter is effected.

State Penal Laws

Q. Is there any duty devolving on one state to enforce the penal laws of another state?

A. A state is not required to enforce the penal laws or the local police regulations of another state.

The Man Who "Can't Resist"

"Those Browns are so easily shocked," he tells us, "that I can't resist shocking them." Precisely. He really can't resist it. He speaks more accurately than he realizes; the impulse to shock the Browns is the same impulse that makes a certain weak type of person want to throw himself before an oncoming express train. Of course he "can't resist" shocking the Browns; he's weak. The Browns are the magnet that draw out this particular type of weakness. At sight of the Browns, he drops the guard from his reputation. He abandons himself to a recklessness that he may some day regret. He's not his own master when he's in their presence. He may think he's shocking them because he chooses to, but in reality he's shocking them because they're making him shock them. Their very primness challenges him. And he takes the challenge.

He's putty.

Temperance
NEWS AND VIEWS
Conducted by THE W. C. T. U.

"Under no circumstances would I take out a retail liquor license to handle whiskey should the proposed change go into effect. I think that a majority of druggists will agree with me when I say that the present $25 license is a burden because it really hasn't paid us to handle the stuff for the last five years," declared an Elkhart (Ind.) pharmacist to a representative of the Elkhart (Ind.) Review, the other day in referring to the recently reported purpose of the national pharmacopeia committee of physicians to omit brandy and whisky from the new edition of the United States Pharmacopeia.

"Until five years ago," said the druggist, "whiskey was an ingredient of many medicines. Physicians would nearly always prescribe it as one of the principal ingredients of a cough syrup, and it was part of many medicines for different diseases. Now, oils and balms of various kinds take the place of whiskey, and only a few of the old school doctors prescribe its use. Why, a large number of prominent brands of patented cough syrups whose main ingredient was whiskey in one form or another have substituted non-alcoholic substances for the liquor. You have possibly noticed on some of the famous patent medicines that additional copyrights have been applied for. This means that they have been compelled to reduce the alcoholic ingredients in them to a minimum."

The druggist's assertions were made after a traveling man attempted to "josh" him about losing a good paying part of his business. The traveling man said that he had heard many druggists over the country declare that they would be glad if the pharmacopeia committee would take the reported action, for it would prevent their competitors from forcing them to bother at all with the stuff, which is becoming more and more unprofitable, not to mention the loss in respectability which the whisky-selling druggist suffers.

Another Elkhart druggist said he had long considered the feasibility of cutting out the whiskey, regardless of the proposed action relating to the pharmacopeia. "I'm disgusted with all that sort of business," he said.

The United State Government recently began a crusade against alcoholic medical preparations, which, while masquerading as medicines, are in reality used as beverages in dry territory where wines and liquors are not to be had. According to the Washington (D. C.) Times, a list of 246 preparations which have been examined in the Internal Revenue office and found "to be insufficiently medicated to render them unfit for use as a beverage," or which, in other words, can be taken by the wine or whiskey glass full as well as by the teaspoon, was given to each Internal Revenue collector. All collectors were advised that a special tax will be required for the sale of any of the preparations named in the list, even though such sales should be for medicinal and not bibulous use.

Moreover, collectors are instructed to aid the bureau in its crusade by securing and forwarding the bureau officers in Washington samples of preparations which they have reason to believe are or may be used as beverages.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Bright stage pictures are promised in "High Jinks," which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre, September 4, under the direction of Arthur Hammerstein. The scenes of the musical farce are laid in a garden near Paris and at a French bathing resort. One of the largest and most attractive chorues ever brought out of New York contributes materially to the gaiety of the festive scenes.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" has produced more laughs than anything on the American stage in many years. It was a ten months' hit in New York and six months in Chicago. Its success shows that play popularity may be had without recourse to sensational, sex or other derangements of imaginative and delinquent authors. It can be said of George M. Cohan, who, it is understood, has done his best writing in this play, that he has never written any play to which an exception could be taken on moral grounds—they have all been clean and proper, and the little American flag waver promises to keep right on in his original and successful way. "Seven Keys to Baldpate" will be found on tap at the Plainfield Theatre, Thursday, September 2.

Going to build? See Saturday's Press.

November 2—General Election Day.

That the announcement of the plan to retain City Council with a membership of twenty-four has caused a stir in political circles throughout Elizabeth goes without saying. The possibility of a councilmanic fight in every ward in the city is viewed alike by Democrats and Republicans with a mingled feeling of doubt and misgiving. Coming as it does so soon before the time limit for filing nominating petitions, it gives those who might decide to run but little time.

The petition of General Dennis F. Collins for the nomination as a member of the Union County Democratic Committee is the first to be filed with the Elizabeth city clerk. The petition was placed on file before General Collins left for the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

An executive committee has been named by the Republicans to manage the Elizabeth campaign. It will consist of the four officers of the central committee, George J. Stewart, chairman, Twelfth ward; Peter J. Olde, vice-chairman, Ninth ward; Otto Froebel, Jr., secretary, Fifth ward; Henry Pflug, treasurer, Second ward; also, Jacob Hagin, Sixth ward; Henry Beltz, Twelfth ward; Charles A. Otto, Jr., Eighth ward; William J. Wood, Eleventh ward, and Harry George, Fourth ward.

Former Speaker Thomas McCran has denied the rumor that he was out of the race for State Senator from Passaic county. Rumor had it that he intended to retire from the primary contest in order that Gerald Stalter might win over the Progressive candidate for the Republican nomination. "I'm too busy getting votes to pay attention to those tales," the ex-Speaker said. Stalter has already flatly refused to get out of the race, and the three-cornered fight continues.

The Summit Republican Club has endorsed Ruford Franklin, a New York lawyer, for Mayor, and his followers believe that he will easily win out in the fall election. While no opposition is looming up to Mr. Franklin, Francis S. Phraner, another commuter, who was endorsed for the office of councilman-at-large, will have a hard fight on his hands, Robert J. Murphy, a local real estate man, having been put in the race against him.

Anti-Wittpenn Democrats in Hudson county have organized their forces for the coming campaign. A campaign committee was appointed last night with Thomas J. Maloney as chairman and John F. Boyle as treasurer. Among the members is Commissioner George F. Brensinger.

ONE ON BAIL; OTHER HELD.

Pitman Robinson, colored, who, the police think, may know something about the robbery of Edward A. Laing's stationery store some weeks ago, was let go this morning by Judge DeMeza, under $100 bail, to appear when wanted. Edward Danridge, a young boy, arrested in connection with the same case, is still held in the jail, as the police want to get some more information from him, which he does not seem willing to give up. He is alleged to have had some of Laing's watches in his possession when arrested.

Because it has had some use, and is, therefore, "second-hand," may not greatly impair its usefulness to you. So watch the 'For Sale" ads.

DETERMINED classified advertisers always win; and, sometimes, even the timid, try-it-once people win, too.

Self-interest induces you to wate the classified ads.

You can't, even through a "For sale" ad, sell that used article for its original cost, nor near it; but you can get its cash value at the present time for it.
